Geoffery O'Hara, recently appointed by the Interior Department at Washington to record the travel songs and music of all American Indians, began his work in New York City last week by taking his first phonographic records of the songs of the Blackfoot Indians from Glacier National Park, Montana. Secretary of the Interior Lane took advantage of the presence of the Blackfoot Indians in New York, where they came to attend the Travel and Vacation show as guests of Louis W. Hill, chairman of the Board of Directors of Great Northern Railway. He sent Mr. O'Hara on to New York from Washington, to begin his laborious task with these Indians. During the stay of the red men in New York, Mr. O'Hara had them sing into phonographs and the records will be sent on to Washington to be put in the government archives, therefore preserving for all time the music of the original Americans, who are rapidly passing to the Happy Hunting Ground.
 The accompanying picture shows the Indians singing to the phonographs under the direction of Mr. O'Hara.

The Indians could hardly grasp the idea at first of how they could sing into a tin horn and thereby record their music. After the first song had been sung, however, the reproduction was given them in a few minutes and the magic of the operation was bewildering to them. They thought it was the most wonderful of all the wonders they have seen, since their invasion of Greater New York. Mr. O'Hara had them sing daily to his phonograph, while the Indians were in New York and he is arranging to visit Glacier National Park early this summer and complete his records of the Blackfoot tribe there.
 Through the Interior Department arrangements were made to take these records privately in an out of the way loft, second floor of 61 West 37th Street. Mr. O'Hara is a tenor singer and writer of songs of some note. Several of his musical friends prominent in the musical world in New York City and are very much interested with him, in the rhythm of the Glacier Park Indians' love songs. There is one song in particular which the Glacier Park Indians sing, in which these musical critics find considerable merit. This is a song descriptive of the Blackfoot Indians' love of his home environment. This is a song which they always have sung when they left the shadows of the Rocky Mountains and rode far over the prairies either on hunting expeditions or to fight the Sioux. Big Top, the Indians' interpreter, says, "His people always sing this song because when they go away from the mountains their hearts are lonely and it makes them think of 'Home, Sweet Home.' Mr. Louis W. Hill, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Great Northern Railway, who has done much for the Indians of the West in an educational way, both in agriculture and travel, is very much interested in Mr. O'Hara's work and has arranged to accompany him personally on his visit to the Glacier National Park reservation in Montana during the early summer. Mr. O'Hara will take his phonograph with him and make records right in the tepees of these Indians in their own environment.

Purifying the Language.
 The female red deer is known as a hind, not a doe. The young deer is known not as a fawn, but as a calf. These trifles are very suggestive to sensitive ears.—London Spectator.

Origin of the Christmas Stocking.
 From Italy comes the legend from which we are supposed to get the time honored custom of hanging up the Christmas stockings. Good old St. Nicholas of Padua used to throw long knitted purses tied at both ends into the open windows of the very poor people, and these purses were of yarn and not unlike a footless stocking. Finally it became the custom of the people to hang these empty receptacles out of their windows on the night before Christmas so that St. Nicholas would put a gift into them as he passed by. By and by, when the coin of the realm became scarce, toys were put in for the children and useful presents for grown people. In the north country, where it was rather chilly at Christmas time, the purses were hung on the mantelpiece, and it was believed that the good old saint would come down the chimney and fill them. When these purses went out of fashion stockings were substituted and have been used ever since.

Feeling a Presence.
 Reading a book recently, the writer was arrested by one sentence: "He went into a room without knowing you to be there I should at once feel your presence." It is the imaginative address from a man to a woman. Most of us possibly have that curious instinct—the obverse of that of the horse that will not rest in a stable that has housed a bear—the instinct that knows the presence of the affinity. There are people—being to the general view excellent citizens—whom you cannot abide. There are people whose presence you detest and resent, and though you could give no particular reason for the antipathy you would rather die suddenly than live in the same street with them. Those are usually, I think, relatives of some sort who have the traditional claim to make themselves a nuisance. But haven't you felt the presence of the person you like?—London Chronicle.

Encouraging.
 Recently an employee in a business house who had held a clerkship for several years went to the boss with a plea for an increase in salary.
 "I asked you for a little more salary a year ago," said the clerk, "but you told me that you were not able to give it to me at that time. Now a little baby has come to our home, which will add to the expense, and I would be very glad if you could favorably consider my request."
 "I see, I see," thoughtfully replied the boss. "Let me think it over a minute. Boy, I suppose?"
 "Yes, sir," happily answered the clerk, greatly encouraged by his employer's attitude.
 "I think I can fix it," responded the employer. "I won't be able to give you any more money, but just as soon as the boy gets big enough we will find a position for him in the office here."—Philadelphia Telegraph.
