Jacksonville Base Ball Park Sold

The fans and base ball players of Jacksonville will be much surprised to learn that the base ball park on fifth street has been sold. The grand stand, bleachers, and fence will soon be removed and the park will be cut into city lots. Already some beautiful residences have been planned for the location.

The sale of the grounds was brought about owing to the lack of interest in the national game during the past few seasons. For the last two seasons the grounds have not paid expenses. It is probable that from now on Jacksonville will be a dead one in the line of base ball. The few clever players who have homes in this town will not be shut off entirely from the game by the sale of the grounds as there is always positions vacant in the neighboring town teams.

It is also probable that the boys will be able to find another location for a ball park.
