

PORTLAND LETTER

Hops average 25 cents—Fast mail train from East—Ancient Order of Hibernians next summer—Cement plant will be built.

Portland, Or., Oct. 14 (Special)—Hop growers are having their innings, with the prevailing quotation for the Oregon crop at 25 cents per pound. The average price last year was 7 cents, in 1907 7 cents and in 1905 12 cents. The last high priced year was 1904, when the Oregon crop went to 45 cents and away back in 1882 there were sales as high as $1.25 per pound. In some respects the market this year resembles that of 1882.

Light crops all over the world are responsible for the prevailing high prices. The Oregon crop is the lightest since 1896. The estimate of 70,000 bales for the year's yield in this state is considered about right, with Washington's crop 15,000 bales, compared with 17,000 bales last year, and California has about 60,000 bales this year compared to 63,000 bales last season.

It is expected this year will mark the first of a series of high-priced crops. This year, the next and possibly one or two more, will mean large profits to growers. After that, because of high prices having stimulated production, more hops will be grown than are needed and the price will drop again.

A Yamhill man has a contract for planting about 50 acres out to fruit and walnuts on a farm near that town. The Story of Today.

Advertising, when properly employed when truthfully done and placed in the right medium—the newspaper—carries a man more safely and more certainly to the heaven of wealth than commercial genius.

Genius without advertising is apt to limp about on crutches in this age of enterprise if it should attempt to eschew printers ink and well written advertising copy.

No man can exist without food—no business can survive to any noticeable extent without publicity.

The little store of ten years ago, that did not advertise in some form, is the little store of today—doing business in the same crude way, making no progress.

The little store of ten years ago, that did advertise is not the little store of today—it is a great establishment, growing, throbbing with life and activity—doing business in the modern way, keeping time with enterprising ideas and constantly forging ahead.

A business that does not grow is going backward. For the backward business there is but one safe and sane remedy—advertising done in the right way in the home newspaper, whether its circulation be large or small.

The very fact that a newspaper exists is proof that it is read by some body, and these somebodies will read advertisements if they are in the paper.—Newspaperdom.
