THE RHYMING SUMMARIST

The soothing tones of ukulele heard
Makes the cup of joy complete,
Some pretty girl is playing it,
Over the street. And no more the lads music's famed.
Artiste is the keying,
And it's an elf.
Soft, not rough.
When pictures we are seeing,
The other night the picture was
A poor girl and her lover,
Though he was worth sixty empty cents.
He didn't feel above her;
They were happy, too, it seems.
For months after wedding
And didn't fight
Or pro at night,
They kept their love from spreading.

"It reminds me very much."
We quote these words from Sadie,
"Of a charming friend of mine
Who is a married lady,
Her hubby says she wore off cards.
And his example broke her,
But wouldn't fight.
And when the honey moon's wore off,
They even swipe the covers;
What Sadie says may all be true,
We learn to hate her.
At an early date
We're sure she'd mate
If Lee would only ask her.

GREAT WAR FILM AT ISIS TUESDAY

A LETTER FROM FRANCE

Somewhere in France.
Dec. 11, 1917

Dear Mrs. Sweeny:

I received your Xmas box and sincerely thank you and the boys who sent it. I received it at the signal station, and your wonderul letter cheered all the boys to whom I read it. I gave most of the cigarettes away so I do not smoke very often and the boys to whom I gave them are eager to write to you and to Miss Frances. I have been in France for six months now and have not met any of the boys in the same group that I know. I hope that some of them are over here. My brother Raymond is in France with the Aviation Corps but I cannot locate him. We are doing our best to keep Germany and I am sure we will do it. But there is so much to write as I am not, and would not, I could, refer to any military affairs. So I will close, thanking you for the presents and all of that heavy, cheerful letter. May I not hear from another one soon? From one of your many Soldier boys.

R. H. Dixon,

This box left Toledo, Oregon, Nov. 4, 1917, and reached France the First of December.
