FIFTY DOLLARS FOR A NAME

Oregon people are asked to name the Harriman twins, the two fine new 5000-ton steamships now being built for the Portland-San Francisco run. Moreover, the one who suggests the best names for the two boats will be given a prize of $50. Anyone living in Oregon is invited to suggest names, the only requirement being that the proposed titles shall be characteristic of the state and appropriate to the new steamers. The names should suggest some well-known feature of the state and be typical of Oregon. In case a single name is selected from two different competitors, the $50. will be divided.

R. P. Schwerin, admiral of the Harriman Pacific fleet, with offices at San Francisco, has asked the people of this state to exercise their ingenuity in selecting fitting names for the new boats. Each one who tries for the $50. prize should give his or her full name and address, togather with reasons why the titles suggested are characteristic of this state, and letters should be addressed to J. W. Ransom, San Francisco & Portland Steamship Co. Ainsworth Dock, Portland. The competition will close June 15th.

Wireless May Save Forests

Protecting the timber of the west from forest fires, by means of the wireless telegraph, is the plan of R. H. Armstrong, Pacific coast manager of the United States Telegraph company, wireless men believe he has a solution for preventing the disastrous fires that sweep through the forests of Washington, Oregon, California and British Columbia every summer.

Armstrong says the chief reason for the big conflagration is that after a small fire is discovered a long time elapses before the alarm can be sounded and aid summoned to fight the flames. Many of the large concerns of the west have considered using telephone lines for connecting camps of forest rangers. But this plan has been given up because it was pointed out that the fire would burn down the poles or the wind would blow them down so often that they would be useless when most needed. Then, too, it was found that in many timber tracts the country is so rugged and the standing timber so heavy it would be impossible to stretch a telephone line.—Ex.
