AFTERMATH.

The election Tuesday was a veritable political landslide; party precedents and political ties being entirely ignored.

That the result was a surprise would be putting it too mildly, in many cases it was overwhelming; this is specially true as regards the presidential election, Wilson carrying about four-fifths of the states, most of them being noted republican strongholds.

The success of the democratic ticket is due entirely to Mr. Roosevelt and his followers in their ill advised attempt to wrest the office from the regular party nominee and the result is a fitting rebuke to the selfish egotism and "Dog in the manger" policy which sought to ruin where it could not rule.

In our state and county the results are considerably mixed; democrats being elected where republicans expected to win and vice versa.

Most of the amendments and measures submitted to a vote of the people were rejected as they deserved to be, in fact many of them ought not have been proposed.

Anyway, the election is over and it is up to all good citizens to cheerfully bow to the will of the majority, realizing that in a government like ours the wishes of the individual must be subservient to that of the majority. Now get to work and help the newly elected officers make it a letter county, state and nation.

Medford certainly displayed the "home manufactures" spirit at the polls Tuesday. We are very sorry to say that Jacksonville did not.

The independent and several other brands of voters were present at the polls, Tuesday.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Made a Big Strike.

W. H. Tate, who has been sinking a shaft near the hanging rock in Ashland canyon, has apparently made his first class strike. Mr. Tate discovered the ledge just above the old water ditch and it was about $4 per foot at the surface. After penetrating feet the ledge shows one which according to assays by F. A. Korman of this city, carries $11.22 per ton. There is no question but there is any quantity of ore in this district that is well worth mining, and this section should have a mining payroll. — Tidings.

John G. Van Dyke Dead.

John Gilmore Van Dyke, a pioneer of Southern Oregon, who crossed the plains in 1852, fought Indians in the new historic battles in this county and Elmath, died at his home, 9 West Seventh street, Medford, Thursday, aged 76 years, 3 months and 10 days. The funeral services will be held today at 2 o'clock, the Rev. Shields officiating. Interment in the I. O. O. F.

edmetry. When 12 years old he moved with his parents to Iowa, and four years later started for Oregon. Mr. Van Dyke was one of the most lovable of men and had a wide circle of friends in city, county and state. — Sun.

Horse Dead, Boy Burned.

A barn on the ranch of C. G. Rush, who resides on Clay street, north of the Boulevard, was burned Wednesday evening. One horse was lost in the fire and Virgil E. Rush, a son of C. G. Rush, was quite badly burned in getting out one horse which was saved. The young man's face was badly burned, as was also his wrist. Dr. Fawcett was called and dressed the injured lad and states that his injuries, while very painful, are not serious. The loss Mr. Rush estimates in the neighborhood of $700, including barn, hay and grain, harness, one horse and damage to the other, the horse rescued badly burned about the head and certain to lose one eye. — Tidings.

Human Ostrich's Stomach Torn.

Pittsfield, Mass., Nov. 6.—A diet of nails, jackknives, keys, button hooks and iron has disagreed with Luke Parsons, the human ostrich. When he applied for admission to the House of Mercy Hospital he said his trouble was indigestion, but an examination revealed a puncture of the abdomen by a sharp nail, which caused peritonitis. When the surgeons operated they found in Parsons' stomach 132 nails ranging from a single nail to a three-inch spike, two keys, a button hook a piece of iron. He rallied after the operation and his condition is described as comfortable. He is about 40 years old.

Burglars Enter Room.

The boldest act of the Ashland burglars was committed Sunday evening when they entered the room of W. F. Loomis and took $165 in gold coin and a gold watch. Mr. Loomis retired to his room in the Oxford rooming house on the corner of Fourth and B streets about ten o'clock, and the only thing he knows of the affair was when he awoke in the morning and found that his pockets had been rifled during the night. He does not connect any occurrence of the previous evening with the affair and while he believes that he was shadowed during the entire evening yet he does not remember of any strangers or suspicious characters following him. — Record.

Land of the Automat.

Germany might almost be called "the land of the automat." Automatic devices of all kinds are popular and are used for a thousand purposes. At all postoffices stamps and post cards are sold by automatic machines; at the railway stations platform tickets and suburban tickets are sold by automats; automat restaurants, where one can secure a glass of beer, wine or liquor, a sandwich, square meal, cup of coffee, chocolate, etc., by dropping a coin in the slot, abound everywhere. Every city of 15,000 or 20,000 population and over has from one to several hundred such restaurants. At railway stations automats sell chocolate, candy, picture post cards and even a little kit of "first aid to the injured" containing a few drops of pain killer, bandages, needles, thread, etc. Ten pfennigs in a slot opens the door of toilet compartments, delivering a towel or piece of soap. A coin in a slot obtains a cigar, a tune from a mechanical music box, a pair of shoe strings, a collar button, a visiting card, name plate for suit case, tells one's fortune or weight, etc.—United States Consular Report.

Flowers and Facts.

There is an Indianapolis attorney who is known for his dignity and who rarely indulges in "flowery" oratory in arguing a case. Some years ago, however, he was engaged in a murder case in which the guilt of the prisoner was apparent, and the lawyer's friends advised him to be "flowery" in an effort to appeal to the sentiment of the jurors. So the attorney took his friends' advice.

"Down in the hills of old Kentucky stands a little cottage," he began. "Around the cottage vines are clinging, and in the doorway stands a gray haired mother waiting—"

"As I was saying, down in the hills of old Kentucky stands a little cottage. Around the cottage vines are clinging, and in the doorway stands a gray haired mother waiting—"

The lawyer paused, and his face turned red.

"And while she is standing there waiting," he continued, "I guess we might as well discuss the facts in this case."—Indianapolis News.

Street Crowds In Caracas.

One of the features of the city of Caracas, Venezuela, that most strongly impresses a foreigner is the rapidity with which a crowd gathers in the streets. This is best exemplified when some of the many wandering musicians, in whom Caracas abounds, prepare to give an impromptu open air concert. Their first notes no sooner echo through the neighborhood than there gathers to listen a vast throng that almost blocks up the thoroughfare. The cobblers and all the other tenants of the entries, having no doors to open or stairs to descend, are on the spot almost instantly. They eagerly drink in the music, but at the same time bear a wary eye upon the hats of the musicians and no sooner do they observe the slightest indication that one is about to be taken off for the purpose of taking up a collection by passing it around among the crowd than they disappear even more quickly than they came.

An Offended Painter.

Here is a story of Whistler's trancelike treatment of Lady Meux, of whom he painted three portraits. It is told in Thomas Wray's "Memoirs of Whistler."

"In view of the number of sittings Whistler wanted and his severe treatment of his models, I think it enormous to the credit of Lady Meux that she should have continued through two and started on the third portrait in which she was painted wearing a mantle of Russian sables. There was a story that, being one day not up to the mark, she sent her maid to stand for her, dressed in the sables. This so offended Whistler that promptly the maid's face appeared in place of that of the mistress, and if the picture still exists, there it probably remains."

Historic Pharsalia.

It was on his way to the battlefield of Pharsalia that Caesar uttered the famous saying to the fishermen. He had come down to Brindisi to cross to Dyrrachium and, finding no galley, commanded the owner of a small sailing boat to put him across the Adriatic. On the voyage a violent storm occurred, and even the experienced mariners were terrified. But the great captain said: "Have no fear. You carry Caesar and his fortunes."

Real Hard Luck.

A fat Frenchman despairingly says, "I am so fat that I pray for a disappointment to make me thin, but no sooner does the disappointment come than the joy at the prospect of getting thin makes me fatter than ever."—London Tit-Bits.

Deftly Turned.

"This isn't like the broad mother makes," said the young married man. "So you are going to start that, are you?" "I was merely congratulating you. Mother never was a very good bread-maker."—Washington Star.

The Explanation.

Autoist—I haven't paid a cent for repairs on my machine in all the ten months I've had it. Friend—So the man who did the repairs told me.—Boston Transcript.

A Mean Hint.

"If I really loved a man I would willingly die for him." "Since you're turning so gray, I don't wonder you're willing to die for anybody."—Exchange.
