HOUSTON APPEALS TO NATION FOR BIG CROPS

Intensive Cultivation Greatest Aid Farmers Can Render Country.

Washington. — Secretary Houston again appealed to the country to make every effort to raise adequate food crops this year not only for the United States' needs, but to meet the requirements of the entente.

"The importance to the nation of a generous food supply for the coming year cannot be overemphasized in view of the economic problems which may arise as a result of the entrance of the United States into the war," said the secretary. "Every effort should be made to produce more crops than are needed for our own requirements.

"Many millions of people across the seas as well as our own people must rely in large part upon the products of our fields and ranges. This situation will continue to exist even though hostilities should end unexpectedly soon since European production cannot be restored immediately to its normal basis.

"It is obvious that the greatest and most important service that is required of our agriculture under existing conditions is an enlarged production of the staple food crops. Because of the shortage of such crops practically throughout the world there is no risk in the near future of excessive production, such as sometimes has resulted in unremunerative prices to producers. This is particularly true of the cereals and of peas, beans, cowpeas, soy beans and buckwheat."

BRITAIN NEEDS 5,000 AMERICAN FARMERS

Sir Arthur Lee Says This Will Combat Germany's Plan of Starvation.

London. — "Five thousand skilled American farmers on English soil would go a long way toward combating Germany's plan to starve us into submission through her submarines," Sir Arthur Lee, head of the newly formed food production department, told an American newspaper correspondent. "I told you recently," Sir Arthur continued, "that we intended to bring from America some 2,000 tractor plows for right plowing. We need the skilled American farmers to supplement them."

Sir Arthur knows America. He married an American, Miss Ruth Moore, daughter of J. G. Moore of New York, and he has spent many years in the United States, having been British military attaché with the United States army during the Spanish-American war and later military attaché at the British embassy in Washington. He has seen service in the present war. His present post is an outgrowth of the intensified submarine warfare begun on Feb. 1. Sir Arthur is charged with the gigantic task of making every available foot of soil produce its maximum amount of food.

"I have great respect for the ability of the American farmer," said Sir Arthur. "I have seen him at work, and I know that everything he does spells efficiency. That's why we would like to have so many of him in the present crisis.

"Your farmer has revolutionized farming methods. Like the American in all other walks of life, he is continually on the lookout for a more efficient way in which to do things. The result is that he has the most modern agricultural implements in the world. With these and his natural bent for industry he gets the most out of his soil."
