Poetry in Congress.

One would not expect to find poetry in the debates over the free list, the wool schedule, or the publicity of election bill; and yet the Congressional Record not infrequently lapses into poetry, more often perhaps when eulogies are being pronounced, but with comparative frequency at all times.

Congressman Kent, of California, is a genuine poet at heart and he can even indite verse on the tariff. Champ Clark is as full of poetry as he is of religion and politics. Vice-President Sherman has a rhymesters facility for making quatrains. The love of the jingling meter and tender sentiment is peculiar to no party or section of the country.

The Hon. W. Rucker, of Missouri, on August 17, spoke on the conference report on publicity of campaign contributions, and referring to a controversy that had arisen between himself and Representative Bartlett of Georgia deplored the threatened loss of Mr. Bartlett's friendship, and said, that if indeed those ties must be severed he would say:

With all my soul, then let us part,
Since both are anxious to be free;
And I will send you back your heart
If you will send mine back to me.

Why shouldn't there be "laughter and applause" to greet the sally?

One of the most common ailments that hard working people are afflicted with is lame back. Apply Chamberlain's Liniment twice a day and massage the parts thoroughly at each application, and you will get quick relief. For sale by all dealers.

His Great Generosity.
"We are getting up a subscription," began the lady who was carrying around the paper. Her voice trembled as she spoke, for the person she was now bracing happened to be the richest fellow in the community. She hoped against hope that she would get something out of him.

"You are getting up a subscription?" echoed the millionaire, with a sweet smile. "I'm sure you'll be very successful. And what can I do?"

"Would you—could you?"—she nearly fainted at her assurance—"would you p-p-put your name down on this paper for a hundred dollars?"

There—it was done. He wouldn't have missed a thousand, but she was pretty courageous to ask for as much as she did. His gentle smile reassured her.

"Will I put my name down for a hundred dollars?" said he. "Why, my dear young lady, I don't charge that amount for the use of my name when charity is the cause. I will put my name down, of course, but not for a hundred dollars. I won't charge you a cent for it. It is a slight service."

The Female Housefly.
A female house fly which has hibernated in a dwelling house, or elsewhere, may produce in the spring, at the lowest estimate, 120 eggs. Assuming that one-half of these hatch as females, and allowing that the breeding goes on without check for four months, we have as the descendants of a single hibernating individual 214,557,844,320,000,000,000 flies. Now, a house fly measures exactly one-fourth of an inch in length; the distance around the earth at the equator is said to be 24,800 miles. It would take, therefore, 3,688,312,000 flies placed end to end to go around the world once. Using this number as a denominator, and the number of flies produced in four months from one mother as a numerator, we find she will give rise, in the course of a summer, to enough flies to encircle the globe at the equator 5,000 times and have plenty of progeny to spare.—Professor F. L. Washburn in Popular Science Monthly.

Severe.
A story is going the rounds at a certain university regarding one of the sarcastic professors, who was recently conducting an oral examination in a very scientific study.

There was one student, handsome, easy and self possessed, who appeared to be utterly ignorant of the simplest phases of the subject.

Professor W. put question after question to him without receiving one intelligent reply. Finally the student said naively:

"I'm very unfortunate, professor; you never ask me anything I know."

The professor said nothing, but gravely tore off a tiny piece of paper from a convenient pad.

"Here, Mr. B.," he said, handing it to the student, "write all you know. Take plenty of time—there's no hurry."

What Rhymes With Babe?
A common English word for which there is only one rhyme is "babe," and it was Swinburne who used it with exquisite appropriateness in "A Rhyme."

Babe, if rhyme be none
For that sweetest word
Babe, the sweetest one
Ever heard.

Right it is and meet
Rhyme should keep not true
Time with such a sweet
Thing as you.

Love alone, with yearning
Heart for astralabe,
Takes the sun's height, burning
O'er the babe.

"Silence" is another word beloved of poets that has no rhyme. Mrs. Brown went to the very limits of her passion for assuance when she rhymed it with "islands!"

Oddities About Alphabets.
When the Portuguese first explored Brazil they made great fun of the natives of that country because they had in their alphabet no f, r or l—a people, the invaders declared, without fey or rey—without faith, law or king. The Mohawks, again, have no labials and vowed it was absurd when the missionaries tried to teach them to pronounce p and b, "for who," said they, "can speak with his mouth shut?"—Blackwood's Magazine.

Something Was.
Rivers was smoking a cheap cigar. "Seems to me," said Brooks, "I smell something like cloth burning." But Rivers was game. He touched the lighted end of his cigar to his shirt sleeve. "No wonder," he said, exhibiting the burned spot.—Chicago Tribune.

The Trouble.
Gramercy—We can't afford to give a dinner in the house. Besides, we haven't the things. Mrs. Gramercy—Pshaw! We can borrow the silver. Gramercy—Yes, and have the guests carry most of it away as souvenirs.—Judge.

A Second Washing.
"I've just washed out a suit for my little boy, and now it seems too tight for him."

"He'll fit it all right if you'll wash the boy."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Changed the Geography.
"This goulash was spoiled in cooking, sir. Shall I cross it off the bill?"

"No, you chump! Put it down as goulash a la Russe under the head of special dishes."—Jugend.

The grand essentials to happiness in this life are something to do, something to love and something to hope for.
