DR. WILSON AS ORATOR.

Governor of New Jersey in a Characteristic Attitude.

TRIBUTE TO THE TOILERS.

Humble Men Who Labor Are America's Might, Says Wilson.

In one of his recent addresses Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey paid an eloquent tribute to the toiling millions whose labor has given America its place among the nations. He said:

"You know how it thrills our blood sometimes to see how all the nations of the earth wait to see what America is going to do with her power—her physical power—her enormous resources, her enormous wealth, her power to levy innumerable armies and build up armaments which might conquer the world.

"But what has made us strong? The toil of millions of men, the toil of men who do not boast, who are inconspicuous, but who live their lives humbly from day to day, and this great body of workers, this great body of toilers, constitutes the might of America.

"What is the manifest duty of all statesmanship, therefore? It is to see that the strength of America are properly dealt with by the laws and properly nurtured and taken care of by the policy of the country.

"Well, what hinders, what stands in the way? Why, you know that everything really worth discussing comes to the question of the corporations. Now, I do not want you to expect from me any invective against the corporations. I was used a lawyer, but I do not know how to draw up an indictment against a whole nation. If you will give me the facts I can indict one man at a time."

LABOR MUST ORGANIZE

If It Is to Secure Justice From Organized Capital, Says Woodrow Wilson.

Few public men have taken such definite ground on the question of the rights and duties of organized labor as has Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey. In a letter written to one of the labor leaders of his home state recently the governor said:

"I have always been the warm friend of organized labor. It is, in my opinion, not only perfectly legitimate, but absolutely necessary, that labor should organize if it is to secure justice from organized capital, and everything that it does to improve the condition of workmen, to obtain legislation that will impose full legal responsibility upon the employer for his treatment of his employees and for their protection against accident, to secure just and adequate wages and to put reasonable limits upon the working day and upon all the exactions of those who employ labor ought to have the hearty support of all fair minded and public spirited men, for there is a sense in which the condition of labor is the condition of the nation itself. The laboring man cannot benefit himself by injuring the industries of the country. I am much more afraid that the great corporations, combinations and trusts will do the country deep harm than I am that the labor organizations will harm it, and yet I believe the corporations to be necessary instruments of modern business."

DISCARDING THE LABELS.

Woodrow Wilson Comments on the Breaking Down of Party Lines.

"The country is awakening to a degree of civic consciousness known before only in the period when the country was born," said Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey in a recent address. "We are scrutinizing the men who are conducting the government. We know we are living in an age of complicated conditions. From all our cities men after man tells me that never before have the citizens been so awakened to public questions—to the question of public degeneration.

"The interesting thing of our politics now is that men are not labeled. You cannot tell from the way a man voted last time how he will vote the next time. Men are beginning to find out that the safe line is the right line.

"The mere moral impulse in me is of no force unless it can be translated into action. It is immoral to propose for the United States something that is not of benefit to the whole United States. It is immoral to propose legislation for your business unless it is also for the interest of the rest of the country. Our government is not a paternal institution."

A FRENCHMAN'S STORY

By NORMAN GRANGER
 Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I have been often in Paris, and the last time I was there I went to a restaurant for my meals in a house that had recently been the dwelling of a wealthy man. The landlord spoke English, and when I asked him some questions about how he came to secure so fine a house for such a purpose into his reply he wove a story. There was nothing very novel in the substance. The interest lay rather in the telling by a man who spoke English indifferently.

"These house was occupy by M. Chateau, a reech gentleman, who haf ferry fine daughter, Mlle. Elise Chateau she mak fool of herself when she want to marry Gaston Lefevre, a young man ferry poor church mouse, Mademoiselle tell Gaston she marry him in spite her fadder, in spite ebery-bodies. But M. Chateau he find out hees daughter lof poor young man, and he mak arrangements for her to marry a reech man right off, ferry queeck. He tell M. Bourdon he lak have been for son-in-law. M. Bourdon reech man, and he lak to marry reech woman. Marriage in France not lak marriage in Amerique. French girl git husband through her fadder.

"M. Chateau tell M. Bourdon, 'I gif my daughter 100,000 francs. How much you gif?'

"'I gif 100,000 francs too. That mak 200,000 francs. Your daughter haf that to spend on fine clothes. That mak her ferry happy.'

"'All right. You go ask mademoiselle to be your wife.'

"'M. Bourdon he go ask mademoiselle eef she be his wife for 100,000 francs.'

"'Mees Chateau she say: 'Yes, I lak to be your wife ferry much. Haf a glass of wine?' M. Bourdon drink glass wine with mademoiselle. Then he go away. The next matin he go to M. Chateau, ferry pale, and he say:

"'M. Chateau, you haf done me great honor to let me marry your daughter. Mademoiselle do me great honor to consent to marry me.'

"'And you do me great honor, too, monsieur.'

"'Yes, we all do each udder great honor, but I tink I no lak get married just now. I not good enough for your daughter.'

"'What you mean, monsieur? Didn't you ask me for my daughter?'

"'Yes, monsieur.'

"'And didn't you ask my daughter to be your wife?'

"'Yes, monsieur.'

"'Then you mean to insult me, to insult my daughter! By gar, I break ebery bone in your body!'

"'I not insult you; I not insult your daughter. I not lak to die just yet. I lak to lif a leetle longer.'

"'What you mean?'

"'I go ask mademoiselle eef she be my wife. Mademoiselle she kind enough to say, 'You do me great honor, Mr. Bourdon.' And she mak' me happy to say she be my wife. But she mak' me unhappy anudder way. Mademoiselle ask me to haf glass of wine. I ver' happy, ver' much honor, to drink the health of my fiancée. I tak' all in de glass down at one gulp. Then I go home.

"'What's that in my stomach? Eet must be I drink in that glass of wine hot coals. I roll on de floor; I cry; I tell Gascoine go queek for the doctor. The doctor come, and he put pump down my throat and pump out de wine your honored daughter kind enough to gif me. Ferry fine girl Mlle. Chateau. I ferry much honored to be her mari, but I tink I remain bachelor leetle while longer.'

"'M. Chateau you ferry glad to hush up thees matter that his daughter gif a suitor something hot in de wine. Mebbe that be poison; mebbe it be she put tabasco in de bottle. Anyway, M. Bourdon haf enough of her. He tell her fadder to mak' his excuses to hees daughter and say he remain bachelor leetle while longer.

"'Then M. Chateau he shut hees daughter up in thees house and lock all the doors and close the windows so that Gaston Lefevre not get in of Mlle. Elise get out. But when two lofers mak' up their minds to lofe they ferry hurt to shut up so they didn't get out. One night robbers broke into the house, but they didn't steal anything except Mlle. Elise. One of those robbers was Gaston Lefevre.

"'When M. Chateau knew that hees daughter had gone off to marry that poor man he rave lak madman. Then he go away by himself somewhere and put up paper on thees house for rent. One day I come along and see the bill, and I go to the agent, and I rent the house for cafe.

"'What wine will monsieur drink?'

"'I certainly don't want the kind Mlle. Chateau gave her fiance. You didn't take any of it off her father's hands with the house, did you?'

"'No, monsieur, no! I assure monsieur that mademoiselle put pepper of something lak that in de wine. I bring all my wine here.'

A VACATION IN BED.

Twenty-four Hours' Sleep Versus a Week's Holiday.

If you want to obtain complete rest and recuperation equal to a week's vacation in minimum time sleep the clock around twice is the advice of a physician who holds a high place in medical circles in England.

"To spend twenty-four hours in bed," he said to a friend, "instead of rushing away for a few hours' change of scene when you are run down physically and mentally, is worth a week's holiday. The night before, having gone to a theater to take the mind off worries and having supped wisely and well, instructions should be given that the morning calling shall be omitted.

"Then sleep. On waking turn over and sleep again. On waking again ring for some hot milk. Drink it and sleep again and keep on sleeping. Have nothing in the intervals more substantial than soup. Do not read. Keep the eyes shut constantly. Have a warm bath in the evening and sleep again.

"When you are tired of sleeping sleep again for the night. Nothing calms the nerves more than resting the eyes."—New York Herald.

Remember the Baker.

At the court of assizes in Venice when sentence of death is about to be passed a man clothed in a long black robe enters the court and, advancing to the bench, bows profoundly to the judges, saying, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and retires. Here is the explanation of the custom: Three centuries ago a baker was executed at Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was fully proved the judges who condemned him invested a sum of money, the interest on which serves to keep a lamp perpetually lighted in the palace of the doges, this being called the "lamp of expiation." In addition, their fatal mistake has for 300 years been held up as a warning to their successors on the bench when they are about to inflict the extreme penalty of the law.

The Box Tortoise.

Though the tortoise is slow of foot, it is quick to make the best of all its available modes of defense. The box tortoise possesses a singular defensive apparatus. The plastron or shell covering the under part of the body is so formed that its front segment can be drawn upward to protect the animal's head, the head meanwhile being drawn back under the entrance or shell on the back of the tortoise. The upper and under shells then meet in front, forming a kind of box in which the creature is unassailable. When the danger is passed the reptile relaxes a muscle and the raised part of the plastron falls, allowing the head and fore feet to come forth. This movable plate is fastened to the plastron by a strong hinge of elastic ligament.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

When Israel Zangwill was an obscure writer in a Jewish school in London he sent a short poem to a leading American monthly. It came back by an empty post. He kept it, and after he had achieved fame as a writer he sent the same poem to the same magazine. This time he received a cable from the editor offering to buy the "world rights" for a large sum. The poem was the same, word for word.

Different.

"Why, a year ago you told me this place was easily worth $15,000. Now you estimate its value at less than $10,000."

"You must remember that I was trying to sell it to you then. Now you want me to sell it for you."—Chicago Record Herald.

A Vast Difference in Floor Finishes

It means economy—it means satisfaction—it means a beautiful, lasting finish on your floors, to know the difference before you buy.

Common varnishes are brittle and soon show unsightly scratches. Elastica Floor Finish is so tough that nothing mars it. Heels, scraping chairs, casters, leave no marks. Common varnishes turn white under water.

Elastica Floor Finish never does. It is water-proof.

Common varnishes and wax need constant care and refinishing.

Elastica Floor Finish keeps its original lustre. It outlasts any finish ever before offered. It saves work and saves expense.

We cannot overstate the importance of knowing the facts about floor finishes. Come in and ask us.

When you feel Lazy, Stretchy, Half Sick, Blue and Out of Sorts, look to the Liver; it is Torpid.

HERBINE

Is the Remedy You Need.

It is an invigorating tonic for a torpid liver. The first dose brings improvement, a few days use puts the liver in fine vigorous condition. Herbine also extends its restorative influence to the stomach and bowels. It helps digestion and food assimilation, purifies the bowels and brings back the habit of regular daily bowel movements. When the stomach, liver and bowels are active, bilious impurities no longer obstruct functional processes, the result of which is renewed energy, mental activity and cheerful spirits.
