Be Independent of Rainfall

THE real business farmer is the farmer with his own irrigation system. If you have that, you are as nearly independent of weather conditions as any farmer can be. The one thing needful is to have the right kind of an irrigating plant—a thoroughly dependable and economical one. There is one sure way. See the I H C local dealer. Get him to help you lay out the right irrigating system and use an to furnish the power. I H C engines can also be used to run a saw, feed grinder, cream separator or any other farm machine. They are so durable that their actual length of service is not yet known. Their durability and economical use of fuel have proved them to be the cheapest engines on the market. Their simplicity, ease of handling, and thorough dependability, have proved them the most satisfactory.

I H C oil and gas engines are built in sizes from 1 to 50-horse power, to operate on gas, gasoline, naphtha, kerosene, distillate, or alcohol. They are made in vertical, horizontal, portable, skidded, stationary, air-cooled and water-cooled styles. Oil tractors, 12, 15, 20, 25, 30, and 45 and 60-horse power for plowing, threshing, etc., and combination outfits, sprayers, hay presses, pumps, etc., complete the line.
