Mrs. J. C. Kreamer and children, Ross, Helen and Jack, will leave Sunday for Salido, Colo., where they will spend the winter with Mrs. Kreamer's father. Mrs. Kreamer has been a splendid factor in educational and club life and has endeared herself to a large circle of friends who regret to lose her and her estimable children.

The feminine element was out en masse to see the beautiful array of fall and winter hats displayed by Mrs. Alpha Bascue last Saturday. Every one was delighted with the variety and clever touches on the bonnets. One lady was heard to remark that "the hats never were so pretty; I'm going to buy that brown beaver before its gone." Another was infatuated with her selection. "You should see my black hatters plush with coral facing and ostrich feathers," she said, "its a stunning creation." With her endless variety of hats Mrs. Bascue is sure to please all tastes.

NEXT WEEK AT THE ISIS

Extra: Tommasino's Italian Band Sunday night. See supplement for particulars. This will be the greatest musical treat that Independence ever had.

There will be a special matinee on Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Geraldine Farrar in "Shadows" and "Smiling Bill" Parsons in "You Know What I Mean."

Marguerite Clark, the "sweetest girl in motion pictures," appears Sunday night in "Three Men and a Girl." The theme deals with three men, all of them woman haters, and a vivacious girl who, to escape an odious marriage, finds refuge in the summer camp where the three woman haters are living. They find her asleep curled up on a couch in their cottage. They are extremely annoyed and the girl terms them bears and leaves them to take up her residence in a nearby house. A dead line is established between the two habitations, but strangely the haters of women seek to cross the dead line continually. The photoplay is one of exceptional interest and it affords Miss Clark a delightful role. She has few if any superiors in her presentation of delightful girl characterizations and her admirers have another pleasing hour in prospect.

Hypnotism, something unexplainable to the ordinary mind, carries such suggestions that when under its influence, Dr. Dunsmore will sing in public, Dr. Butler will ride in a Ford and Grover Mattison will drink near beer. Many ridicule the statement that there is any such thing as hypnotism. In "The Two-Soul Woman," the Monday night bill, these doubts will be swept aside. In the picture Miss Dean portrays the part of her own double. Her first characterization is that of a beautiful, well behaved young woman obeying all the laws of society. Later she portrays while under hypnotic influence, the part of a hateful, impossible woman who overrides every social law.

For many a day a considerable number have yearned for a real show as "she is spoken." Their hearts will be gratified on Tuesday night when the Siegel Stock Co. will play the great Cohan comedy, "It Pays To Advertise." This stock company comes highly recommended and its members have much ability as actors and actresses. While "It Pays To Advertise" is a comedy, it takes professionals to play it right as the production calls for clever work in every act. The comedy is not created by vulgarity, the humor being of a rich class that is food for thought. A treat of two hours is in store for Tuesday night. Members of the company will introduce specialties between acts. Subject to numerous requests there will be a reserved seat starting Monday. Besides the real show, there will be a reel show—Mae Murray in "Modern Love." As the ingenue of a traveling stock company, Mae is constantly in temptation but withstands thru sheer goodness. When the company is stalled in a small town the leading man attempts to force his loathsome attentions. She escapes the intents of the leading man, but she cannot escape the barbed lashes of gossip. To fully appreciate her trials and her final victory you must see the picture.

The diminutive Sherley Mason comes Wednesday night in "The Rescuing Angel." Sherley is made love to by two suitors, both of whom have money, and a girlhood flame who has no money and very little brains. When she turns the youthful idol down for one of the men with money, he sees only one reason: that she is marrying the man for his wealth. It's a good theory, and a little flattering to the boy, but it's all wrong William. After the ceremony the rejected youngster tells the millionaire that his millions have come between Sherley and her true love, and that self-made man, who never fell for any trick of an opponent, swallowed it without a single grain of salt! Men are funny, aren't they? Be sure and see what happened then. As an added attraction for the same evening there is a Mack Sennett entitled "The Foolish Age" said to be a jolly one. There is a show of merit on Thursday night.

Almost anyone will tell you it is not a deuced hard job to get arrested, but in "Peppy Polly," the Friday night picture, Dorothy Gish had an entirely different experience. She finally had to break the show window of a jewelry store with a brick and take out two watches in order to attract enough attention to be put in jail. Then, something else peculiar about "Peppy Polly": there is no villain in it. For once there is no dark haired, squint-eyed backguard to grit his teeth and make faces at the heroine.

"In His Debt," Saturday night, Sessue Hayakawa, the great Oriental screen star is seen as a Japanese gambling den operator, whose boast is that he always pays his debts, whether material or moral. Brought face to face with the issue of revenge on the man who attempted to kill him versus a debt of gratitude to the girl who saved his life, he spares the man in order that the girl may find happiness. As Goro Moriyama, Hayakawa has a powerful role, that of a cold blooded, relentless Nipponese whose philosophy of life is "an eye for an eye." The play
