Too Much Appreciation.

A biography of Huxley dwells on the annoyance which he suffered from bees. But the plague had its funny side. Huxley once wrote to a friend: "I had a letter from a fellow yesterday morning who must be a lunatic, to the effect that he had been reading my essays, thought I was the man to spend a month with and was coming down by the 5 o'clock train attended by his seven children and his mother-in-law!"

Defunct, Arithmetically.

"So poor Dinny is a dead man." "Oh didn't say that. Oh could you be was half kilt from a blast in the quarry." "Well, an' wasn't he half kilt only last month fallin' down an elevator? How many halves has he got to be killed?"—Boston Transcript.

COMFORT IN CONGRESS.

Free Baths and Shaves and Massage and Other Things as Well.

Every member of congress has the free use of the congressional baths and the barber shops under the capitol. He can take a nifty Turkish bath, a Russian bath, a Roman bath, a needle shower or the plain, old fashioned Pike county style of bath, lying down in a tub with both faucets going, and it doesn't cost him a cent.

As often as he pleases he may have a shave, a hair cut, a facial massage and be manicured all around, as they say in parts of Iowa when shoeing a horse. Every other day he can have the back of his neck shaved, just as if he were going to some large social function back home. Uncle Sam pays for the attendants and provides the whole outfit.

We mustn't overlook the notion counter at the capitol either. The members don't, so why should we, especially as the said notion counter is a gracious and enduring boon to statesmen, their wives, families, heirs and assigns. It contains everything you can think of that would properly come under the head of notions and a great deal besides—all kinds of stationery, all kinds of typewriter and desk supplies, pocket knives, scissors, fountain pens, card cases, purses, wrist bags, visiting cards, business cards and sh-h-h-h! even the kind of cards which run fifty-two to a set and may be used for playing old maid and other harmless games.—Munsey's Magazine.

FAKED PAINTINGS.

An American Who Was Fooled and an Artist Who Was Insulted.

M. Henri Rochefort was being interviewed one day on bogus picture collections, says the Paris correspondent of the Kansas City Journal. He is as good an expert as any on the question. The subject always interests him. "Sit down, my friend," he said to the journalist. "I will tell you a good story. It happened not long ago either. An American one day rushed in and begged me to say what I thought of the pictures he had just bought. 'They are here at your door,' he said. 'I brought them along in a cab.' 'They were carried into the room. There were Rembrandts, Corots and Harpignies.

"The Rembrandts are false," I said, 'the Corots ditto, the Harpignies ditto.' The American was horror struck. He said they had cost him $100,000. 'Then,' I said, 'let us leave the Rembrandts and Corots aside. These matters are dead, but Harpignies is not. Here is a note for him from me. Ask him yourself if he signed these pictures.' My American disappeared. I never heard from him again, but I got a letter from Harpignies some days later. He said: 'My dear friend—if I were not ninety-two years of age I would have sent you my seconds for sending that American to me to ask if those worthless daubs were mine. Yours, Henri Harpignies.'

Quite the Other Way. "Does your wife go to services to see what other women wear?" "No," replied Mr. Cumrox. "We are now sufficiently prosperous for her to go in order to let other women see what she wears."—Washington Star.

The Doctor and The Telephone

MANY lives are saved each year because the doctor is reached promptly by the Bell Telephone. From the information he receives by telephone he can give directions for emergency measures, and provide himself with the necessary instruments and medicines.

Consultations with Specialists are easily arranged by means of the Bell Long Distance Service.

A Child's Delight

is a few of our delicious Candies, but older children, we notice, never turn up their noses at them. The most critical judges pronounce our confections to be pure and wholesome, and we ourselves vouch for the positive cleanliness of their ingredients, and their making and handling. But—though of the highest grade—the prices are moderate.
