Engineering

The three engineers appointed by the Canadian government to consider the application of the St. Lawrence Power Company for permission to dam the Long Sault Rapids at Cornwall, Ontario, report that the enterprise is worthy of most serious consideration. They urge that, before the government approval is given, there should be a complete agreement between Canada and the United States as to the supervision and control of plants on both the Canadian and New York State banks of the river.

It is officially stated that all the excavation that was contemplated in the original project of the Panama Canal has now been completed. The original plans of the canal called for the removal of 103,795,000 cubic yards of material; and a few weeks ago the total excavation done to date under American occupancy had reached that amount. The 71,000,000 cubic yards remaining to be excavated represent the additional work necessitated by the enlargement of the canal, which was decided upon during the Roosevelt administration.

The Canadian government is giving consideration to a project for a freight railway to Hudson Bay, surveys for which are now being made. An unusual feature is that the new road would have to be operated to its full capacity for about two months of the year, during the moving of the grain crop, and that for the other ten months there would be scarcely sufficient traffic to warrant operation. It is estimated that sixteen trains per day could be handled over the single-track line, and sixty-four million bushels of wheat could be delivered in thirty days' time.

The battleship 'Indiana' has undergone tests of the 'ship brake' with which she has been equipped. This device consists of a pair of steel wings, hinged to the vessel's side and normally held against the ship, when a quick stop is to be made, as in the case of impending collision, are released through mechanism controlled from the bridge. They swing open automatically through the forward motion of the ship, and it was found that the vessel could be brought to a stop without injurious shock or strain.—Scientific American.
