BILLS CREATING 200 NEW JOBS Bills creating 200 new jobs, many of them on fat pay, have been introduced in the Oregon legislature, loading up taxpayers with more than $1,000,000 in salaries and expenses for the ensuing two years. This estimate does not include increased pay for county officials outside of Multnomah, whose rush for "more" has produced a big crop of new bills. Nor does this estimate include the cost of numerous proposed boards, per diem "experts" to be fixed by the legislature. The new jobs are to have the titles of commissioner, inspector, deputy clerk, stenographer and so on. Of this enormous amount of salary and expense money that will be asked of the taxpayers, the senate leads with bills providing for $818,000, while the house has under consideration measures that provide for $249,100.

Such a bill has been introduced. The regular stereotyped bill to move the capitol has been presented. Portland wants the state fair and Medford is after the capitol. Selling of Multnomah presented a bill for the purpose of reapportioning the state into senatorial and representative districts. Any measure touching on this question will scarcely be satisfactory. A bill introduced by Kellaher to compel hotel keepers to provide sheets nine feet long passed the senate. His fire escape bill also passed the senate providing for all hotels over one story high to securely anchor a rope near a window and that the rope be knotted every twelve inches. Representative Davis of Multnomah introduced a bill preventing the importation of alcoholic liquors into dry counties. A bill for life imprisonment of highway robbers has been introduced. The water bill is a perplexing problem. All will agree that a change should be made in the water law but to get a measure through that will satisfy all is what has bothered the law makers for several years. Fever Sores. Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For Sale by City Drug Store. Fines if Paper is Loose on Streets. The Philadelphia council's highway committee has agreed on an ordinance which if passed by councils will make every householder liable to a fine of $5 if waste paper and other light materials are not placed in separate receptacles from ashes. Director of Public Works Stearns and Chief Benson of the bureau of highways have given their sanction to the ordinance, the object of which is to prevent the waste paper and other house refuse from being blown about the streets. The ordinance will go into effect early in the new year. Great Aid to a Town. One of the liveliest commercial clubs in the state of Kansas is at Arkansas City. It is results that count, and the club seems to be getting results. There is nothing so beneficial to a town, be it large or small, as a harmonious working together of its business men for the whole good of the place. Horrid Thing. "Why do you hate Mr. Wendell so?" the sweet young mother was asked. "The horrid thing refused to kiss my baby because he was afraid of catching something."-Houston Post.

TIPS ON TOWN BEAUTY Backyard Cleaning First Step In Improvement Work. WHY ATTRACTIVENESS PAYS. More Beautiful Rural Communities Will Stem the Cityward Tide, Increase Value of Property and Fill Up Vacant Houses. According to one authority, the initial step in town improvement work should be cleaning up of back yards, and he says that actual trial has demonstrated that dirty back yards may be cleaned up at cost ranging from 10 cents to $1.25. It is of course no use to urge the clean-up of front yards if the work is to begin in the rear, for any one having a clean and orderly back yard may be depended upon to have a front yard that is somewhat attractive. A campaign of back yard cleaning would remove many of our cities and towns from the charge that American premises generally have Queen Anne fronts and Mary Ann rears. Make the country towns more beautiful, and the desire to leave them for the great cities will not be so great. In springtime the dwellers in the cities turn with longing to the country and the country town. They long for green fields and singing birds, and happy the suburban town whose people have made its streets shady, its appearance attractive, for to such will come people who add to the community's life and prosperity. From an economic view village improvement pays, says the Los Angeles Times. It fills up vacant houses, it educates your boy and girl, and it will make this world a pleasanter place than you find it. The cities, great and small, are doing their whole duty in providing parks, but the villages and small towns seem to think that parks are luxuries beyond them. We hear political economists bewailing the fact that the cities are growing faster than the country, and they ask why it is. Parks, boulevards, libraries, added to the other attractions of the cities, are sure to entice the country youth from the humdrum life in a frouzy hamlet. We should have beautiful country districts along smooth and well improved highways as well as beautiful trees, towns and cities. They are all important in the life of our people, but with all this improvement do not overlook rural and town parks of sufficient attractiveness that young people will choose them as places to spend Sundays and holidays. Good roads lead to cities, but roadside attractions may be made strong enough to stem the cityward tide. It is particularly exasperating to the promoters of public enterprises looking to civic improvements to note how quickly the desecrative billboard follows all sorts of civic improvement. No sooner has a fine highway been finished wherefrom all users may drink in the natural and acquired beauties of the landscape than the hills become blotted with all sorts of billboards. Every kind of means should be taken by improvement societies to drive billboard users out of business. Those places large enough to have a municipal government should pass ordinances restricting the dumping of rubbish and compelling owners to keep their premises clean. The following is a good model. In part, for it is only the first three sections of a ten section ordinance passed last summer, but these three explain the intent and purpose of the whole: Section 1. Any weeds or rubbish on any lands or lots or on the sidewalk space in front thereof in the city of Riverside, Cal., are hereby declared to be a nuisance. Sec. 2. It shall be unlawful for owners or occupants of any vacant land, yard or premises to allow the same to be overgrown or overrun with weeds of a noxious or useless character or to allow the sidewalk in front of such premises to be overrun or overgrown with such noxious or useless weeds, growth or vegetation. Sec. 3. No person shall dump or throw rubbish of any kind upon any lot or tract of land upon any street, alley, lane, court or place or sidewalk within the city of Riverside except by the written permission of the mayor of said city. Nor shall any occupant or owner of any premises in said city place or allow to be placed or permit to remain upon any of said premises such rubbish without the written permission of the mayor of said city. An American woman went to live in a Canadian town. She, with her husband, occupied one of a half dozen houses on a fine terrace surrounded by private grounds. Behind was the courthouse, with the usual collection of county buildings, its grounds, too, surrounded with the terrace and a dense untrimmed growth of trees and shrubs which were a menace to the eye and the health of the community. The American woman began to trim her trees and plant vines around her house. Nasturtiums and geraniums were planted, but the alley in the rear of the house, through which a private road passed, had long been a dumping ground and eyesore. This attempt to beautify induced every one in the block to follow suit. Unsightly fences vanished, weeds disappeared and lawns were kept shaven until now they look like velvet. The trees and shrubs around the county buildings were trimmed, and new pavements are being laid all over the city, and a great improvement is to be noted wherever they have been laid. What was once almost an eyesore has become one of the most beautiful streets not only in the province, but on this continent, all through the initiative and persistence of a woman whose heart was in her work.

Need of Harmonious Action. Recently we said some things about the squabbles between business men of certain towns, of the discord and lack of harmony that prove so detrimental to all interests of the place and assist along the small order houses and the box car men. Never was there greater need of harmonious action on the part of the merchants of the land, says the Agricultural Southwest. Never as now should merchants of every class discover how closely intertwined are their interests with all the business interests of the community where they reside. The Price Current would see associations so perfected that at meetings all farmers, laborers and every class of workers could be present and just see what is going on and leave with resolutions to pull hand in hand with the tradesmen for the building up of the town. Surely every one in a community should feel that any project that is for the building up of the place is a thing that he is individually interested in. This is the sentiment that means harmony and co-operation and not backbiting, throat cutting competition and ill feeling, that are so detrimental to a town. Value of Advertising. Advertising is today the mightiest factor in the business world as well as a great home trade booster. It is an evolution of modern industrial competition. It is a business builder, with a potency that gives beyond human desire. It is more than a "drummer" knocking at the door of the customer; something more than mere salesmanship on paper. What Public Harmony Can Do. It is the strong pull and the long pull altogether, as the sailors say, that makes the town a good one. Where there is no harmony or concerted action on part of the citizens success cannot be hoped for.
