A GLANCE OVER THE BATTLEFIELD

Since the time has elapsed since the fateful second of November to look over the battlefield and give a definite statement regarding the results, just now many are engaged in buying the dead, a customary habit, but bearing in mind that it has been the common practice for some of the political corpses to come back to life, will not engage in any burial rites, but merely give results which can be expressed in fourteen words—SENATOR GEO. CHAMBERLAIN whose defeat for re-election was a serious blow to the state of Oregon.

The sorrid clatter of the New York Ghetto. A little had there, hugging an old violin. A mother, her soul aching, watching, giving, dreaming, as the hard years pass. A radiant girl, waiting, at last, fame! Wealth—The applause of countless, crowding thousands for to his own of them all. "One might, a grade three concert to the East Side. And he played it in "Humoresque" they cried. And he played it in farwell—played it with breaking heart—then small-fung his career and his wondrous art away. Some called him "Fool!" Not all. You'll know why when you see the end. It blends the sium and the avenue, the din and the music, the sorrow and smiles of life in a happy melody. A story that tries to hide its laughter and laughs to hide its tears. More pathetic than "The Music Master"; more fun than "Potash and Perlmutter." Star—ALMA RUBENS.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY, NOV. 15-16 CONSTANCE BINNEY in "THE STOLEN KISS." Imagine a beautiful little girl, with vivid coloring, sparkling French accent, and a riotous imagination, who had never even talked with other boys and girls. Then one day, while peering over the garden wall of her cloistered home, she came plump into the radiant presence of the boy of her dreams. The thrilling kiss which followed was a perfectly logical outcome, but it brought banishment for the girl and years of distracted search by the boy. Fate, which separated them, brought them together at last. The years between, with the happy climax, furnish the delightful story based on Lucille Van Slyke's novel. Protect the Birds One of the most valuable assets of our nation is its native birds. Too much cannot be said or written in their favor. Destroy them and in a few years the injurious insects will have multiplied to such an extent that trees will be denuded of their foliage, plants and crops cannot be produced. There are more than 1,500 species of our native birds, and millions of individuals. As a result of the extermination of more than 50,000 stomachs of birds, they established beyond a reasonable doubt that birds are of economic value, first in eating harmful insects, their eggs and larvae. Second, in eating the seeds of noxious weeds. Third, in devouring field mice and other small rodents that injure the crops, and fourth, in acting as scavengers. While the economic value of birds should be kept in mind the esthetic value should also be considered. Man does not live by bread alone. We should protect them for their graceful forms, their charming beauty, their delightful melody and their joyous activity.—Thrill Magazine.

"That accident is one of the best things that ever happened to me. It has taught me, you see, to appreciate my thumb. I never knew before how valuable it was. Why, sir, I have already found out that there are 376 things for which I use my thumb every day without giving it a single grateful thought. Here, I open this knife for me. Thanks, that makes 377."—Washington Star.

Jonathan Bourne, Jr., head of the Republican Publicity association, said at a dinner, apropos of a political misfortune: "We learn from our misfortunes that we should be, like Mr. Bangs, 'I busted my thumb with a hammer yesterday,' said Mr. Bangs. 'What a misfortune!' said his friend Bangs. 'That accident is one of the best things that ever happened to me. It has taught me, you see, to appreciate my thumb. I never knew before how valuable it was. Why, sir, I have already found out that there are 376 things for which I use my thumb every day without giving it a single grateful thought. Here, I open this knife for me. Thanks, that makes 377.'—Washington Star.
