Sam Kozer learned the trade under Olcott.

A week hence some good Republican will be running for President.

The steel trust made an enormous sum out of the war which the people must pay. It is simply a dream to imagine that the people would do anything but pay it.

Several members of the last legislature who carried water for big business during the sessions will be missing next year, but it is to be taken for granted that there will be others to take their places.

Wallace McCamant, one of the Republican delegates to the Chicago convention, tho instructed for Johnson proposes to vote for Wood. It is such betrayals of the people that breed radicalism of the sort that make men of McCamant's kind see red.

The big fight at the Democratic convention will be over the league of nations issue. Dr. Wilson prescribes that it be taken straight and there are others, particularly Mr. Bryan, who thinks that the sacred document should be amended or revised that American interests be more fully protected. Mr. Wilson may win out at the Democratic convention, but the league of nations covenant as it is written will never be adopted by the American people.

THE RHYMING SUMMARIST

John D. failed to furnish gas,
(Tho we think that John was schneiding),
So it's been up to Jake and Jane
To cut the auto riding;
But there is no use of snedding tears
Or spend the time in sobbin',
When gas is out
Just get about
And harness up old Dobbin.

In days gone by that we recall
Dob and Doll were handy,
Any where one wished to go
Everything went dandy;
So if Hank Ford had ne'er been born
To give to man the notion,
A span of bays
Or team of greys
Would keep the world in motion.

A few years hence the automobile
Can't be used for flying,
So it will have to be set aside
And airplanes we'll be buying;
Then they, too, will sell for junk,
Say in eighty two and seven,
So its time
To stop this rhyme
And leave us all in heaven.

O Willamette, My Willamette

(By Everett Rosecrans)
From the Cascades mighty high lands

Thru the vales that lie below
Rolls the river of the valley
With its cool deep onward flow
O Willamette, my Willamette!
Roll thy beauty to the sea
Past the years on years are fleeing
Yet they leave no trace on thee.

There are rivers far more mighty
Thunder on in froth and foam;
There are rivers far more famous
River of my chosen home.
O Willamette, my Willamette,
As thy stately waters roll
Rivers far more great are flowing,
But thy prize is greatest—soul.

Leaping thru the mountain gorges
Where lies nature wild and free—
Winding stately thru the valley—
Thou art e'er the same to me.
O Willamette, my Willamette!
River of my thought and themes;
Flow in splendor onward, onward,
River of my fondest dreams.

Off above thy mighty cliff walk
Have I stood in thought alone,
Musing on thy liquid beauty
And thy banks of rugged stone.
O Willamette, my Willamette!
Roll forever on and on
To the marriage of thy waters
With thy mate the Oregon.

There I've stood and viewed thy valley
As the Red Man did of yore;
Know I that I vanish also,
As those races gone before.
O Willamette, my Willamette!
Men and nations come and go;
Perish we, but thou forever
Rollest on thy ceaseless flow.

From thy depths has inspiration
Blazed its way into my soul;
Thru me thoughts my tongue can't utter,
Surge as deep thy waters roll.
O Willamette, my Willamette!
As you taught me you will teach
Thruout all the generations
All the hearts thy spell may reach.
Onward! Onward! lovely river
May the world thy beauty see;
May men feel thy urge of action,
May they feel thy poetry;
O Willamette, my Willamette!
This my hope and this my prayer—
May men feel thy inspiration
As they see you rolling there.

Make Room for Paddock

Mr. Taft has announced that he will not attend the republican national convention at Chicago, which, by the way, will make a lot of room for the other fellows.

Proper Time

(Louisville Courier-Journal)
His friends say that at the proper time William Hohenzollern will be heard. The proper time will be when St. Peter blandly inquires: "What on earth caused you to believe you could get in?"
