Independence, Oregon, Friday, November 13, 1914

Mark this prophecy. Governor-elect Whitman of New York will be the republican candidate for president in 1916.

The state could replenish its treasury and make a reduction in taxes if an admission price be charged to see its lady legislator.

In view of Congressman Hawley's vote getting proclivities, it looks to us that he is the proper man for the republicans to harness up for a heat against Senator Chamberlain six years hence.

Although nearly all the proposed amendments were rejected by a large vote, Painless Parker's bill made a good race. If the gentleman, who can extract teeth minus the customary "ouch", will remodel his bill so that it will be a trifle more particular as to qualifications required, the next time it will go thru with a whoop.

Samuel G. Blythe is "writing the war" from the battlegrounds of the conflict and he says in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post:

"I am as keenly sensitive to the honor of my country and the maintenance of that honor as any American. I am as jealous of her rights and as zealous of her name as any other. My tendency has been to be a modified sort of jingo; but I am for peace now—peace, unless there is actual assault, actual invasion. I have heard myriad orators declaim on the glories of my country and boast of her prowess. I have listened to hundreds of we-can-lick-all-creation shouts—and I believe we can—but I am firmly convinced it is our part never to try."

Wise admonition. Give the United States an adequate navy to protect her interests at home, let her avoid entangling alliances with all nations and attend strictly to her own business. Then while others may war and kill, she can live in peace.

NOTABLES IN THE LIMELIGHT

Prince Rupert of Bavaria,
German General.

Crown Prince Rupert, future king of Bavaria if he outlives the present war, is commander of the Sixth German army corps in the movement to capture the French coast west of Belgium. He is a bitter foe of the English, whom he denounced in a recent army order. Early in the war he was in command of the forces in Lorraine, but later his army was sent to bolster up the right wing. He has been complimented by the Kaiser for his work in the campaign against the French on the German left wing.

Entering the army at the age of seventeen, Prince Rupert, who is now forty-five, has been steadily advanced in rank until at the outbreak of hostilities he was colonel general of Bavarian infantry and inspector general of the fourth inspection district. Besides being a trained soldier, he is a connoisseur of music and art and also holds a degree of doctor of laws from Berlin university. In 1903 Rupert and his wife made a tour of the world which included the United States. They landed in San Francisco, coming from Japan, and crossed the continent to New York. Their presence was not generally known until after they had gone home as a famous couple was very ill while in America. She died in 1912. She was the daughter of the celebrated Bavarian oculist, Duke Theodore. Her sister is the queen of the Belgians, whose husband's domains have suffered so terribly at the hands of the Kaiser's soldiers. Prince Rupert was not forced to take a hand in the battles against King Albert, but has since had opportunity to prove his mettle.

Ruler of England's Navy. Winston Spencer Churchill, England's first lord of the admiralty, is by many regarded as the ablest member of the British cabinet. He is the son of the late Lord Randolph Churchill, who married Miss Jennie Jerome of New York in 1874, so the navy lord has as much American as English blood in his veins. He entered the army at the age of twenty, saw service in India and was with the Nile expeditionary force in 1898 and was present at the battle of Khartoum. Later he saw service in South Africa in the Boer war.

He was first elected to the house of commons as a Conservative in 1900, but has been a Liberal minister for Winston Spencer Churchill, nearly nine years. Since 1911 he has been first lord of the admiralty and has proved himself an active and powerful as well as sanguine and far-seeing statesman. America he knows well, as he has visited this country several times.

It is said of Churchill that he is a natural fighting man. He is a cousin of the present Duke of Marlborough, who married Consuelo Vanderbilt of New York, and until the birth of the latter's sons was the heir to the dukedom. Despite his genius, Winston Churchill has never been popular personally by reason, it is said, of his unceremonious temper and superior bearing toward his fellows. He is now about forty years of age.
