

Dr. Mendelsohn
Specialist
in Eyesight

Can be seen at his office 211-212 Oregon Building (formerly the Hubbard building). One third of a century practical experience—9 years practice in Salem. My years of experience and the satisfactory service I have rendered to thousands of Marion and Polk county people assures you competent and lasting relief in all your eyesight troubles.

In every trade, profession or branch of work there are found a few men who, from special fitness or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce.

Therefore, you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work, the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skillfully done. The mechanical part, the making and adjusting of your glasses, is no less important.

I am making a specialty of correcting children's eyes. MY PRICES ARE VERY REASONABLE for the material and service you will receive and I guarantee satisfaction in every respect. Office hours from 9 to 12 a. m.—1 to 5 p. m. Sundays and evenings by special appointment.

DON'T SHOCK HER AT ALL

Old Lady Rather Expressed Satisfaction With Bernard Shaw's Particular Naughty Play.

The London Herald tells a story—and what's more, guarantees its accuracy—of the comfortable old lady who was the original of Bernard Shaw's comfortable old ladies in "Fanny's First Play" and "Misalliance."

"Mr. Shaw was a great friend of the family, and it was once his custom when he had completed a new play, to take it down to the house in which they lived and read it to the specially assembled company. On one occasion the manuscript which he took with him was that of 'Mrs. Warren's Profession.' He read it aloud. Of course, it was listened to with rapt attention. And when the reading was over, the comfortable old lady rose, smoothed out her dress and, beaming on Mr. Shaw, said: 'Thank you, dear. That's very nice.'

The old lady, it would seem, was not Mrs. Grundy.—E. E. Slosson, in the Independent (N. Y.).

THE BENEFIT OF AN ENLISTMENT IN THE U. S. ARMY

Though the benefits are wide and varied, they might all be classed under the three main, before-named heads: the physical development, intellectual expansion, and moral uplift. In conclusion—before the man is trained to be a soldier, he is trained to be a man.

THIRD
(By WINONA WOOD)

A young man wishing to fit himself for the higher things in life, qualifying himself to take his station in the world's work and do a man's part, is better mentally, morally, and physically if he has served at least four years in the army.

Educationally, he is given every chance to finish his public and high school work, then if he is fitted he has the different trades to pick from. It is simply up to him, if he has it in him and wills to work there is no limit to his success, but if he shows an inclination to shirk he will drift along as in public life.

Mentally—it is up to him to do his best and if he is made of that sterner stuff that it requires to reach the higher stations he will win.

Morally—the army is strict and long lectures to the men upon the care and protection against the vices and ills of life.

Physically—the drills and exercises they have straighten the body, making them carry them-gives as is necessary for good health, thus they acquire a mode of carriage which distinguishes them wherever seen, and proper carriage is at least half the education. Physical torture, as some call it, which they are compelled to take, teaches correct breathing, walking and sleeping and all things essential to perfect the body.

Medical Attention:—The army has exerted every effort in selecting the best physicians for the care of the soldiers.

Travel:—The advantage they have to travel should receive close consideration. They have a choice of most any country in the world or can be stationed in any state in the Union. They are taught the language of the selected country and many strange customs.

Investment:—A man after serving twenty or more years is retired with a pension proportioned according to rank. Besides this the investment is good because they are furnished clothes, food, medical attention, and traveling expense.

Thus we have a better man, mentally, morally, and physically. He is provided far better than his parents could provide for him in most cases. He is given all these educational advantages and a chance to see the world. Besides receiving good pay he receives training which will build up a fine character and is better qualified to take his station in life and be a man.
