Victims of Aviation.

As a rather successful experiment, aviation can boast of but little more than two years' history. In that time it has cost thirty-six lives. As we consider what has been achieved in that line, it is an excessive toll—unwarranted, as it would seem and an extremely discouraging sacrifice.

During 1908-09 but four of those thirty-six fatalities occurred. The apparent reason for this disparity in the annual records is that during the past year aviation has developed into a sport, in which there is fame and money reward for those who excel in feats of foolhardiness. Aviation appeals to the average man as extremely hazardous at its best, but it is undoubtedly the fact that converting it into a sport has given it a more hazardous aspect than it might otherwise have assumed.

Whether or not the heavier-than-air machine will ever be made reasonably safe as a means of conveyance is an interesting question to men generally, for, in a way, the world has developed a belief in the birdman, and is inclined toward the faith that flying, some day or other, will be as common as walking is now. But the record of fatalities at the outset is against this belief and this faith. The entire history of aviation thus far puts in serious doubt the stability of the various machines by which it has been achieved.

Yet it may not be more difficult task for incentive genius to give stability to the airship than it was at first to give it buoyancy and motive power within the control of the aviator. Aviation, considered as an invention, is in its infancy, therefore, it is not yet for any one to say that it cannot be perfected to practical and reliable use. If it cannot be so developed it would not be worth the lives it has cost; and even if it should be perfected, it would seem that some, if not much of the sacrifice already made might have been averted.

Stomach Trouble Cured

Pay for the Work.

It is proposed to work convicts on the public roads of Oregon and allow their wages to go on their fines. This is a mockery and a fraud on the convict. The state has no more right to rob the convict than the convict has to rob the state. If he is worked he should be paid something like a fair wage, less cost of keeping him.

Call at the Boss, for some of that delicious candy.

PORTLAND LETTER.

Convention is Called to Form Fruit Selling Association -- Black Walnuts and Acorns Planted by Government -- Portland Will Celebrate Dewey Day

Portland, Or., Jan. 4. (Special) President Atwell of the State Horticultural Society has issued a call for a convention of fruit growers and fruit shipping associations of the Pacific Northwest to meet at Portland January 24. The convention will consider the organization of a fruit growers' central selling agency and also decide what attitude shall be taken toward apple box legislation.

It is proposed to model the associations of California and limit it to the boxed apple trade. It will include Western Colorado, which, with the Pacific Northwest, grow practically all the boxed apples of the country. Better distribution of apples, providing against glut in some markets and scant supply in others, are the prime objects of the association.

The convention, coming as it does the week following the meeting of the Washington Horticultural Association at Prosser on January 17, will probably attract some attention from that body. President Atwell and others will go to Prosser and speak before the Washington orchardists on the proposed association.

Thousands of pounds of black walnuts and acorns are being shipped by the Government from Arkansas to District Forester Chapman of Portland to be distributed for seed throughout the burned-over forest areas of the Pacific Northwest. Forest rangers will take charge of planting the seed and within the next quarter century it is expected Oregon will have great quantities of hard woods available for furniture making and other uses.

A project to create a reserve for mule tail deer in the lava bed region of Klamath County has been started and the matter will be brought to the attention of President Taft. Opposition has developed however, on the part of sheepmen who want to retain the lava bed country for winter range. They contend the deer reserve should be created in the mountains nearby.

Portland proposes to celebrate Dewey Day, May 1, 1911, in a manner long to be remembered. The cruiser Boston, which is credited with having fired the first gun in the Spanish-American war, will be in the harbor, acting as a training ship for the Oregon Naval Reserve, and the same gun that fired on the Spaniards in Manila Bay will boom out a salute to Admiral Dewey. That great sea fighter is to be invited to attend the Portland celebration.

Wealth in Oregon streams, as well as in the fertile soil of the Beaver state, is shown by the figures of the annual take of salmon in Oregon waters, chiefly the Columbia River. A total of 290,000 cases, 35,000,000 pounds, was packed during the past year, having a value of $3,500,000.

Eugene boosters will build a home for their commercial club. The Club will incorporate and issue bonds, erecting a five or six story building for their quarters and leasing such surplus space as there may be. The Eugene club is very much alive, having lately added a large number of members and a big promotion fund is now being raised.

A large increase in the general state fund is shown during the last two years, according to the report of the Secretary of State. Receipts amount to $3,752,939, against $2,805,405 for the preceding biennial period.

A Congressman says Taft's message is safe and sane and does not rock the boat. Those 40,000 words, more or less, ought to be pretty good ballast.

The Democratic members of Congress seem to be divided in opinion as to whether Champ Clark should be speaker or the presiding officer of a debating society.

"Woman ruled man for centuries," says Professor Clark, of the University of Chicago. And wants to rule him some more.

THE 1915 FAIR

Whole State Working for Exposition at San Francisco.

No better evidence could be had of the unanimity with which Californians are working to secure the international exposition of 1915 than the vote polled throughout the state Nov. 8 on the constitutional amendment that imposed a world's fair tax of $5,000,000 upon the people. A review of this vote as the figures actually stand is educational and inspiring. It proves that from the northern boundary of California to the Mexican line 800 miles away Californians were willing and eager to back their advocacy of San Francisco with hard cash. Tremendous favorable vote is all the more gratifying to Californians because of the fact that the state is divided geographically into five distinct sections, but by sentiment in this contest for the exposition the state is united.

In San Francisco a large majority would be expected, and it is no surprise to learn that the vote there went 10 to 1 for the tax. The totals show that 42,378 votes were polled for the measure, and but 2,463 against it. Across the bay from San Francisco, in the region so closely connected with it commercially and socially, an overwhelming favorable vote was registered also. Alameda county, in which are the cities of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley, returned their verdict by casting 18,937 votes for the proposition to tax themselves for San Francisco, and 1,583 votes against it.

Sacramento, the capital of the state, located in the heart of the Sacramento Valley, and distinctly an interior town, voted 5,821 to tax itself for the world show at San Francisco, and only 1,356 against it. San Mateo, on the peninsula near San Francisco, voted 3,204 for, and but 142 against the state tax. Shasta, in the heart of the northern mountains, 200 miles away from San Francisco, cast 1,341 votes for the measure, and only 544 against it. Humboldt, another far northern county, went better than 2 to 1 for the proposition, Placer, one of the famous placer mining counties of pioneer days, cast 1,387 for and but 407 votes against it.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's S. I. V. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by City Drug Store.

Want Shorter Hours.

Master Moulders in convention in Chicago can't understand why their workmen want shorter hours. It is past belief that a man actually dislikes to stay in their nice shops over eight hours a day. The conclusion is that the men are led away by professional agitators.—Labor Press.
