In spite of the unfavorable conditions, the dry weather of last fall and the lack of rain thru the bearing season this summer, E. R. ### AMERICAN WOMEN MAY STARVE BUT NOT OUT OF STYLE

It is suggested that to conserve clothing and give the factories a chance to make such things as are needed for war purposes, that women wear their dresses as long as they are decent. While this would not be very long under the present style which is somewhat of the kilt variety, it is still a good and sensible suggestion. However it will not be followed, for a woman out of style is a woman out of the world. The American women can be depended upon to make any sacrifice necessary to the winning of the war except standing for any interference with their dress. Hunger and deprivation will be borne cheerfully but if the American women must eat little and not very often, she can be depended on to have that little served with some kind of color scheme and flowers on the table along with napkins. She draws the line at being out of style. She may wear cheap stuffs in her gown, but they will have to be cut right and draped as Dame Fashion directs.—Salem Capital Journal.

THE BIRTH OF A NATION

A kind of artistic achievement easy for the film, but impossible for the "indoor drama" is illustrated by the Ford's theatre scene in "The Birth of a Nation"

The old fashioned drama has long attempted to represent a stage within a stage, and some of such representations have been rather realistic.

But in the film scene showing the assassination of President Lincoln, one sees not only the complete stage of Ford's theatre in April 1865 but also the auditorium of the theatre, the audience and the historical figures in the boxes.

Laura Keene is playing "Our American Cousin", assisted by E. A. Sothorn in the role of Lord Dundreary. They are startled out of their mimic parts by the shot that Wilkes Booth fired. The audience has risen to its feet as the shot is heard and cranes forward in a semi-panic to gaze at the great statesman whose head has fallen back in the stage box and at the assassin Booth who is leaping from the box to the stage and whose spur catches in the box drapery as he jumps, causing him to break his leg. This sort of historical realism has never been achieved before. It is part of what is meant by the so-called "new art" for which D. W. Griffith is responsible.

Spectators gaze at the scene with fascinated horror. It is too terrible, too awesome for applause, yet not a spectator but feels that in this impressive rendition Mr. Griffith has surpassed the greatest previous art achievements of the film drama.

This is but one of the 5000 scenes of this world's famous spectacle, which will be shown matinee at 2:30 and evening at 8, at the Isis on Sunday, July 22.

A splendid three hour, specially adapted musical score, played by the organization's own director accompanies the production.

The matinee prices are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. Evening 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children.

HIGH HEELS SAFE.

Worse Than U Boots, Says Legislator, but Senate Says No.

Springfield, Ill.—Women's high heels are safe.

Brutal death was administered to James H. Kirby's bill by the senate. It sought to limit the height of heels on women's shoes to 1 1/2 inches. The quelling clause was stricken out, and, to make the assassination all the more audacious, the senate resolved itself into committee of the whole and gave five minutes to the Menard county farmer to talk for the measure. He declared high heels are causing "more damnation than the German submarine."

He Cannot Read His Tombstone When He's Dead

If with pleasure you are viewing any work a man is doing;
If you like him or you love him, tell him now;
Don't withhold your approbation till the parson makes oration,
And he lies with snowy lilies o'er his brow;
For no matter how you shout it, he won't really care about it;
He won't know how many teardrops you have shed;
If you think some praise is due him, now's the time to slip it to him,
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.
More than fame and more than money is the comment kind and sunny
And the hearty, warm approval of a friend;
For it gives to life a savor, and it makes you stronger, braver,
And it gives you heart and spirit to the end;
If he earns your praise—bestow it; if you like him, let him know it;
Let the words of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over and he's underneath the clover,
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.
—The Yeoman Shield.

Many Blossoms on Twig.
Tupelo, Kau.—If all the twigs on an apple tree on the farm of George H. Kreider, near Lyndon, had as many blossoms as one twig had, and if every blossom became an apple, the tree would have supplied an apple a day for several thousand persons. The "freak twig" has put forth half a dozen blossoms instead of the customary one. Kreider declares it a "freak of nature" and states that in all his experience as a fruit raiser he never before saw so many blossoms on a twig.
