

GREATNESS.

The roads to greatness are still open. The avenues to human preferment have never closed; no obstruction is there today that has not always existed.

Wisdom, zeal, courage, perseverance, knowledge, are some of the traits of character that push one to the front. But above all things it takes industry to make advancement.

We must begin young. Time must not be wasted; it is too precious to those who expect to succeed. Idleness must not be tolerated. The men who reach notoriety are busy men.

There will be great men yet, but they will be workers. God pity the man who has time to spare; on whose hands the days drag; who has to invent ways in which to amuse themselves.

Water! The question, water! We must have water and where can we get it? There are several good water supplies but which is the best?

The Jacksonville pamphlet is nearing completion, will we tell the people in the East that we are working on a water system? If the matter is delayed until September it will be very hard to get water earlier than 1910.

The man who handles the local department of a newspaper learns after due experience not to expect even briefly expressed thanks from a column of pleasant things, but he knows as surely as cometh the winter that a single line in which there is an unintentional representation will cause some one to be heard from as if from a house top.

Bryan was cheered for one hour and 25 minutes, when his name was mentioned in the convention hall. Of course it is "follow the leader," because Roosevelt's name was made a scene of enthusiasm and Bryan came on second.

The Medford Mail has announced that every issue will be a booster issue. This sounds good. A few more good booster papers in this section is what is needed.

With three-fourths of last year's crop left the California vineyardists are organizing a campaign of education to counteract the injury done by the prohibition wave which swept over the country. Last year's output was 50,000,000 gallons of wine, and less than one-fourth of this amount was sold.

A forest fire started last Monday on the mountain near Trail Lumber Co.'s mill west of town, although it has been burning all week but little damage was done, the under brush is all cleared off and some snags felled by the fire.

for a few days, the inquisitive deer will investigate every nook and corner of the burned district.
