MRS. ANNIE CHAPMAN

Died at her home Monday. Funeral Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Annie Chapman aged 42 years, died at her home one-half mile west of this city of heart trouble Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The late Mr. Chapman, husband of the deceased, died but a few months ago, December 5, 1911, in Yuma, Ariz. From that Mrs. Chapman suffered poor health.

Besides her son, George Ries Chapman, she leaves three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Upp of Jacksonville, Mrs. James Peterson of Lenark, Mont., and Mrs. Kate Talty, Hubbing, Minn., and her mother Mrs. Anna Ries, of Parkdale, Or.

The services were conducted from the home and at the grave Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A Dream in Finance.

The issue of the Gold Hill News of February 24, contains an article headed "The Taxpayer's National Bank of Jackson County in which is outlined a system of 'high finance' which if put into operation would revolutionize the financial system of the world.

The article in question seems to be the effusion of Mr. Lammman, but he says that the plan is the production of a gentleman named Scott, an advocate of good roads, but who voted against the proposed issue of county bonds at the special election held last fall on account of the interest which the bonds would bear. Evidently Mr. Scott is opposed to paying interest on money borrowed and to obviate that disagreeable feature of the proposition has evolved the scheme outlined in the News.

The plan is one of the most chimerical ever presented to the public and reminds one of the fellow who picked himself up by the waistband of his trousers and carried himself around the room. Seriously, the entire article betrays an ignorance of the principles underlying the organization of banks, either national or state, in this; that a certain paid up capital is required before a charter will be issued, and that the bonds required to be deposited with the Treasury Department must be interest bearing bonds of the United States.

PORTLAND LETTER

Oregon's First State Irrigation Congress Met at Portland February 19-21.

Portland, Or., Feb. 27 (Special).—Oregon's first state Irrigation Congress, which met in Portland February 19-21, closed with the unanimous opinion that it was one of the most important and representative gatherings ever held. One hundred and fifty six delegates were in attendance from all sections of the state. It accomplished the chief objects for which it was called. The many interests which have been working separately for or against the Government's Carry Act and the private projects have been brought together. They are now united in an organization which will endeavor to secure the passage of legislation that will offer every possible aid to the prompt development of all irrigation projects and at the same time protect to the fullest possible extent the rights of the settler.

The official announcement by E. G. Hopson, project engineer, that the Secretary of the Interior would proceed with the completion of the Umatilla Project and would take care to protect all vested land and water rights was the principal piece of good news divulged at the Congress. The statement was preceded by a telegram from President Taft saying that he would endeavor to accord justice to Oregon and give to it its just share of the reclamation funds.

The resolutions adopted by the convention included a petition to Congress asking for an appropriation of $15,000,000 a year for a series of five years for the construction and development of feasible irrigation projects, and that Oregon be given her full share in accordance with the provisions of the original Reclamation Act, which appropriated funds for such purposes in proportion to the amount contributed by the sale of public lands.

The Congress also favored the enactment of legislation that will, as far as possible, give the control of the various irrigation projects into the hands of the settlers, the men who have eventually, to pay all the bills. It also contemplates the organization of irrigation districts and the financing of the obligations of development, after the manner of municipal improvement districts.

Other resolutions favored the perfecting of the present system of water titles, enactment of legislation to protect the settler against fraud and urging the investigation, by the Legislature, of the Kansas law which permits an official scrutiny of the assets and resources of people who file articles of incorporation.

The work of the Oregon Development League in concentrating its efforts to place people on the land, as opposed to city development, was commended. The irrigation of the large territory tributary to the John Day River was also favored.

The officers elected were: President, William Hanley, of Burns; C. C. Chapman, of the Oregon Development League; Wm. J. Mariner, of Blalock, and M. J. Lee, of Canby, vice presidents; T. J. Hinkle, of Hermiston, Secretary and Treasurer.

The next meeting of the Central Oregon Development League will be held at Lakeview August 20-22. This date was fixed by a conference of representatives of the Lakeview Commercial Club, the Oregon Development League. Plans are being formed to take 400 business men from Portland and other parts of the state to Bend by rail and thence to Lakeview by automobile, returning via Medford. Plans are being made to make the Lakeview meeting memorable.

MRS. W. M. COLVIG

Buried in cemetery in this city Monday.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. M. Colvig, of Medford was held Monday. The services were conducted by Rev. Joseph Sherrin, rector of the Episcopal church of that city, after which interment was made in the cemetery at this place.

Mrs. Colvig was a native of Jackson county. She was born at Fort Birdsey, near Foothills creek. She was the daughter of David and Clara Birdsey who settled on a donation land claim in 1852. Her father died several years ago but her mother, who is now 78 years of age, is still living, her home still being on the old donation land claim. She was married to William M. Colvig on June 8, 1879, and lived with her husband on land adjoining the Birdsey homestead until 1895 when she moved to Jacksonville with her family. The family resided in Jacksonville nineteen years, moving to Medford in 1905 where she has since resided.

Mrs. Colvig was quite prominent in social and lodge affairs and a few years ago was grand chief of honor of the Degree of Honor, a women's auxiliary to the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

Deceased was mother of seven children, five of whom, together with her husband, survive her. The children now living are Mrs. C. L. Reames, Mrs. R. G. Gale, Mrs. W. J. Warner, Vance and Donald Colvig, all living in Medford.
