LOYALTY TO HOME.

Kind reader, do you ever stop to consider the relation of one member of a community to the community as a whole? and do you realize the fact that residents of a town and community are members of one large family that in many things are mutually dependent upon each other?

Such is indeed the case in every community and anything affecting the material welfare of one member of the family, either directly or indirectly affects the others. The scriptural saying that "He who provideth not for his own family is worse than an infidel", is susceptible of application in a larger sense than commonly supposed.

In this age of the world public spirited people everywhere are striving for advancement and upbuilding, ever keeping in mind the interests of that particular spot in which they reside and which they call home, whether it be a large city like New York or a small one like Jacksonville and while we should all help in advancing the interests of our country and state as a whole, we should also remember that our first duty in this direction is right at home—do all we can for Jacksonville first, then if there is any surplus energy, time, or money to expend, other places can be looked up.

This little city has bankers, physicians, lawyers, mechanics, printers, mechanics and artisans laborers, etc. etc. who live here, some owning homes and several paying rent, all reliable and capable in their different lines and entitled to receive the patronage of all the people of Jacksonville.

Every person who deposits his money in Medford or outside banks, and every person who sends away for supplies or to get work done is helping build up other towns and at the same time retarding the growth and advancement of this one. Be loyal to your town and its institutions, put your shoulder to the wheel of progress and help it roll along.

The laws and amendments to laws enacted by the special session of the legislature went into effect Tuesday, the most important of which were the acts, providing fire escapes for hotels and that the doors of all public buildings open outward. Another important one is the act amending an act of the regular session, providing for the appointment of a commission to codify the laws and statutes of the state.

TRUE BOTH WAYS.

Some curious results are made by transposing parts of a sentence. The editor of an exchange recently wrote an article concerning the high price of pork, with the heading: "Live Hogs High in East," and was terribly chagrined when the paper came out next morning to find his article under the caption: "Hogs Live High in East. Did he mean bipeds or quadrupeds?"
