RELATIVE TO USED CARS There has gradually been developing a new feeling regarding used cars. For years, most used cars were looked upon almost as a plague, but during recent months our sales of the better and standard makes of used cars have been almost exclusively to the keenest type of buyers—men of wealth as well as business acumen—men who know motor car values when confronted with them—men who value and enjoy the pride of possession not one whit the less, because they have saved the first big item of depreciation, while they have remaining the real intrinsic value—the thousands and thousands of miles of reliable and satisfactory service.

Our stock has been most carefully and service.

Our stock has been most carefully and thoughtfully selected. We have, for months, accepted only here and there a car of real merit and exceptional value from the great number offered us in trade, and all of these have been repaired and refinished if required.

We feel that any prospective purchaser of a motor car or light delivery job will be impressed by even a casual examination, while a close inspection will convince him that from our stock he may select a high grade car at a price in keeping with his sound business judgment.
