

YOU COOK YOUR FOOD—WHY NOT YOUR TOBACCO?

YOU know what broiling does to steak, baking to a potato—and toasting to bread.

In each case flavor is brought out by cooking—by "toasting."

So you can imagine how toasting improves the flavor of the Burley tobacco used in the Lucky Strike Cigarette.

WHAT AN OREGON REPUBLICAN HAS TO LIVE DOWN.

Brother Brodie of the Oregon City Enterprise reminds his readers that Ben Olcott is popular with the Democrats. That ought to boost Olcott's nomination chances, as there are very few hide bound Republicans left and the numerical strength of the Republican registration is mainly of the independent broad-minded, wibbly wabbly type whose admiration for a Republican candidate is largely based on his ability to live down any Republican reputation he ever might have had in them dear old days that are gone never to return, thanks be.—Oregon Voter.

A COMMON CHAP.

He was only a common sort of chap, and he lived in a hum-drum way. He acquitted himself either well, or ill, as his duties he faced each day. He wasn't a devil, he wasn't a saint; he was neither a fool nor sage, and the open book of his daily life held scarce an unusual page. But he left his work in his country's need, and we said goodbye one day; when the nation echoed with tramping feet, he quietly slipped away. He did his duty like any man or felt in it shame nor pride. It was only a line that was sent to us, to tell us that he had died. Though there may be nothing to mark his grave, there's a halo about his head; for he took his place, when his time had come, in the ranks of the honored dead. And we raise our eyes to thank our God—eyes that with tears are dim—that the nation had in her time of need a million men like him. —Robert Strother.

GRIEVED HUSBAND HOPING THAT WIFE WILL RETURN

Clinging to the belief that his wife still lives and is hiding with the man for whom she left her home and children last September, despite the tale of an empty boat on Tillamook bay and the purported note telling of being swept out to sea. W. A. Graham of Dallas, Ore., continues his search through letters and photographs sent over the country in the hope that he may find her.

It is the old story of the trusting friend invited to the home, meeting his wife, young and pretty, the mother of two infant daughters, the husband occupied with his business—then the tragedy.

Tuesday night, Emma Louise, was killed when the Oregon hotel bus was overturned in a collision with another automobile. The younger daughter, Pauline, 2 years old, is at the hospital with a deep gash in the head. They were en route to Hood River with their aunt for a visit with relatives.

Believing that his wife was the victim of circumstances, perhaps, over which she had no control, and anxious to have her return and be taken care of by him, the husband told the story to The Journal last night.

"It is not with the intention of telling my troubles to the world," he said, "but with the thought that perhaps she may learn through the papers of her daughter's death and return, or perhaps my story will reach the ears of someone who can give me information as to her whereabouts."

Two weeks after she met E. R. Viers, 24, a rancher living near Dallas, Mrs. Graham left her home with him, September 9. They were traced to Brighton on the coast through their identification by a government inspector three days after the elopement. At the time, the woman was dressed in a khaki suit, high walking boots and was wearing a number of diamond rings and earrings. She is described as dark complexioned, with black hair and eyes, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighing about 125 pounds. Viers wore a dark flannel shirt, khaki trousers and gray silk cap, and walks with a cane through lameness.

Thursday of the same week they rented a cottage from a fisherman by the name of Bibby at Barview. Saturday they appeared again at Brighton, were rowed across the bay and started on foot for Seaside, the woman carrying a bundle of personal effects. Near Eccola they were picked up by Boylen, a stage driver, and taken to Seaside. Later the husband's trail found them at Astoria about September 15, where the woman purchased a pair of shoes from the Brown Shoe company, Albert Grimberg, a shoe clerk, identifying photographs of the pair through the contrast between the woman's khaki suit and her diamonds.

A man named Haskins, formerly a resident of Newberg, now traveling with a medicine show in Colorado, figures with the pair. At the time of their stop in Barview he was managing a dance hall there, and rumors say he aided the couple in getting away from the latter place. Shortly after he left Barview one night, and Graham's efforts to find him have proved futile, as it is thought Haskins could throw some light on their disappearance.

From Astoria trace is lost, and it is thought by the husband that they have gone south to California or Southern Oregon and are hiding.

The body of the daughter will be taken to Dallas for burial.—Portland Journal.

Some Grievance!

The railroad official invited the stern citizen to communicate his troubles. "I want you to give orders," demanded the visitor, "that the engineer of the express which passes through Elm Grove at about 11:55 be restrained from blowing his whistle on Sunday mornings." "Impossible!" exploded the official. "What prompts you to make such a ridiculous request?" "Well, you see," explained the citizen, in an undertone, "our pastor preaches until he hears the whistle blow, and that confounded express was 20 minutes late last Sunday."—Lamb.

It is 200 times higher than Mt. Tabor.

In an air line it is the same distance from Portland as is Salem, the state capital.

In bulk Mt. Hood is nearly 40 times greater than Pike's Peak, which probably is the best-known of American peaks, so far as the populous East is concerned. Pike's Peak is 14,147 feet high, measured from sea level, but it rises only 8,000 feet above the level of the plains and only 4,000 feet above the mountain plateau upon which it rests. Mt. Hood rises 11,140 feet above the Columbia River at Hood River, and 9,900 feet above the valley floors close to the mountain.

Mt. Hood is 11,225 feet high and is 50 miles from Portland. Its height equals 43 city blocks.
