:-:JACKSONVILLE POST:-:

Official Paper of the City of Jacksonville, Oregon

A weekly newspaper published every Saturday at the county seat of Jackson County, Oregon. D. W. BAGSHAW, Editor.

Entered as second-class matter June 22, 1907, at the post office at Jacksonville, Oregon, under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

SATURDAY, JULY 15, 1911

SUBSCRIPTION: One year by mail $1.50. Advertising rates furnished on application.

We have tried to learn something in regard to the state of the water bonds and the waterworks, but it seems that there is nothing to report. The city officials say that the matter is up to the bond buyers who had agreed to take them as soon as the proceedings had been approved by their attorneys. It is expected that matters will be satisfactorily arranged within a short time.

This is the season of the year when the average dweller in town or city thinks he is bound to hie to the tall timber, there to swelter in an atmosphere a few degrees hotter than usual, fight mosquitoes and flies and subsist on half cooked or overdone food which he would not look at when at home, and when he returns brag about the "jolly good time," had in the woods.

Governor West is making for himself and the State of Oregon, a record in the matter of handling criminals. His methods are novel, to say the least, and so far seem to work very well; the governor believes that because a man has been convicted of a crime it does not necessarily follow that he has lost all sense of honor or honesty, and that by putting the men on their honor and making them feel that by their present and future good conduct they may redeem their past errors, many will be reclaimed from a life of crime and induced to live useful and upright lives. The experiment is being watched closely by State officers and prison authorities all over the United States, and if successful here will doubtless be adopted elsewhere.

The Agricultural College

The Oregon Agricultural College is nothing if not modern. Even its advertising is done by the most approved and artistic methods. What could be prettier than the pamphlet that it sends out to tell the public what the college is doing? In advertising beauty certainly pays, however barren of financial it may be elsewhere.

The pictures in this pamphlet tell more than the letter press, though that is as precise and informing as words need be. One picture presents a pair of happy porkers with the college students inspecting them. But it is not the pigs themselves which strike the fancy so much as the legend under the cut. "Mortgage raisers," they are labeled. Is this not suggestive as well as accurate?

Oregon has never yet appreciated the staid and judicial pig at his full value. No animal brings in anything like the same profits for the same expenditure of feed and labor, and yet the Willamette Valley is far from being populated with swine, as it would be if the farmers appreciated their blessings better. The Agricultural College, we gather, is making something of a specialty of the pig, as it is also of the Jersey cow, and in due time the Oregon farmers will get the benefit.

Other pictures show young men at work pruning and spraying trees. The women students are caught in the act of preparing and serving food, cutting out gowns and sewing. What could be more practical and useful? At the same time we must not make the mistake of thinking that all this is short of ideal values. The college has its artistic side. The higher aspects of work are not neglected, nor do the students leave without gaining that knowledge of literature without which manual toils is nothing better than drudgery. The Agricultural College harks back to the fine old theory of the renaissance, that true art proceeds from the workshop.—Oregonian.

Electric Sparks.

It was an observant young lady who remarked that, "the way those automobile racers in Indianapolis risk their lives is perfectly killing."

Scientists are still photographing Halley's comet. If the comet is responsible for all that is attributed to it its photo should be in a rogue's gallery.

Farming in some parts of Canada must be quite as thrilling as cleaning off sidewalks in this altitude in January. The farmer can go forth any day with his snow shovel and discover where he planted his crop.

What Mexico needs now more than anything else is a "back to the farm movement."

There is still a lot of room at the top of the strawberry boxes for the good strawberries this season.

A "school of smiling" for girls has been opened in Boston. But is it needed during the season of ice-cream and weddings?

We hope the weather man will release the next shower in time to save the corn and tomatoes.

So far as we have been able to learn Mr. Hobson and Japan haven't gone to war yet.

Wouldn't it be a great sight if they could get all the faithful old wheel-horses to march in a husband's parade.

But Diaz should not feel so lonely if those $70,000,000 went with him to Europe.

Boston is to have a hospital for none but the rich, but New York has a whole city arranged on that plan.

Philadelphia now enjoys the distinction of supplying the House at Washington with the father of the House, General Bingham, and the baby, the son of Mayor Reyburn. Philadelphia always did like to work both ends.

John B. Duke and his confederates will be apt in the to find in the latest decision of the Supreme Court that it was rather strong tobacco it put in their pipes.

If the Supreme Court could only enforce the "rule of reason" upon chauffeurs.

When it comes to prosecuting the Taek Trust will the Supreme Court be brave enough to set down on it?

The Taft model of refrigerating desk and office chair ought to prove very popular this summer. It is over an ice plant.

Uncle Andy Carnegie was the only one, J. P. Morgan never could tie up.

John W. Gates had no hesitation in declaring that he knew Andrew Carnegie when that eminent philanthropist manifested no desire to die poor.

"I have held my love and duty to my five wives," says Mormon Prophet Joseph Smith. Is this the limit or does it merely outline the possibilities.

The Poultry Yard.

Very often the prettiest hen is the poorest layer.

Lawn clippings make an ideal summer green-food ration.

Lighter foods are best these warm days. Heavy food like corn heats the blood.

All the old stock that is not wanted should now be disposed of before they go into moult.

Eat some of the eggs yourself. If they are worth money to anybody, they are to you.

Already the fowls are assuming a rusty appearance. It is getting near their moulting season.

The hen that lays where she happens to be, when she takes the notion to lay, is certainly setting a bad egg-ample.

Do not let up your warfare against the destructive louse army. Lice are working havoc, and too severe measures can not be adopted to destroy them.

Use the small eggs. Give your customers the large ones. So shall they call you a square dealer and stick by you and bring you more and more customers. Besides, it's only fair and makes you feel better.

Makes us laugh when the old rooster finds a worm and cackles over it till he gets all the hens in the yard around him and then just gobbles the worm up himself; but isn't that about what lots of folks do?

The growing cockerels should now be separated from the pullets, and the former given an extra allowance of feed. They will need this additional amount more than will the pullets in order that they can be kept growing.

KEEPING IN TOUCH WITH HOME

IT IS wonderful how much satisfaction can be obtained from a talk over the Bell Telephone.

A letter carries words, but the Bell service has been brought up to such a point of perfection that the modulations of the voice are clearly heard.

The cheery tones show that the talker is well and in good spirits. The call may come from a suburban village or a distant city, but within the limits of the carrying power of the voice the Bell Service carries the tone as well. You get a personal interview with a friend hundreds of miles away.
