GENERAL FOCH.

Three years ago King George of England visited the front and conferred the highest military distinction in the form of an order within the gift of the British crown—the Grand Cross of the Order of Bath—on two Frenchmen; Joffre and Foch. Immediately the question was raised "Who is Foch?"

America, not mindful of the King's act is today asking the same question. We all know he has been placed in command of the allied troops but what has he done before this?

General Joffre says that Ferdinand Foch is "the greatest strategist in Europe and the humblest."

Foch is the one who at the Marne perceived that there must be a gap between the Prussian guard and the Saxon army and he gathered enough artillery to crush the guard in the St. Gend marshes and force a retreat.

At Ypres, he was the commander who was in general control of the allied troops making the successful fight that prevented the Germans from breaking through to Calais.

Before the war he was director of the war college, where he had much to do with shaping the military views of many of the men who are now commanding units of the French armies. He has studied and re-studied the plans and campaigns of Napoleon and Caesar. He makes it a plan to know his officers and his men. He gets into personal touch with all from the private to the highest in rank. He is a writer of no mean ability, his two great books, "Principals of War" and "Conduct of War" are highly regarded by military men. The organ of the German general staff ranks him as one of the few strategists of first class ability among the allies.

In stature he is a slim man, with a great deal of nervous energy in his actions. In action, though graceful, he is quick and decisive. In temperament he is somewhat Napoleonic, the dramatic in war is for him—secrecy and suddenness, gigantic and daring movements. Although they were both born within a few miles of each other in Southern France, Foch has more of the dash and nervousness and warmth of the Southern Latin than Joffre.—Wallows Sun.

E. C. KIRKPATRICK

The announcement appears this week of E. C. Kirkpatrick for com-

ty judge of Polk county. We believe our present judge is qualified for the office. We have known him and believe he deserves the consideration of the voters of every section of the county. We are not opposing other candidates nor have we a word to say against them. We do say, however, that there are several considerations to be taken in mind in electing a county judge. First he is qualified; second, he is honest and then above all he is patriotic and public spirited. Respecting qualifications there are two matters to be considered: First there is the probate side of the work, wherein it requires a legal mind and good judgement to keep and maintain the estates and other court matters in good order; second, there is the administrative department, wherein a man must know values, know road building, know bridge building and all the other requirements of that nature. He makes the levis of the taxes and it is through his efforts mainly that your county's finances are handled. If he is a business man, with a sense of justice and fairness and does his duty, he should be elected. From our knowledge we say that it is our opinion that Mr. Kirkpatrick is qualified.

B. F. JONES

The editor of the Monitor has known Mr. Jones for many years. His acquaintance first dated back to the time when Independence was being discriminated against by one of our larger cities, as were other towns of the valley. He was energetic, active and loyal and came out in the open and called a spade a spade and did much good in helping to bring Polk county to the front. We therefore claim him as our candidate as well as Lincoln county claims him for theirs. We do not believe there will be opposition to B. F. Jones and it is right that there should not be. He is capable and efficient and has a large acquaintance and plenty of experience and will represent this district as representative in a fair and creditable manner. We say support him.

Service Flag Unveiling.

Members of Lyon Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Independence Chapter R. A. M. and Adah Chapter, O. E. S., are requested to attend the unveiling of the service flag next Monday evening, April 22, at the Masonic hall.

While the service will not be a public one, it is desired that the members of these bodies invite such personal friends as they wish to attend the service. A program will be presented and Dr. Dunsmore will deliver the dedicatory address.

"PROTECT OUR SOLDIERS WITH LIBERTY BONDS"

Message of United States Senator McNary to People of Oregon

Money is needed to support and protect our soldiers now fighting in a foreign land and the prompt purchase by the American people of Liberty Bonds will supply the funds. Much of the money heretofore obtained by the government through the sale of Liberty Bonds to its citizens has been expended in the preparation of war. Now our resources and our savings must be devoted to a considerable extent in providing for the safety, comfort and assistance of our heroes on European battlefields. Three thousand miles of ocean intervene and this long lane must be made safe for our soldiers. Ships we must have in ever increasing numbers. Without tonnage the full measure of our elaborate and military relief organizations must remain inoperative. Without money we cannot build the ships; without the ships we cannot win the war. With address we anticipate the return of thousands of our soldiers wounded and crippled who must be rehabilitated or made capable through vocational education for self support. General hospitals in which physical reconstruction work and vocational training can be undertaken must be constructed. This requires money. A great army is going forward to face the fire of battle and American dollars will be forthcoming for their welfare if we all perform our duty and buy liberally of these Liberty Bonds.

CHAS. L. McNARY,
United States Senator.

THREE SONS ON THE TUSCANIA

San Francisco Woman Gave Country Three Soldiers--One Lost With Torpedoed Transport.

TWO SONS SENT TO FRENCH FRONT

Mrs. Louise Moore of 139 First avenue, San Francisco, knows the meaning of war. In the front window of her home a service flag shows three stars. These of her sons answered the call to colors. And when the Tuscania was torpedoed, with the loss of more than one hundred American lives, her eldest son, William Moore, made the great sacrifice for his country. On the rocky coast of Ireland he lies buried in the grave which enfolds others of his comrades in arms. The other two sons of Mrs. Moore, who were also on the Tuscania, are listed among those saved. The joy over their safety has been tempered only by the grief which followed the word of William's passing. "I told those boys I was sorry that there was occasion to go to war," said Mrs. Moore, smiling through the anguish that was her portion in the days following the Tuscania disaster. "But I told them also," she added with a triumphant smile, "that if our country was worth living in and enjoying when things were going along smoothly, it was certainly worth fighting for when it was in trouble."

That is the spirit of American motherhood in these days of trial and sacrifice. "Our country has not asked much of its young people in the way of sacrifice," said Mrs. Moore. "Things have been fairly easy for most of the boys and girls of this generation. Now it is their time to show how they have appreciated all that has been given to them."

Mrs. Moore has two other sons, one of draft age, and the other old enough to enlist but not old enough to be drafted. "Now they're crazy to go," said the brave little mother whose service flag already has one haloed star. "Do you know the last thing the three boys did before they left?" she asked with motherly pride. "They all bought Liberty Bonds, and said they would leave the rest of that work to us. Now we know what we can do." Private William Moore and his brothers have left a message for the star-at-home in America to heed. "The rest of you buy Liberty Bonds—that can be your work."

Have you planned to buy your next one, now that the Third Liberty Loan is called for?

THREE MEALS COST $14,000

Feeding 43,500 troops at Camp Lewis, Seattle, three meals a day will cost the Government $14,000, and in the preparation of the meals 131 tons of food will be used. Money is needed to buy the food. That's why the Government will ask you soon to buy Liberty Bonds of the Third Liberty Loan.

Show Your Patriotism by Buying a

FORD AUTOMOBILE

In Place of a More Expensive Car

Take the Difference and Buy a Liberty Bond

A Ford will do anything the higher priced cars will do and at much less cost. The man who buys a high priced car is just as much a slacker as the man who will not buy a Liberty Bond, or contribute to the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. funds.

There is no one who can not get along with a Ford until after the war at least. Then if he sees fit can trade in his Ford at a very little depreciation towards a higher priced car, which will itself cost much less after the war. You will then have the use of the Ford car during this time, and the Liberty Bond, together with its interest, will more than buy this more elaborate car, and you will, in the meantime have helped your Government win the war.
