NEED MORE MONEY

To Remove Wreck of Maine From Havana Harbor.

Washington, D.C., That about $200,000 more will be needed to remove the wreck of the Battleship Maine from Havana harbor is declared here today.

Congress is asked to provide the money at once. To date more than $400,000 has been expended on the Maine. It is said that fully three months work remains to be done on the vessel which to be removed piecemeal from the mud bank on which it lies.

Railroad To Coos Bay.

General Manager J. P. O'Brien has made the authoritative statement that the Southern Pacific company will build a line from Eugene to Marshfield via the Siuslaw route, that the work will cost $8,000,000, the line will be from 125 to 130 miles long and will be completed within two years.

Some years ago when E. E. Calvin was general manager of the S. P. that company undertook to build from Drain to Marshfield and a large amount of money was expended in grading, building bridges and laying steel. When in 1907 panic came on, however, work was suspended and has never been taken up. In connection with the Siuslaw route announcement it is stated that steel bridges on the Drain route will be taken down and used on the new line.

Terms of Treaties.

By the treaties for arbitration between the United States and Great Britain and the United States and France, signed May, the following ends have been accomplished:

Even before resort to arbitration, a commission shall investigate the issue between the two nations, to recommend, if possible, a settlement without recourse to arbitration.

All differences adjustable by international law shall be submitted to the Hague or some of other liberal for decision.

Differences either nation believes are not adjustable shall be laid before the commission, composed of representatives of both countries, and those differences may be arbitrated if this commission so decides. The commission may delay its findings a year, to provide for diplomatic settlement.

It is suggested in France that any nation, not a signatory, warring upon a signatory, shall be "boycotted" by nations that are parties to the peace treaties.

Central Point Bridge.

Because of the bad condition of the bridge at Central Point across Bear creek, the county court Thursday decided upon immediate repairs. The work will be completed the latter part of August.

The bridge is an old wooden covered structure, crossing Bear creek east of Central Point. The boards are so worn and rotten on the floor that the bridge is unsafe.

The action was taken by the court after urgent request by Central Pointers.

Montana's Record Coal Output

Montana broke all her former records of coal production in 1910, according to the United States Geological Survey. The coal mined amounted to 2,920,970 short tons, with a spot value of $5,329,322. The total value of the coal produced during the year was less marked than the tonnage increase, the average price for the year having been lower in 1909, nevertheless the total value was the greatest in the history of coal mining in the state. The coal mines gave employment during the year to 3,817 men, indicating an output of 762 tons per man.—U. S. Geo. Survey.

SEEING A JOKE.

It Depends on the Brand of Humor to Which One is Accustomed.

Foreigners, as a rule, do not understand our wit and humor. Sir Alfred Harmsworth once remarked to me, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, that American humor was coarse and sometimes brutal. Mark Twain and Finley Peter Dunne are the only American humorists who are accepted by Englishmen. On the other hand, we do not appreciate the humor of Punch, the Englishman's delight.

I have seen an Englishman laugh heartily over a joke in Punch that I couldn't see any point to until it was explained to me, and no doubt that gentleman considered me as dense as we consider them when we tell them a funny story and get a sort of pained look, rather mystifying to be sure, instead of the laugh which was expected.

It is the local application of the joke that counts the world over. The funniest thing I ever saw was the charge a yearling Hereford bull made at a barbed wire fence in the Texas Panhandle. He struck the fence full tilt, and the rebound caused him to turn a complete back somersault. He landed on his hoofs all right, and there he stood all straddled out with a look of astonishment on his face that was almost human. It was so ludicrous that I lay down in the mesquite grass and rolled over in spasms of mirth. Then he began to bawl like a whipped child, turned tail and ran as from a banshee.

I was at dinner in a Bradford club and told about it, expecting to get a laugh, but all I got was this from Hon. Smith Feather, mayor of that Yorkshire city:

"By Jove, I didn't know those wire fences were so strong. It's a jolly good thing the poor brute wasn't injured."

WATERSPOUTS.

Old Time Mariners Fought Them With Noise and Cannon.

In the waterspout the medieval mariner saw a malevolent living monster—a sea dragon. There were various means of combating them. Once all sailors carried black handled knives, which the monster was believed to hold in special abhorrence.

When a spout made its appearance these knives were produced and pointed in its direction, waved in the air so as to make the sign of the cross or, according to the recommendation of certain contemporary authorities, driven several times into the side of the ship. Certain passages from the gospel of St. John were recited as charms against waterspouts.

A loud noise of any kind was also believed to be efficacious against them—shouts, the clash of swords, the beating of drums and gongs, etc. The custom of firing cannon against waterspouts, says the Scientific American, dates back at least as far as the sixteenth century. The original idea appears to have been to frighten them away by the noise of the report, but in the later times it was believed that the watery column could be cut in twain by the cannon ball and the spout thus dissipated. It would be interesting to know whether the cannonading of waterspouts is still sometimes practiced. It was certainly common much less than a century ago. It is hardly necessary to say that it is entirely futile.

The Dawhee.

Englishmen are familiar with the name "dawhee," applied to the Scotch halfpenny, but to few does it bring the association of a baby upon and a boy, as people. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was made in her infancy, and her small face was engraved upon the Scotch halfpenny at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood how the name "dawhee," or baby, came to be given to the coin bearing the effigy of the baby. The halfpenny of Scotland is still commonly called the dawhee, though the baby face no longer appears on it.—Fair son's.

The Wise Bride.

"Yes, the girls gave the bride a commiseration shower."

"What in the world is that?"

"Why, they all told her how sorry they were she was going to marry such a man as the coming bridegroom."

"That must have hurt her feelings."

"No, it didn't. She knew there wasn't a girl there who wouldn't have given her eyes to get him!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mixed Metaphors.

A well known bishop, speaking in the upper house of Canterbury convocation on prayer book revision, rather startled some of his Episcopal brethren by declaring, according to the Church Family Newspaper, "We are not writing on a clean slate; there is a good deal of grit under the door."

No Wonder.

"My husband has never spoken a cross word to me."

"You lucky woman! How long have you been married?"

"Nearly two weeks."—Chicago Record Herald.
