Perhaps Senator Chamberlain is campaigning in a Ford so he can get somewhere.

The required thirty six states have ratified the equal suffrage constitutional amendment and women get the ballot the country over. Those old hard boils who stood out against them to the bitter end might as well commence to look for their hats.

Those opposed to the Non-Partisan League entering Oregon are having a most dreadful mixed up time in getting it started. A few weeks ago it was told that agents of the League, disguised as peddlers, were sneaking around to the back doors of the farmers' homes and getting the eighteen per with great success. Next, it was announced that the League would begin its campaign for a place in the sun this Fall and various men over the state had been delegated to meet and start things. No meeting has been called that we know of. Then, just the other day, a newspaper man took a swing around the circle and found the woods full of Leaguers. Even in Polk county he said it was going strong. If there are any members in this section at the present time, its promoters are the slickest gum shoes that ever sneaked. We know of no members, never heard any one say he had been invited to join or even had subscribed for the League paper. Verily, a mysterious state of affairs. Its here, but nobody can put a finger on it.

THE RHYMING SUMMARIST

Twice one day the police bell rang
And since the town's not tainted,
The first call did not faze the cop,
But on the second call he fainted;
Many have gone to the seashore now,
They want no blistered noses,
But over there
Do beware,
The crabs will bite your toses.

Its a little cooler now and then,
And here we quote a lady
Who has enjoyed the burning heat,
Its no other one but Sadie:
"Hot days I wear a'lounging dress
Or a pair of netted trousers,
Mosquito bar,
Sox ajar,
Or any cold air rousers."

Farmers have their harvest done,
They've sweated thru the labor,
Pretty soon they can loaf in town
Or high-low-jack a neighbor;
The call of the hop is coming strong,
We'll quote a guy in stopping:
"The women and kids
Can do its bids,
I'm too fat for hopping."
