CHANGING TIMES

The American people are making political history. The new Republican and the new Democrat is entirely different from the old politician of former days. Many old policies that stood as good law and desirable rules of government policy have been cast to the scrap heap by the common people. The initiative and referendum, the recall, woman's suffrage and the income tax, are among the laws that have become effective in different sections of this country and the people are clamoring for more of these so called reforms.

In former times we were taught that when this government was formed there were three branches of government named the legislative, judicial and executive. The senate and house of representatives represented the legislative branch. This branch of two parts was so arranged that one house, the representatives should be elected by the people direct every two years. The other, the senators, should be elected one third every two years by the legislatures. This was then explained to be so done because one house would act as a check on the other. Under that system a sudden national movement could not carry the people away and cause unjust and unwise changes to be made in our system of government or in our laws.

Now we have adopted the election of the U. S. senators by a direct vote of the people and so another of our old constitutional landmarks has been shattered to atoms and destroyed.

But yet, considering the length of time in which the constitution has been in effect but few changes have been made in our organic law.

The most that has been needed is the correction of our judicial departments. The miscarriage of justice, the allowance of too liberal a construction to trust and corporation laws and the allowing of too much money and too much power in the hands of a few.

Changing of times will probably change these conditions. The constitution says we are all created equal. We all have the right of suffrage; the right of free speech; the right to any position which we can attain. The people are demanding more rights every day and they are getting these rights just as fast as they make their demand strong enough. It is not the system that is so wrong. It is the application of the system and the slowness of the great mass of the people, but these things seem to be changing.

THE REAL BOY

School is now over and the real boy is making the best of his vacation. He is working part of the time at something that will make him better able to cope with the labor of the future. While every growing boy needs his share of play and pleasure, he needs also his share of work. Under the newer system of education, the boy should have his garden and should know how and when and what to plant. This industrial education should not stop with the vacation school days. It should continue. The labor will be worth the time and the real boy will take pride in the results of his experiments in the garden.

There is a difference between the common liar and the professional one. One lies for pleasure, the other for profit sometimes.

TYPE OF SHELTER STATION TO BE USED ON THE PORTLAND, EUGENE & EASTERN

For the accommodation of farming communities and villages, where maintenance of permanent agents would not be justified by business secured by the company, the Portland, Eugene & Eastern Railway will at once begin the erection of shelter stations, the plans calling for commodious, comfortable and attractive buildings. These shelters are a combination of baggage and waiting rooms and are 12 by 18 feet in dimensions. They will have 5-foot extension roofs, will be lighted by electricity and will be surrounded by a platform of disintegrated granite 12 feet wide and 80 feet in length.

Shelters of the same character, but without the baggage room, will be built at less important stops along the new interurban system.

All the new stations will be so constructed from an architectural standpoint as to be a credit to the small towns where they are located. More commodious depots will be erected as the business of the various communities is developed.

POST OFFICE HAS GROWTH

Eleven Years of Steady Growth Shown

SECOND CLASS NEXT YEAR

M. Merwin had Office Since November 1, 1902 and is Well Pleased with Fine Showing Made

At the time M. Merwin took charge of the post office in Independence, Nov. 1, 1902, the office paid a salary of $1100 with an income from the sales of stamps, etc., of $2200. Every year since that date the office has increased its business. For seven years he has experienced an increase in salary and one year his total business lacked just $346 of giving him an increase.

This year the aggregate income of the office is almost $7000 and as a result after July 1st, the office will pay $1800.

If the year commencing July 1st, 1913, closes as well as the year closing at the end of this month, this office will be advanced to the position of a second class office.

At any rate the growth from $2200 and a salary of $1100 to almost $7000 and a salary of $1800 is worth mentioning and shows a steady, progressive, prosperous business for Independence.
