

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Polk County, Depart No. 2.
Alice A. Stufflebean, Plaintiff
vs.
Charles G. Stufflebean, Defendant.

To Charles G. Stufflebean, the above named defendant.

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON: You are hereby required to answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled Court and suit within six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: (a) on or before the 22nd day of July, 1916; and if you fail to answer the said complaint for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to said Court for the relief in said complaint demanded, to-wit: For a decree dissolving the marriage contract now existing between you and the plaintiff; that the care, custody and control of the minor children therein named, Lewis H., Jessie V. and Anna E. Stufflebean, be awarded to the plaintiff; for her costs and disbursements in said suit and for such further and other relief as to equity seemeth just.

This summons, by order of the Hon. H. H. Belt, Judge of the above entitled court, made and dated at Ch. m. on the 7th day of June, 1916, at the City of Dallas, Oregon, is served upon you by the public taker thereof for a period of six consecutive weeks immediately prior to the 22nd day of July, 1916, in the Independence Monitor, a newspaper of general weekly circulation and published at Independence in Polk County, Oregon. The date of the first publication of this summons is June 9, 1916, and the date of the last publication will be July 21, 1916.

B. F. SWOPE,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, in and for the County of Polk, Department No. 2.

Rachel B. Miller Plaintiff.

vs.
Charles F. Miller Defendant.

To Charles F. Miller, defendant above named:

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled court and suit on or before six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: on or before the 21st day of July, 1916, that being the date of the first publication of said summons herein, and if you fail to answer, for want thereof, the plaintiff will take a decree against you for all and singular the relief prayed for in plaintiff's complaint, and particularly a decree forever annulling and dissolving the marriage contract now and heretofore existing between plaintiff and defendant, and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just and equitable.

This summons is published in the Independence Monitor, a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in Independence, Polk County, Oregon, by order of the Honorable Circuit Court above named dated June 5th, 1916, once each week for six consecutive and successive weeks, the first publication thereof being in the issue of said newspaper dated June 9th, 1916, and the last publication thereof being in the issue of said newspaper dated July 21st, 1916.

Miss Hazel Tupper of Salem was the guest of Miss Bernice Wells over Sunday.

Miss Clara Schneider has returned to Portland, where she is attending business college, after spending a week visiting at G. A. McLaughlin's.

The Hopville and Buena Vista Sunday Schools gave their annual picnic at Sloper Bros. last Saturday. A very good literary program was given which followed by an interesting address by Rev. W. C. Stewart of Independence. At noon a big picnic dinner was enjoyed by the large crowd present. After dinner there were sports of various kinds including foot races, sack races, high jumps and basketball games. Music was furnished during the day by the Buena Vista band.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

San Francisco's Natural Harbor. San Francisco has the advantage of a natural deep water harbor. The bay of San Francisco is one of the few very great harbors of the world. Of those otherwise so situated as to be perhaps comparable only with the harbors of Sydney and Rio Janeiro. There are seaports whose commerce enormously, for the time being, exceeds that of San Francisco, but for the most part their harbors are very costly works of art. The Lord never made them.

Harbors can be made anywhere on a seacoast with money enough, and where the situation of the country demands a harbor where none naturally is the man made harbor has to serve the purpose, and it really does very well.

But such harbors require continual tailoring, and as the city grows more land must be dug out, and the money is often hard to get. Happy is the commercial people which is so fortunate as to live by one of the great natural harbors of the world.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Electric Current. One of the simplest electrical devices known to the average person is the incandescent electric lamp. According to the Electrical Experimenter, if we could obtain a sufficient number of these lamps of the twenty watt size and string them along a wire line from the earth to the moon, the lamps being fifteen inches apart, the amount of current necessary to light them would then represent the amount of power generated by all the dynamos in the United States, which in their entirety have an output of about 20,350,000,000 watts per hour.

For another illustration we might stretch a line of two conductors fifteen times around the earth and place on this 1,000 watt lamps 100 feet apart. The power required to light this stupendous line would also represent the electrical energy produced by these ever humming dynamos.

Ways of the Burman. The Burmese are a fascinating people. Unlike the native of India, a Burman can laugh and enjoy a joke. I have seen a native of India smile. I have never seen one laugh. Whereas the whole idea of the Burmese, as a race, would appear to be to enjoy themselves and make the best of a short life and try to make it a happy one. The men are sportsmen, and if they are lucky enough to make money they spend it. Their chief amusements are horse, or rather pony, racing, cock-fighting and gambling, and they will back their fancy with their last coin. On the other hand, they are lazy and indolent and as soldiers or policemen utterly untrustworthy, but brave and fearless of death.—From "And That Reminds Me."

Value of a Name. "What's in a name?" asked the man who indulges in quotations. "That question," replied Mr. Cumrox, "shows your unfamiliarity with art. It is evident that you never paid the extra charge for the signature on an oil painting."—Washington Star.

A Reunion

By BARBARA PHIPPS

I was a very little girl at the time, but a great sorrow or a great happiness will impress itself on the mind of a very young child so strongly that it will never be forgotten. Mother died, and my brother Jimmie was taken away by a lady, while I was placed in an orphan asylum.

However, this lugubrious beginning was the harbinger of a life of ease and comfort. In time I was adopted by a wealthy couple and treated as affectionately, as much lavished upon me, as if I had been their real daughter. I was given a liberal education and as many accomplishments as I had a fitness for. Then I was "brought out" in the most approved fashion and entered society as a young lady.

One summer a girl friend of mine, the daughter of Major Shelbourne of the army, invited me to visit her at her father's post in what was then Indian country. I had seen enough of society to tell me of its hollowness, insincerity, selfishness and bargain and sale in the matter of favor, and it occurred to me that I would find something more satisfying in one of those army posts that had been described to me as constituting a large family. I went to Fort Tomkins and found things very much as they had been described to me.

One day several of the younger officers and the daughters of the older ones went on a picnic. I learned before starting that the major commanding objected to our going, but I did not hear why. I learned soon enough, to my cost. The Indians had for some time been very unruly, and while we were leaving the fort they were leaving their reservation, murdering and pillaging as they proceeded.

We had gone to a stream at the foot of a mountain range wooded on its banks and, entering a spot well shaded, had partaken of our luncheon when a soldier rode up and told us that he had been sent to inform us of the Indian situation and that we must return immediately. But before we could collect our paraphernalia and get into the mule wagon that had brought us one of the party saw several Indians riding hard to cut us off.

The major had sent six mounted men with us for our protection. There were three lieutenants and the man who had come to warn us. The officers held a quick consultation and decided to ascend a ravine in the mountain where we could better defend ourselves and not attempt at once to reach the fort. The ravine lay but a short distance on the other side of the stream, which we crossed in the wagon and were soon in a position where we could hide behind rocks, which also furnished a defense from which to fire.

I shall only speak of our defense by a few brave men against several times their number of Indians so far as to show that the soldiers fought skillfully and with sufficient knowledge of Indian warfare to keep the savages at bay. One of the men being severely wounded, I took up his carbine and, climbing to a rock higher up and at the side, where I saw Indians trying to get around us, endeavored to pick them off. I was followed by one of the privates, who told me that I should take more care to conceal my person or I would be hit. I didn't ask him why he had come to help me, supposing that he saw the danger of being taken in the rear as I had seen it.

We two kept widening the distance between us and our party, because the Indians kept eddying to the side in an effort to get past us to our rear. Then suddenly we saw an Indian between us and our friends.

I saw by the expression on the soldier's face that we were in terrible danger. He swept his eye about us for a position of defense and found one in a crevice between two rocks where we could not be attacked except from the front. Another rock formed a rampart before a part of the space into which we retreated. My companion told me to crouch down behind this rock. I refused till he told me that I could shoot from there, and at the same time he took a position beside me.

It seemed half a day—it may have been an hour—that we defended ourselves from the Indians who endeavored to kill or capture us. My companion laid low a number of them. I fired at several, but hit only one—that is, so far as I know. After awhile we saw across the level plain a troop of cavalry coming from the fort, and the Indians scurried away.

My life had been saved by the private who had followed me. Together we returned to the party, and he received the thanks of the officers for what he had done.

Well, as soon as we returned to the camp I made inquiries concerning my deliverer. The major sent for him, saying to him when he arrived that I desired to thank him for having saved my life. I did the thanking and, believing that my foster father would send him a substantial present, asked him his name.

"James Waterhouse," he replied.

"Have you a middle name?" I asked.

"I don't know. I came out of an orphan asylum, and they called me Jim Waterhouse."

"You are my brother," I said and, coming toward him, put my arms about him.

"Are you my sister Adella?"

"I am."

My foster father took Jimmie out of the army and gave him a place in his counting house.

AS GOOD AS A CHEW OF "SPEAR HEAD"

That Means the Supreme Degree of Rich, Luscious Tobacco Flavor

NO OTHER CHEW EQUALS IT

Nature varies the flavor she puts into the different grades of tobacco leaf—and the best of all is the flavor of choice red Burley that passes you so mightily when you chew Spear Head. The delicious fruity flavor of a chew of Spear Head is a revelation to the man who has never chewed or who has been chewing near-good tobacco.

For chewing is the one way to get all the wholesome, healthful, appetizing flavor of the tobacco leaf—providing you chew a high-grade plug like Spear Head.

No other tobacco can compare with Spear Head in the wholesome satisfaction it gives.

You get more savory sweetness in a chew of Spear Head than in a whole plug of ordinary tobacco.

And you get it in its purest form—for Spear Head is made amid the most wholesome surroundings, in a great, new factory that's kept absolutely clean and sanitary.

Try this rich, mellow, satisfying, pure chew. Such a chew cannot be obtained in any other tobacco than Spear Head. In 10c cuts, wrapped in wax paper.

No Room for Argument

If you are worried in trying to choose and buy the right kind of lighting fixture, you are not alone. It is a real headache to many of us. You know that you are very, very tired when you are trying to choose a lighting fixture. You know that you are very, very tired when you are trying to choose a lighting fixture. You know that you are very, very tired when you are trying to choose a lighting fixture.
