REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN IN OHIO OPENED SATURDAY

ditures, but he omits to give due credit to the Republican party for what has been accomplished regarding these important reforms.

In the state of New York, the Republican legislature in 1906 passed a statute prohibiting corporations from making political contributions directly or indirectly. And I know of no more drastic statute in the country with regard to the publicity of campaign contributions and for the prevention of corrupt practice than that passed in New York under Republican auspices. These are not promises of an opposition party seeking power but are enactments by a party in power. There should be federal legislation securing popular publicity of campaign contributions but it must fairly be recognized that the skirts of neither party have been clean.

Both parties demand revision of the tariff, but differ in principle and aim of such revision. The Republican party stands for the policy of protection and maintains a historic position in the defense of American standards of living and wages.

The Democratic party seeks, as Bryan construes the platform, to overthrow protection and establish revenue tariff the dislocation of trade and the most serious disturbance of industry. It seeks not tariff revision, but tariff revolution.

Again the magician of 1896 waves his wand. At its stroke difficulties disappear and complex problems of modern business are forgotten in the fascination of a simple panacea and, as the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 was to destroy the curse of gold, so the new-found species of equal protection is to remove the curse of industrial oppression.

The delusion of 1908 is comparable only to that of 12 years ago.

The plan proposed by the Democratic platform to provide for the guarantee of bank deposits is also open to serious objection. Mr. Taft promptly pointed out its weakness and Bryan has been unable effectively to answer his critic's plan. The plan proposed to meet the honest and prudent banks meet losses for which they are in no way responsible. If the plan is a good one for banks, why should it not be applied to insurance companies? They are chartered by the state and are subject to its full supervision. But what would be thought of a proposition to compel a well-managed and conservative life insurance company to make good losses sustained by those entered in other companies that become insolvent.

It may be added that a guarantee fund, if established on a scale sufficiently large to insure the required protection, would furnish difficulties both in regard to its investment and its availability in cases of emergency.

The Republican party has been solicitous of the rights of labor; it insures the re-nected employers' liability at the safety appliance act, the government employer's compensation act, the investigation of mine disasters and the legislation with respect to child labor in the District of Columbia.

Taft has exposed the disingenuousness of the plank in the Democratic platform that "injunctions should not be issued in any cases in which injunctions would not issue if no industrial disputes were involved" a Janus-faced proposal, meaning what you like. It profits little to the workman to be told that he will be given the right of a trial by jury in case he is guilty of contempt of court if those who promise it propose to enter upon a fatuous course or arbitrary interference with trade.

But while we freely criticize the opposing programs and candidacies, we as freely recognize that no party has a monopoly of patriotic motives or of sincere endeavor. We criticize each other without bitterness, realizing that in the contest of public discussion, we find the surest protection of our institutions.
