

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Polk County, Depart. No. 2. Alice A. Stufflebean, Plaintiff vs. Charles G. Stufflebean, Defendant To Charles G. Stufflebean, the above named defendant.

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON: You are hereby required to answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled Court and Suit within six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: On or before the 22nd. day of July, 1916; and if you fail to answer the said complaint for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to said Court for the relief in said complaint demanded, to-wit: For a decree dissolving the marriage contract now existing between you and the plaintiff; that the care, custody and control of the minor children therein named, Lewis H., Jessie V. and Nina E. Stufflebean, be awarded to the plaintiff; for her costs and disbursements in said suit and for such further and other relief as to equity seemeth just.

This summons, by order of the Hon. H. H. Belt, Judge of the above entitled court, made and dated at Chambers on the 7th. day of June, 1916, at the City of Dallas, Oregon, is served upon you by the publication thereof for a period of six consecutive weeks immediately prior to the 22nd. day of July, 1916, in the Independence Monitor, a newspaper of general weekly circulation and published at Independence in Polk County, Oregon. The date of the first publication of this summons is June 9, 1916, and the date of the last publication will be July 21, 1916.

B. F. SWOPE, Attorney for Plaintiff.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon in and for the County of Polk, Department No. 2. Rachel B. Miller, Plaintiff.

vs. Charles F. Miller Defendant. To Charles F. Miller, defendant above named:

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled court and suit on or before six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: on or before the 21st day of July, 1916, that being the date of the last publication of said summons herein, and if you fail to so answer, for want thereof, the plaintiff will take a decree against you for all and singular the relief prayed for in plaintiff's complaint, and particularly a decree forever annulling and dissolving the marriage contract now and heretofore existing between plaintiff and defendant, and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just and equitable.

This summons is published in the Independence Monitor, a newspaper of general circulation, printed and published in Independence, Polk County, Oregon, by order of the Honorable Circuit Court above named dated June 5th, 1916, once each week for six consecutive and successive weeks, the first publication thereof being in the issue of said newspaper dated June 9th, 1916, and the last publication thereof being in the issue of said newspaper dated July 21st, 1916.

WALTER L. TOOZE, Jr. Attorney for the Plaintiff.

CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN
F. Claude Stephens, Pastor
Service for Lord's Day, July 16.
Bible School at 10 a. m.
Owing to the absence of the pastor, there will be no preaching this Sunday.

METHODIST
W. C. STEWART, Pastor.

Summer has come at last, with all of its discouragements and wonderful encouragements. This is the hard time of the year for our pastors when our people are gone on their vacations or else purposely vacating themselves from the services of the church. The empty pews are not the most inspiring things in the world, so we do pray that all people who are not away on their vacations will please see to it that they do take the places of those who are gone.

Sunday School 10 A. M.
The pastor will preach at 11.
Topic, "What is it to be a Christian. The world's answer." The pastor will begin a series of sermons on Sunday morning on this central theme.

Popular Service at 8 P. M.
We launched the ship last Sunday evening and next Sunday evening we will "Be out on the deep." Such hymns as "Jesus Savior Pilot Me", "I'll For the Shore", "Throw Out the Life Line" and "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning" will be sung. Whittier's poem "The Three Bells" will be read. You will find the First Methodist a very good place at which to attend church.

BAPTIST
W. S. STEWART, Pastor.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Catarrh being generally influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Cure that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES
Suit Case That Collapses When Not in Use.

Women on shopping expeditions frequently carry suit cases in which to take home the various small articles they may purchase. In order to overcome the bother of the suit case when it is not in service a woman inventor has designed one which collapses, and when there is no demand for its services it is folded up and carried flat under the arm like a book. The receptacle, with all its sides, top and bottom, is in one piece, but provision is made for locking the edges together so that when it is properly stored up the dress suit case is a substantial receptacle suitable for all ordinary uses.

Gooseberry Shortcake

Make a very sweet gooseberry sauce for the filling. For the pastry use one generous pint of flour, two even teaspoonsful of baking powder, one egg, one cupful of milk, one tablespoonful of sugar, one-half cupful of butter and one-half cupful of sugar. Beat the dry ingredients together, beat the egg thoroughly and add the milk and the melted butter then into this stir the dry ingredients. Pour into a layer cake tin and bake. Remove from the oven and while still warm, split the cake, and butter each layer. Just before serving place one layer of the cake on a deep plate, cover with a thick layer of the gooseberry sauce, place the second layer on top of this and pour over all the remainder of the sauce. Serve immediately, with or without cream, as desired.

Cleaning Laze

The kind of laze that is too delicate to be washed in the usual way can be cleaned in this way. Make a strong suds of some good soap and allow the laze to remain in it for several hours at least, although it is well to shake it out occasionally. A wide mouthed bottle is most convenient to handle. When the laze is thoroughly soaked let the soapy water out of the bottle and keep adding clean water until the soap has all been removed from the laze. Do not handle the laze at all, shaking the bottle will clean it thoroughly. If the laze is narrow wind it around a bottle that has been covered with a piece of soft flannel and do not remove it until it is dry.

Value of a Name

"What's in a name?" asked the man who indulges in quotations.
"That question," replied Mr. Cumrox, "shows your unfamiliarity with art. It is evident that you never paid the extra charge for the signature on an oil painting."—Washington Star.

A Way Around An Obstruction
By ESTHER VANDEVEER

A young man called at the office of Jenkins & Jenkins, attorneys, and was shown into the private room of the senior partner.

"Ah, Mr. Quimby," said the lawyer, laying aside some papers on his desk and turning his revolving chair sideways, "please be seated."

The young man took a chair beside the desk. The lawyer continued:

"I have sent for you, Mr. Quimby, to ask your assistance in a very important matter which concerns clients of mine. A gentleman is very ill and desires to see his daughter married, believing he will not recover. The young lady's heart is set on a certain man. Misadvisedly modesty prevents her proposing to the young man, and he has not proposed to her. Meanwhile her father is urging her to marry before he dies. The young lady has appealed to me to find some way out of her difficulty. I have suggested that she marry some one who it is to be understood will part from her immediately after the ceremony and who will agree to a divorce as soon as her father dies. The family is wealthy and will pay liberally for the loan of a husband. Would you consider an offer?"

The young man thought before making a reply, but finally said:

"I myself have set my heart on a certain girl. She is or will be wealthy, and, strange to say, her father is very ill, the same as in the case you mention. Unfortunately I have nothing except a small salary. If I could get a thousand or two in this way I would be emboldened to propose to the girl I love, but I don't know whether she would have me. However, I would not be any worse off than I am now if she refused me."

"You would be $10,000 better off," said Mr. Jenkins.

"Ten thousand?"

"I am authorized to offer you that sum."

Mr. Quimby debated with himself whether or not to accept the offer. What deterred him was that he feared the girl he wanted would not marry a divorced man. Mr. Jenkins said that of course that was a matter in which he had no concern and Mr. Quimby must decide it for himself. Mr. Quimby said that he would take the matter into consideration, but the lawyer objected, saying that, owing to the fact that the father of his client was very low and possibly his life might be saved by the settlement of the matter troubling him, an early answer was desired. He offered $20,000 if Mr. Quimby would give an immediate consent. This settled the matter, and the lawyer handed the young man a contract to read.

"This is not signed by the lady," said Mr. Quimby after having perused the document.

"I will bring her here, and she will sign it in your and my presence."

"Very well," replied Quimby, "but there is one thing I should like to have put in the contract—that no one except the bride, her father and her attorney shall know of this marriage. I prefer to make it known to the lady I wish eventually to marry at such time as I may select."

"Certainly," replied Mr. Jenkins, and he added the clause to Mr. Quimby's satisfaction.

The lady was phoned for, and while she was on her way the groom to be asked the lawyer when the wedding would take place. Mr. Jenkins gave him to understand that he could talk that matter over with the young lady when she arrived. Mr. Quimby was evidently much wrought upon by the plunge he was about to make and walked the floor nervously. Presently the door was thrown open and an office boy announced a lady. He was directed to show her in. A few minutes elapsed, during which Mr. Quimby kept his eyes fixed on the door anxiously. Then a young girl entered, blushing and smiling.

"Agnes!" cried the young man in astonishment.

"Yes, Tom—Agnes."

"Oh, Agnes, I was intending to do this to make a ruse to offer myself to you not temporarily, but for good!"

"Why did you intend to take all this trouble? If you wanted me, why didn't you tell me so?"

"But it seems that you want another fellow."

"He hasn't asked me."

Agnes was smiling, and a grin over spread the face of the attorney. Tom Quimby began to understand.

"Well, then, Agnes," he said, seizing the contract and tearing it into bits. "I'm yours if you want me."

"How about the girl you were to marry after the divorce?" she asked, looking at him archly.

"Since you are the girl there's no need of bringing up that matter."

"My friends," interposed the attorney, "I have other matters requiring my attention, and I don't see that I can be of any further service to you. I give you this room for a conference, however, and you will doubtless succeed in conducting the rest of the case yourselves."

After a brief interview the young couple drove to the lady's home, and she took her fiancé up to the sickroom. A clergyman was called, and the twin were made one by the invalid's presence. The dying man did not dream that he was under obligations to the vicinity of a lawyer to do away with the superfluity of his daughter and her lover for seeing her married before his demise.

PLUG CHEWING A WHOLESOME HABIT

In No Other Way Can You Get All the Richness and Flavor of the Leaf

"SPEAR HEAD" BEST CHEW

Many prominent physicians declare chewing to be the most wholesome way of enjoying tobacco.

"I began chewing some years ago," said one, "and I soon found that it is the only way to get the benefit of all the rich juices stored up by nature in the tobacco leaf. I refer, of course, to the plug form of tobacco, which is the most natural and the cleanest form."

"Chewing good tobacco like Spear Head makes the salivary glands more active, which in turn has a beneficial effect on the whole system. Add to this the sweet, mellow, delicious flavor of a chew of Spear Head, and you have the highest possible degree of tobacco satisfaction."

"I mention Spear Head because I have found that this brand is exceptionally pure, being made in a factory that's run strictly according to pure-food laws."

Spear Head is made of sun-ripened Burley, which is acknowledged to be the richest, mildest, finest flavored tobacco leaf in the world. And it is produced by the latest processes, which develop the quality and luscious flavor of the choice Burley to the supreme degree.

A chew of Spear Head has a wholesome relish that is not found in any other chewing tobacco. In 10c cuts, wrapped in wax paper.
