

Heard Winifred Byrd

Among those who attended the concert by Winifred Byrd at the Grand Theatre in Salem Friday night Nov. 11 were Miss Gretchen Kreamer and her guest Mrs. Beulah Bovington and Mrs. Clyde Ecker.

Miss Byrd, a Salem girl, is now national famous and is considered Oregon's musical whirlwind. She is such a mere slip of a girl one wonders from whence comes her physical strength as the fiery sparks almost emerge from the piano keys. New York critics declare her one of America's foremost pianists.

DEVELOP RESOURCES, STATE CHAMBER'S AIM

Expansion Movement Now in Progress Will Allow Broader Activities.

What does Oregon need? What—if it were possible to name the chief factor—does it most need in order to develop with a maximum of success?

The question is impossible to answer. There is no "chief factor." The solution lies not in one particular need, but many.

Oregon today, facing an era of development unparalleled in its history, must fill these needs if it expects to go ahead.

Of the many factors that must be employed if the state is to progress immigration and colonization stand pre-eminent in order to solve the vital problem of land settlement.

Irrigation, reclamation of land and drainage must be developed as another method of bringing about the solution of this problem. Farm labor must be brought in. Homeseekers who in turn become food producers, must be encouraged and made to see the possibilities that await them in the great northwest.

Good roads must be built. As the vast tracts of wilderness with their billions of feet of timber are converted into lumber, highways must be provided over which commerce can be carried and the scenic beauties of the State viewed by the tourist.

Among other needs are industrial expansion, railroad extension and water power development.

Advertising and publicity must be carried on if Oregon is to be made known as a country for the homeseeker where Opportunity beckons. Its scenic beauties must be advertised to attract the stream of golden dollars from tourists and pleasure seekers. Other states, most of them with fewer advantages to attract, are realizing millions each year from tourists—because they realize the value of advertising and making public what advantages they possess.

Oregon must develop its water transportation, its mineral lakes, its ports and reach out for foreign trade and it must develop the state to produce the exports which are to go down to the sea in ships. It must expand its educational facilities as an additional advantage to hold out to the homeseeker with children to educate.

The Oregon State Chamber of Commerce is the most logical agency to carry on this development work simply because a state organization of this nature can work for the mutual good of all communities in the state without favoring any particular one.

To Salem Theatre Goers

It is my privilege to announce the presentation of Victor Herbert's musical comedy "Angel Face" at the Grand Theatre Tuesday, November 22nd, with the original New York-Chicago cast, headed by Madgeite Zender, Nat Carr and Nora Kelly and an unparalleled cast of supporting musical comedy favorites. Angel Face will prove to be the best of this season's musical attractions and it is presented here with our unqualified endorsement. The seats will be placed on sale at the box office next Monday morning. Mail orders now.

OREGON PLAYGROUND FOR TOURISTS AIM OF STATE CHAMBER

Switzerland used to be the poorest country, per capita, in the world. Now it is the richest. Tourist travel did it.

Main and Colorado each receive $50,000,000 per year from their tourists; Florida gets $250,000,000; California, half a billion a year. Oregon gets $6,000,000.

A three year's advertising campaign by the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce may be expected to bring in at least one-half of what Main and Colorado get, or $25,000,000, which should increase on a rising scale.

STATE CHAMBER SEEKS TO DOUBLE POPULATION ON FARMS IN 3 YEARS

Oregon has water resources to irrigate 4,000,000 acres of land now unproductive, and which would support in comfort, 200,000 new population, or about 40,000 new families.

If in its three year's campaign to put families on Oregon's vacant land, the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce can bring 1,000 families to utilize this land and water, it will mean in expenditures alone for such commodities as clothing, food, furniture, etc., of $1,000,000, calculating the expenditures for an entire family at only $1000 per year, to say nothing of the wealth produced by these new settlers.

Land settlement is one of the chief aims of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce program in its movement to aid in the development of the State.

Oregon has 16,000,000 acres of tillable land now uncultivated. Oregon produced 20,400,000 bushels of wheat in 1919.

If Oregon's 16,000,000 acres of tillable but uncultivated land were planted in wheat and the yield were the Oregon average for ten years—21.9 bushels per acre—new production would be 350,400,000 bushels which, at the price today of $3 per bushel, would mean a cash value of $1,051,200,000.

The Oregon State Chamber of Commerce expects to double the number of farmers in three years. If this means double the wheat crop, it will mean an additional yield of 20,400,000 bushels of wheat, which at the prevailing price would mean a cash value in new money of $61,200,000.
