Testing Pearls.

Two professors in physics at London university, England, are conducting exhaustive tests, on behalf of the Daily Mail, with a view to finding a possible difference between ordinary and Japanese pearls. A Japanese pearl is produced by inserting a seed pearl or mother of pearl into the liver of an oyster. Alfred E. Calvert, a fellow of the Chemical society, stated recently that the several specimens of Japanese pearls he possesses are identical in weight, color and luster with ordinary pearls, and they are produced by the oyster with the same materials and by the same process as the other variety.

SWEETHEARTS HOLDING HANDS IMITATE APES

Zoo Curator Asserts That Custom Harks Back to Days of Our Apish Grandfathers.

When did "holding hands" first become the custom in this romantic world of ours?

Poets will tell you at the "beginning of creation," biblical students will point back to the days of Adam and Eve; historians will link the custom up with Paris and the vampish Helen of Troy, or others with wreckers of history, but Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars of New York asserts it harks back to the days when our apish grandfathers chattered love amid the coconut branches of the unexplored jungles, long before Adam ever lost his spare rib or Paris rolled the little red apple. And he says he has proof of his assertions.

All of the monkey tribe at the Bronx Zoological park, "hold hands," Doctor Ditmars asserts. They do so by instinct, not imitation, and the clasping of hairy claws to indicate every emotion in the catalogue is as natural with them as their desire to eat and drink.

When the evasive "missing link" is eventually found, Doctor Ditmars declares, he will be discovered tightly grasping the paw of his mate and chattering such monkey gibberish in her ears as "don't be afraid. We're their ancestors, you know."

To establish the ape tribe as the real contributors of physical display of emotion, Doctor Ditmars, who is the curator of mammals and reptiles at the zoological garden in Bronx park, is making an intensive study of his charges there. He also is making a moving picture to convince the rank unbeliever that the gift of spooning is a heritage from his monkey ancestors.

"When sweethearts hold hands they are following an ape custom," Doctor Ditmars says. "Holding hands is one of the most pronounced characteristics of the ape and it is not entirely without the sphere of reasoning that we are following an ape custom when we hold hands."

"In all their monkey moods, in happiness or grief, sleeping, or waking, the apes hold hands," Doctor Ditmars says.

THIS CAT NURSES RAT

Mother Instinct Seems to Have Got the Better of Her.

Two small kittens and a young rat make the happy family of a fond mother cat at Enfield, N. C., according to J. T. Ethridge, who took a peep into the barrel which serves as the family home at I. D. Wood's store at Enfield.

The mother cat, according to Ethridge, found two kittens many days ago, and on the day after the kittens came caught a young rat and carried it to her barrel home. Evidently the mother instinct got the better of her or else the kittens and the rat developed a case of love at first sight, for the mother speedily changed her killing intentions and welcomed the rat into the freedom of the home.

Now she is nursing the rat and the two kittens, while the adopted member has developed into an affectionate youngster, playing with the mother cat and licking her fondly as do the young kittens. On top of that the new life appears to be agreeing with the rodent, as he has grown considerably since his adoption.

JAMES I. FOUNDED GOLF CLUB

Oldest Organization of Kind in England Boasts 300 Years Continuous Existence.

London.—The oldest golf club in the world, founded in 1608 by James I. of England and VI. of Scotland, is still used today at Blackheath, the home of the Royal Blackheath club.

This club was established 127 years before the Edinburgh Burgess Golfing society, and 146 years before even the Royal and Ancient club was formed.

The course at Blackheath today is similar to what it was when James and his cronies went there for exercise. The course consists of seven holes, which have to be played three times for a complete medal round. There are no awe-inspiring bunkers and the hazards consist of iron railings, lamp posts, nurse maids and children.

The clubhouse is a museum of historic treasures relating to the game, and there is a set of clubs 200 years old. In the collection is an iron club more than four feet long with a head as big as a two-handed battle axe.

Ancient traditions are maintained at club dinners, members wear their red coats, and there is betting on who will sneeze most when the old snuff box is passed about.

NONMETALLIC GEAR MATERIAL.

Up to a few years ago practically all noiseless gears were made from rawhide or hard fiber. Both of these materials are unsuitable for timing gears, because they swell and distort when immersed in oil. Recently a number of nonmetallic materials have been developed which have sufficiently high mechanical properties to permit of their use in toothed gearing and are nonsonorous and impervious to oil and alkalis. One of the latest of these materials contains two, basic elements, a phenol-formaldehyde condensation product and a fabric.

The material is as strong as cast iron, is not affected by moisture or oil, is of a high dielectric strength and is inert, insoluble and resistant to most acids.—Scientific American.
