

MOVING PICTURES

To Be Taken on Southern Pacific Train, this Week.

Moving pictures taken from the cow-catcher of a locomotive, showing the scenery of the Rogue River valley, Cow Creek canyon, Umpqua River, the Willamette valley and other scenic regions traversed by the Southern Pacific railroad will be secured by the passenger department of the Harriman lines this week.

It is planned to operate a special train between Ashland and Portland with a moving picture taking machine secured to the pilot of the locomotive and the principal scenes along the route will be taken. The trip will occupy three or four days.

The pictures when completed are intended for exhibition at the A. Y. P. exposition at Seattle, and will doubtless be sent to various eastern places along with other advertising matter.

MAKING ROMAN CANDLES.

Indispensable Adjuncts to a Proper Fourth of July.

In America the manufacture of fireworks has become almost a fine art, and no doubt the youth of our country could find this sort of expression for their patriotic enthusiasm on the Fourth of July without drawing on the products of foreign ingenuity. A glance at the catalogue of any one of the twelve or fifteen large firms engaged in making fireworks in this country discloses almost endless lists of devices.

Every one knows what a Roman candle is, but few know how this indispensable adjunct of a Fourth of July celebration is made. First of all in the making comes the pasteboard cylinder, which is plugged up at one end with clay. After the clay comes a small charge of powder. Then a "star" is pushed down tight on the powder, and charges of powder and stars alternate until the cylinder is filled. Then a fuse is attached which communicates with the powder nearest the top of the cylinder, which, when it is exploded, sends its star sailing upward. A fuse running through the candle connects other charges of powder with the first and explodes them one at a time, each one shooting out the star which is next above it.

The stars are made of chemical mixtures, which vary with the colors which are produced. A red star is sometimes made by mixing four parts of dry nitrate of strontia and fifteen parts of pulverized gunpowder. Copper filings change the color to green. Rosin, salt and a small quantity of amber make it yellow. Small particles of zinc change it to blue, and another and perhaps better red can be made by using a mixture of lampblack and nitre.

W. T. Grieve, Plaintiff,
John M. Wills, Defendant.
To John M. Wills, the above named defendant: In the name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint of plaintiff filed in the above entitled court and cause within six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons upon you which is the 22nd day of May, 1909. And if you fail to appear and answer the complaint of plaintiff within the time required the plaintiff, for want thereof, will take judgment against you for the full sum of $100.00, for $25.00 attorneys fees and for the costs and disbursements of this action to be taxed. This summons is served upon you by publication in the Jacksonville Post a newspaper published regularly in said county, once a week for six consecutive weeks, by order of Hon. H. K. Hanna, Judge of said court, said order having been made and entered on the 14th day of May, 1909.
Gus Newbury, Attorney for plaintiff. 5-7.

SAVED BY YANKEE DOODLE

THE hurricane was over. The crew then commenced to bring order out of chaos, and the cook and his mate set about preparing our Fourth of July dinner, which is always a great occasion on board a ship. Little did any body dream at that time of the circumstances under which that meal was to be eaten.

The little bay in which we were riding at anchor was up to this time considered one of the most dangerous pirate grounds in the Malay islands.

Shortly after noon the second mate, who was looking through the glass, noticed hundreds of the swartby natives congregated together and gesturing toward the ship. He immediately informed the captain, who, seeing it would be folly to keep his fears a secret any longer, mustered the crew aft.

"After the experiences of the last twenty-four hours," said the captain, "I feel that I have a crew on whom I can rely."

"Aye, aye, sir!" the sailors shouted. "Well, boys," he continued, "here we are, unable without making repairs to go any further. Those cutthroats on the beach know this, too, and it looks as though they wanted to have a warm time at our expense. I don't intend to give them any encouragement. We will make the best showing we can with our guns and muskets, but I hope we shall not have to use them. If we do"—And the captain merely waved his hand.

The three six pounders that we carried were placed on the poop deck with their muzzles projecting over the rail. The muskets and rifles were dealt out to the crew, the ammunition was distributed, and it was the sum of our means of defense there was nothing to do but await developments.

Late in the afternoon the natives left us no longer in doubt. Several hundred marched to ward the canoes, dancing and yelling like a crowd of black demons. A few minutes later fully fifty canoes were launched and manned with the fierce looking crowd.

THE RED, WHITE AND BLUE.

They started for the ship, and those who were not paddling were shouting and gesticulating. The entire absence of any women proclaimed their mission—they were out to fight. When about halfway to the ship they ceased paddling and held a powwow. We made up our minds that they had determined on waiting for darkness to help them. Just as the captain was ordering the officers to fire our guns the canoes turned around and started for the beach. We at once concluded that they were returning for reinforcements with which to come back after nightfall.

Never did human beings pass more anxious hours than those we endured that evening. While a few kept watch the others rested by stretching out on the deck, but not to sleep.

Hark! Were our ears deceiving us? Could we not hear the airs of the old tune "Yankee Doodle"—vain illusion. Nearer and nearer came the music. It must surely be the hallucination of our wornout, distracted, despairing brains.

What was that coming around the point? A bowsprit! A hull! A mast! A full rigged ship comes into view!

Ah, ah! Surely a kind fate had driven us mad so that we should be insensible to our doom.

Illusion? No, Mad? No. Thank God! It was a man-of-war, and from her peak fluttering in the clear evening breezes were the red, white and blue of Old Glory.

We were safe. Owing to a depression in the hill at the back of the point the savages had seen the upper yards of the approaching ship, and it was that which decided them to return.

And what a jolly Fourth we did celebrate after all! How we did enjoy that dinner prepared by Uncle Sam's cook! How our flagged spirits were revived by that music, and with what security we went to sleep!

Patriotic Truths.

It is not all punk that bilsters. A wet Fourth makes a lean graveyard.

The fool and his digts are soon parted. The sticks fall alike on the just and the unjust.

A thumb on the hand is worth two in the alcohol.

It is better to take a dare than to get your hand scorched.

Remember that the giant firecracker is always just getting ready to go off when you bend over it to see what is the matter. Let us, then, be up and shooting, with a heart for any fate, lighting fuses and then scotching—learn to stand aside and wait.—Judge.

Help for Those Who Have Stomach Trouble

After doctoring for about twelve years for a bad stomach trouble, and spending nearly five hundred dollars for medicine and doctors' fees, I purchased my wife one box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which did her so much good that she continued to use them and they have done her more good than all of the medicine I bought before. — Samuel Boyer, Folsom, Iowa. This medicine is for sale by City Drug Store. Samples free.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN

If you like to have decent work done, not too far between the nails or too large holes for the wax end to pass through, go to a shoemaker who has learned his trade and knows how to use needles instead of harness needles. You are the judge. When you find your feet wet and your stockings mucky you will realize that hurry makes poor work.
