PATRONIZE HOME INSTITUTIONS

Thousands of dollars are sent away from this city annually for goods that could be purchased here at home.

The printing office suffers most. Your town is judged by the appearance of your paper. How many little jobs of printing are sent away to other cities, some out of the state? A few weeks ago a representative of a California printing house was in the city and his order book was proof that nearly $150. was sent away. Every item on his book could be printed in your city at the same price, and in some instances for a less figure than was asked by the California man. His work was not up-to-date but he got the work and collected the money, we lost the work and lost the money, we spend our money with onr merchants they spend their money elsewhere.—Nice, isn't it?

For Chapped Skin.

Chapped skin whether on the hands or face may be cured in one night by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It is also unequaled for sore nipples, burns and scalds. For sale by City Drug Store.

PATRONIZE CHICAGO

Mr. Barnum told a prominent citizen in this city last week that he intended to send to a mail order house in Chicago for a light wagon because he could get it cheaper. Of course he will need a few groceries and some clothing for his family and in order to save a little on the freight he will order what the family will need for the winter. The merchants here will not lose anything because this family does not trade here, they spend their money in Chicago or some other city. Medford will probably lose a little. Many items quoted in the Chicago catalogues can be bought in Roseburg for less money than the price quoted in the catalogue. The writer knows what he is talking about because he wrote to Montgomery-Ward Co. for a catalogue and compared the prices. It is possible that the same prices prevail in this city.

Very few standard articles appear in these catalogues and when they do quote a standard article it is cheaper than the local merchant can sell it for; but what they lose on this article is more than made up on cheap junk with a good coat of enamel to cover the defects in poor material. Of course it is anything to SAVE MONEY. Mr. Barnum may be around asking for your trade and you can ask him where he does his trading. Patronize those who patronize you and you will be doing an act of charity.

We sometimes hear a clergyman consoling a mother, distracted over the death of her darling child, by telling her that a mysterious Providence has taken it from her for wise reasons and that she must find comfort in her bereavement. What! Has God snatched from loving parents a beautiful child just blooming into youth? Does the Creator of harmony produce discord? Does the author of health and beauty smite his noblest work ere it is finished—a work into which He has endowed with aspirations and possibilities as high as heaven itself? It is libel upon Him, who has fashioned the human body so wonderfully and fearfully wrought, that it may withstand ravages of time for a century. God does not murder nor torture his children. He rather tries in a thousand ways to induce them to keep the laws of health, which if obeyed, would carry them to a ripe old age. He tries in every way to prolong life after we have forfeited every right to it and have become useless drones.

If you have made up your mind to live in a town, then stand up for it, and if you know positively no good, then silence it golden. Do all you can to help along every man who is engaged in legitimate business. Do not send away for everything nice you want and still expect the home man to keep a stock to suit the whim of one or two customers. The success of your fellow townsmen will be your success. No man liveth to himself and no man does business independently of his fellow business men. Take your home paper. Do not imagine the big dailies fill up all this space. There are many little crevices of a good cheer, social sunshine, personal mention, in the home paper that the big dailies do not print. Then do not abuse your neighbor. The main difference in the number of his faults and your own is that you see through a magnifying glass as a critic. The ill omened, the croaker, can do a town more harm in a minute than two good citizens can repair in a month.

Most merchants realize the value of attractive, original window displays in connection with their seasonable trade. The store window is at all times one of the most valuable store adjuncts and trade-getters that the merchants can make use of. All attractive window displays always draw the attention of the shopper, and if besides being attractive, it contains any suggestions, it is bound to sell the goods. If the merchant or any of his clerks, who may have more talent along this line, will devote a little earnest thought and time to getting up a series of attractive, suggestive and original displays, he will find that it will tend to materially swell his receipts.

It is said that three of the stingiest men in the state were in town yesterday. One of them will not drink as much water as he wants unless it be from another man's well. The second forbids any of his family from writing anything but a "small hand" as it is a waste of ink to make large letters. The third stops his clock at night in order to save wear and tear on the machinery. All of the decline to take their county paper on the ground that it is a terrible strain on their spectacles to read newspapers, even in the day time.

One of the fashionable sins of the present time is the sin of idleness. This may not apply to the "club laddies" of our town, but this evil exists to an alarming extent, especially so in larger cities, where competent ladies flit away time as if there were no claims upon them in busy marts of life. There are persons whom the stress of circumstances compel to work, but the work is too often done under protest. There is a growing distaste for housekeeping. While all honest labor is honorable there is nothing more so than the care of the home.

More Than Enough is Too Much.

To maintain health, a natural man or woman needs just enough food to repair the waste and supply energy and body heat. The habitual consumption of more food than is necessary for these purposes is the prime cause of stomach troubles, rheumatism and disorders of the kidneys. If troubled with indigestion, revise your diet, let reason and not appitite controle and take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be all right again. For sale by City Drug Store.

WATER BEFORE CITY BOARD

There will be a meeting of the city board next Tuesday and the water question will be up again. This is a matter of interest to every taxpayer and resident in this city. We must have water to irrigate our lawns and gardens as well as fire protection. At present there is ample water in Jackson creek to supply the city, and it is the belief of many that sufficient water could be stored to supply the city for three months. The driest time this season about 25,000 gallons of water was running daily.

It is time to act so that the trench for the main pipe line can be dug as soon as the wet season starts in, of course the work should have been started two months ago but it was delayed from time to time until the time has come to say yes or no.

The POST stands for a greater Jacksonville and there is no reason for this town to hold back any longer. We are living in the twentieth century and not in the sixteenth. We are sitting here with our hands folded reading of other cities growing and progressing, cities today when but a few short years ago were considered a mere settlement. These progressive little towns have sprung up from beneath our very feet; why? Because they are progressive, the citizens at the helm of the city government are active in the development of the city, and there is where the progressiveness should take root.

We can handle briefs and abstract work just as well as any office in the state.

SCHOOLS AND SCHOLARS TODAY

"The tendency of modern education is to let a great deal of sunlight into the school room," said President Roosevelt.

All the sunlight and fresh air possible ought to be let into the school room.

Every child must have a yoke when he is young, but there are times surely when he ought to roll in the pasture without the yoke. He ought to be allowed to live, not to be obliged to spend fourteen years of his life in trying to be something other than God intended him to be. The girls have the worst of it. Most boys have a healthy power of resistance. They keep their health, and run their races, without thinking of the names of the muscles put in motion, just as the little Greeks and Romans did. They forget the grammatical diagram and the copulative verbs and the etymology of the nouns in the swing of a stirring ballad that makes them want to do big things. An examination of the biography of Macaulay cannot be to the normal boy more important than the tremendous deeds of his Roman heroes; but the girl is different. She sings after five hours of school-work, that "there is something in heaven for children to do," with conviction, she hopes that it will not be algebra, which still, at twilight, faces her to be "done" at home. The boy, without intentional irreverence, takes the statement in a Pickwickian sense.

No school is a school without a playground; the playground ought to be part of the school, not a begrudged little addition to it.

The boy who can jump a rail fence easily can mount a horse in time of need, and the girl who can make best time in a race is preparing to reach a goal in life for which good health is the finest preparation. The school is, after all a, poor substitute for the home; and a danger lies, in spite of many modern educational improvements, in the fancy that the school room can be made to serve for the home. In a great city like New York, where light and warm rooms and flowers and birds are not found in the slums, the school is unfortunately, the actual substitute for the home. This is the result of conditions which Jacob Riis is doing his best to destroy.

NEAR BEER

The city of Eugene has given a black eye to the soft drink industry there by passing an ordinance forbidding the manufacture and sale of the imitation thirst-quencher called "near beer." The brewers and retailers have taken the matter into the courts and will carry it to the highest tribunal in the effort to prove that the Eugene ordinance is unconstitutional. The passing of the ordinance was due to the fact that in the hands of the retailer the imitation has a habit of getting too near to the original or go-it one better, which is only a matter of scientific fortificanion with aqua fortis.—Outlook.

HEAVY FROST

The hardest freeze of the season was handed out to us Thursday night when ice nearly an eighth of an inch thick was formed on standing water in this city. This streak of coolness played havoc with the grape vines on the low lands and wound up the growing period of the freakiest year ever known in Southern Oregon.—Outlook.

CLUBBING OFFER

The POST has made arrangements to club with the Toledo Weekly Blade and the American Farmer.

This will be the last year that the Toledo Blade will club with other papers. The following is an extract from a letter received from the Blade: "The extraordinary advance in cost of print paper almost decided us not to make a clubbing offer at all this season, knowing the usual offer would net us a great loss, we finally concluded to make the old offer for this one season more."

America's Greatest Weekly THE TOLEDO BLADE TOLEDO, OHIO.

The Best Known Knewspaper in the United States

Circulation 200,000

Popular in Every State.

In many respects the Toledo Blade is the mott remarkable weekly newspaper published in the United States. It is the only newspaper especially edited for National circulation. It has had the largest circulation for more years than any newspaper printed in America. Furthermore, it is the cheapest newspaper in the world, as will be explained to any person who will write us for terms. The News of the World so arranged that busy people can more easily comprehend, than by reading cumbersom columns of dailies. All current topics made plain in each issue by special editorial matter written from inception down to date. The only paper published especially for people who do or do not read daily newspapers, and yet thirst for plain facts. That this kind of a newepaper is popular is proven by the fact that the Weekly Blade now has over 200,000 yearly subscribers and is circulated in all parts of the United States. In addition to the news, the Blade publishes short and serial stories and many departments of matter suitedto every memeber of the family. Only one dollar a year.
