ELECT OFFICERS

Bank of Jacksonville Directors Held Meeting Tuesday.

At a well attended meeting of Bank of Jacksonville directors held at the bank building Tuesday evening, new officers were elected and business of the past year gone over. C. M. Ruch of Ruch was elected president to succeed W. R. Coleman, who expects to remove from town in the spring. Mr. Ruch is an enterprising and energetic business man, and has a thorough knowledge of the business. He will doubtless make a very efficient president. Dr. R. E. Golden will serve as vice president, Benj. M. Collins as cashier and Leslie M. Stansell as assistant cashier. The board of directors are: A. W. Sturgis, Dr. R. E. Golden, C. M. Ruch, H. Luy, Ralph G. Jennings and Benj. M. Collins itable one with the Bank of Jacksonville is evidenced by the fact that in that time it made a net earning of 11% per cent on its capital stock. Of this amount $750 was placed in the surplus fund, practically increasing the bank's capitalization that amount. It is planned to increase the capital stock $10,000 the first of July.

"Good morning, sir!" "Mr. Margrave, I presume?" "I am. How can I be of service to

An elderly man received a much younger one in his office. Instead of at once replying to the last question the latter produced a card bearing the name "Alonzo Ericson," then, after being offered a chair, said: "My visit will doubtless seem strange ized at Klamath Falls, composed of to you at first, but I trust that I shall the following: Mrs. A. Y. You have a Faye Hogue, clarinet; Mrs. Allen, daughter whose life has recently been blighted by the loss of her flance?"

"I have," replied Mr. Margrave some what coldly. "There are remedies for such blights, and I come to propose one for this would send out of the state for a wife case.

Mr. Margrave looked at the stranger, wondering at his impudence. "Marriage is the remedy I refer to. but you are well aware that marriage is simply the final act, it being neces sary to withdraw the concentration of

Settlers are coming. Prosper-

Mr. Ericson bowed himself out and in a fortnight received a note from Mr. Margrave stating that the reports he had received had been eminently satisfactory and if he could resurrect a buried heart be was at liberty-indeed, welcome-to do so. In reply the applicant merely asked for a photograph of the man whose place he hoped to take.

One afternoon when Mr. Margrave went home from business he carried with him a present for his daughter. It was a portrait in oils of her lost lover. She was delighted with it and pronounced it a speaking likeness. A month from that day while looking at it she discovered something about it that was slightly unlike the original. or, rather, it was like another picture of the original. Another month went by, and still another difference was noticeable. These changes kept occurring from time to time. She began to wonder if her memory of her lover was slipping away from ber, if the picture was really defective, though she had not at first recognized its defects. She mentioned the matter to her father, who looked at her curiously, thoughtfully, and suggested that if the portrait was destroying her remembrance of the dead and substituting a painted image perhaps she would better banish it. But to this she returned a decided negative, declaring that she was growing to love the portrait more and more every day.

A year after young Ericson had called on Mr. Margrave he dropped into the latter's office one morning with an oil painting. "The successive portraits forming a Office. slow transition between another and myself is ended in this picture, which I painted from my reflection in a mirror. You have been very fortunate in removing the pictures and substituting others without your daughter's discovering what you have done. Hang this portrait in the place of the last; then introduce me." When one evening Mr. Margrave brought home with him a friend to dinner Ethel Margrave, on being introduced to bim, caught at the back of a chair for support. It seemed to her that her lover had arisen from the dead and stood before her. Later, when she mentioned the resemblance of Mr. Ericson to the man she had lost, some admitted that there was a similiarity, others could see none at all. Nevertheless, her mourning was soon thrown off, Ericson was a fre- receive our prompt response. quent caller at the house and within a few months after his introduction she
