Mark Weatherford is the most able and aggressive candidate ever nominated for congress in the First district. Between him and the present representative, Mr. Hawley, there is no comparison. In one term, Mr. Weatherford would be an asset to Oregon and of much value to the people he represents. Despite his long tenure of office, Mr. Hawley has not advanced in power or influence. The First district deserves better representation in congress. It can get it by voting Mr. Hawley out and voting Mr. Weatherford in.

F. E. Davis is a consistent advertiser and he gets results.--Dallas Itemizer.

The Monitor has some evidence to bear out the above. Two parties, living in this section, have frequently called at this office to look at Mr. Davis' ad in the Itemizer.

Mr. Davis as an advertiser is an excellent model for other merchants to pattern after because many of them do not advertise long enough or in the right way to find out that it pays them.

JUST A CORRECTION

A MAIDEN who lived in Cohoes
Went out on a yacht for a cruise.
But the water was green.
Was so wide and so green
That it gave her a fit of the blues.

THIS maiden who lives in Cohoes
Read the above, then her anger arose.
She said, "This poor man,
Who writes all he can,
Of pronunciation how little he knows!"

May the brave boys of the Deutschland get back home.

Christy Mathewson
by Walt Mason

When Christy's dead a hundred years, the fans will still discuss his play, and sigh, while shedding briny tears, "There are no men like him today! He used the brains behind his brow, and gave the foe a grievous jar; the chroniclers have told us how he was for years and years a star. Great pitchers came and cut some grass, and died, and then forgotten were; he saw them come, and saw them pass, and still kicked up a mighty stir." The chroniclers will also tell how Christy, when a game was played, filled up the pipe he loved so well, to soothe his nerves, all tired and frayed. He smoked Tuxedo every time, the critic's smoke, the mild and rare, Tuxedo fragrant and sublime, the cool, sweet smoke beyond compare.

MADISON.

Madison Defeats Pinckney Decisively In 1808.

THE Democratic Republicans nominated James Madison of Virginia in 1808. His running mate was George Clinton of New York. The Republican ticket that year was C. C. Pinckney of South Carolina and Rufus King of New York. The election took place on Nov. 8, and the vote, as counted on Feb. 6, 1809, was: Madison, 122; Pinckney, 47.

In the election of 1812 Madison, renominated by the Republicans, defeated DeWitt Clinton of New York by a vote of 128 to 89. Nominations were made by a caucus, and Clinton refused to be bound, and the Federalists decided to support George Clinton.

GENERAL CADORNA

treasures are hidden for safe keeping in the early days of the war. But in many instances the Austrians have taken everything away with them.

The work of the art department in Venice has given that city the aspect of a much hampered football player. All of its monuments have been carefully protected against the stray shells of Austrian aeroplanes. It is estimated that no less than 100,000 sacks full of sand have been placed around the finest buildings and monuments. By actual count 20,000 such bags protect the basilica of St. Mark's. In addition, so extensively have wooden supports been put about certain buildings that many of them, such as the ducal palace, seem to have been rebuilt. Because of the peculiar construction of the ducal palace it was feared that a single shell striking a given building might result in the collapse of the entire structure and the loss to the world of a priceless example of architecture. Bags of sand could not be used because their weight might cause the buildings to fall or sink. It was necessary to erect a full set of brick or wooden arches to catch the real ones should they be moved by the shock of a shell.

In an interview with a correspondent Lieutenant Ojetti told of his work and said that the war, instead of killing the artistic spirit, would make the art treasures of the old world more loved than ever.

"Within ten years," he said, "I look for the development of a new epoch in both art and literature not only in Europe, but in the United States. I expect to see the world developing a manly literature embodying both human and eternal elements. Mankind will have come to a simpler and more profound way of thinking. Our old art treasures will be cherished because humanity will have a need of rest from worry over material matters, and objects of fine art are the consolation of a tired spirit. All art movements in history have originated in unhappy social conditions, in the need of mental refuge from material earth to earth weariness.

"The new art period will be one of classic simplicity, with a vast amount of architectural profusion and solemn and impressive monumental sculpture but with little painting.

"In literature the knell of the nervous, wimpy, sentimental, weeping willow class of writing has been sounded. People in every condition of life have learned to suffer courageous life and look with contempt on weakness with tears. Within the next decade or two the world will produce Virgils—a literature very clear, very easily read, calm in spirit, sober and truly profound."

SAVING ART WORK

Italian Army Has Special Department For This Purpose.

FEATURE IN PRESENT WAR.

Organized by General Cadorna, This Division Protects and Preserves Treasures in Fighting Areas, Not Only in Italian Territory, but in Places Taken From Austrians.

Headquarters of the Italian Army.—A department of fine arts is one of the features of the Italian army. It is attached to the general staff, and it has proved to be such a highly important feature in modern warfare that adoption of it was expressed by General Joffre and the late Lord Kitchener on their visits to Italy.

This art department was organized by General Cadorna, commander in chief of the Italian armies, primarily to protect and preserve the art treasures in the fighting areas, not only in Italian territory, but in places taken from the Austrians. Ugo Ojetti, an art critic of international reputation, who has long been officially identified with Italian art and architecture, was appointed the head of the department just a year ago, since when time valued millions of dollars' worth of art treasures have been taken in charge.

The art department is kept fully informed regarding any new advance on the part of the Italian army, and it frequently acts under artillery fire. Once the Austrian troops have been definitely dislodged the department conducts a thorough search for art objects and takes complete charge of those that the Austrians have left behind. The search often leads into graveyard tombs and into Catholic churches where the

EDITORIAL

This week, The Pill Box becomes No. 27. This event is eventful because for three weeks it has been No. 26 and we deem it rather meritorious that the Pill Box, despite the hot weather of the present, can generate enough energy to move forward. While at No. 26, The Pill Box made many friends, whom we hope will continue to be our friends, wherever we may wander.
