

THE BEAR THAT JOKED

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

"I might have hawgs to sell but fur the b'ars, and I might have bacon in my smokin' house but fur the darkeys. Twixt the one and t'other I'm driven to eat coon and possum meat most of the time. Dawg-gone b'ars and dawg-gone darkeys!"

"The Arkansas squatter, having delivered himself of the above, filled his cornob anew, drew several long puffs and continued:

"Everybody knows what a taste the derby has fur bacon, but you will meet up with mighty few people who know that a b'ar will face most any odds to git hold of fresh pork.

"Aside from the pork question, the b'ar is also smart in hev'n a sense of humor. I never heard one go haw, haw, haw, but I've seen 'em wearin' a grin and feelin' tickled.

"It was one night about five years ago that a b'ar come along at night and took my pig out of the pen. I was lym sick at the time and couldn't git out to shoot him, but I reckoned he'd hang around till I got a show to git even.

"It was a month befo' I was out, and then spring had come, and fur was no good. All I could do was to play a joke on that varmint and make him feel bad. I got some barbed wire and strung it across the pen, and when all was ready I killed a woodchuck and dragged him around the pen and throwed his carcass in. The old woman seen what was goin' on and said:

"Jim, are yo' barbed wire to tangle that b'ar up in that garble wire?"

"That's what it's fur," said I.

"What yo' got ag'in him?"

"He carried off our hawg."

"That was becase yo' was too lazy to roof the pen in. I wouldn't do any foolin' with that b'ar. He cum loafin' round yere the other day when yo' was away, and he looked mighty serious and solemn. He ain't no critter to joke with."

"But he'll hev to stand it jest the same. If he gits among them wires he'll feel tickled to death."

"Waal," said she, "yo' go ahead, but I'm tellin' yo' that if yo' joke with that b'ar he'll cum out ahead. That's b'ars and b'ars. Some goes in fur fun, and some don't."

"That night about seven o'clock that b'ar cum spookin' round. I was awake and heard him snifflin'. But I kept quiet till he climbed up the logs of the pen and dropped down inside. He knowed woodchuck from hawg, of co'se, but woodchuck was good 'nuff for him jest then. If he saw them barbed wires he took 'em fur strings. Leastwise he leaped right down, and next mornin' he was makin' fuss 'nuff fur three dog figs. They heard him howlin' way over to Jim Tanner's place. Lawd, ash, but it made my b'ar stand up to hear him take out! But I got on my clothes and went out to rub it into him a little. Lookin' down into the pen, I entied him a hawg thief and lots of other names, and every time he roared I laughed in his face. I jest poked fun at that critter till I was tired. How the varmint got free and got out of the pen I dunno, but he was gone in the mornin'. That was blood and fur all round the pen, and that was fur scented all round the yard, and I reckon he'd had a bad time of it. That was the last I seen of that b'ar for a long time—in fact, so many weeks had gone by I'd clean forgotten him when I cum home one day and the old woman said to me:

"Jim, camp meetin' begins tomorrow at Coon Creek, and we'll tote ourselves over thar."

"Too much shoutin'," said I.

"Yo' never mind the shoutin', but git ready."

"I didn't need to go, but I didn't want to fuss, and so the next mornin' we toted along. We reckoned to stay fo' days, but on the second day the old woman said to me:

"Jim, yo' 'member that b'ar yo' joked with?"

"I reckon."

"Ever seen him sence?"

"Noop."

"Waal, I've had a viston. I was puttin' the beans over to cook while I listened to the preachin' when that b'ar seemed to rise right up befo' me, and he was grinlin'."

"What about?"

"I couldn't say, but he was feelin' powerful good natured over sunthin'. Don't yo' reckon we'd better go home?"

"What fur?"

"To see if that varmint hadn't bin up to smuthin'. He may hev got the cabin doah open."

"I laughed at her fur a spell, but she got so anxious that we finally sot out fur home. We was still half a mile away when a cloud of feathers came flyin' through the air, and we both groaned. When we got a little nearer we saw the front door open, and later on we looked in upon such a scene as no cyclone ever left behind. That blamed b'ar had bin in the cabin fur a day or two, and he had jst clawed and scratched and bit and destroyed till the fireplace was about the only thing left. We stood thar fur awhile and didn't say nuthin'. Then the old woman quietly turned to me and asked:

"Are this Jim Hope of Arkansas?"

"She are," I said.

"Waal, Jim Hope," she said as she p'inted to the destruction inside and made me a kerch, "yo' are altogether too funny fur me, and I'd walk over to mother's and stop till yo' git ready to hev cacklin' barbed wire jokes?"

A ROYAL FROLIC.

Napoleon's Practical Joke Insulted Empress Eugenie.

A fondness for joking is often a trait of royal personages, who—perhaps in no nonsense a cheerful relief from the decorous tedium of their official appearance. The New York Times recalls an instance in which the beautiful Empress Eugenie of France was victimized, with the connivance of her husband, Napoleon III., by an amusing pantomime.

A special embassy had arrived in Paris from Burma. Three days after its arrival the court was notified that the solemn reception of the mission by their majesties would take place on the following evening at the Tuilleries. At the appointed hour Napoleon and Eugenie, surrounded by all the principal members of their household, took their places upon the dais in the throne room.

The emperor gave orders for the introduction of the embassy, the folding doors at the farther end of the great hall were thrown open, and a number of white-robed and fantastically turbaned individuals, some of them with long, gray beards, crossed the threshold, threw themselves prostrate upon the floor and began to crawl toward the throne with the most extravagant contortions.

The tax upon the gravity of the gentlemen and ladies present was so great that only the frowns of the empress—as usual, most concerned that propriety and gravity should prevail—prevented them from laughing outright.

Two-thirds of the way to the throne the three venerable leaders of the embassy stopped wriggling and began to turn somersaults. Eugenie evidently believed that to be the proper method of showing respect in Burma, for when the ordinarily impressive emperor began also to laugh she remonstrated with him for his want of decorum in tones that could be heard by those who stood round the throne.

At that moment the most aged of the Burman ambassadors reached the foot of the throne in a final somersault that landed him prostrate at the feet of the empress with such violence that his headless flew off and with it, alas, his long white beard. To the astonished gaze of Eugenie were revealed the features of the Marquis de Gallifert, afterward a celebrated general and minister of war, but then a dashing cavalry captain. Every one broke into shouts of laughter, especially when the remaining members of the embassy removed their beards and turbans and were recognized as members of the imperial entourage.

Every one enjoyed the joke except the empress. She burst into a flood of tears, declared that she had been cruelly insulted, swept out of the throne room and left Paris in anger on the following morning. Every one who believes that practical jokes, even when amusing, have a savor of meanness will be glad to know that it was several weeks before Napoleon could make his peace with her.

England's Boasted Power.

Europe combined against France and was beaten, the failure being largely due to us. The balance of power being overthrown the war continued for twenty-three years. Our feet were powerless to bring it to a close. It continued for nearly ten years after our signal victory at Trafalgar. Our army was only able to land very small numbers in Spain and formed about a quarter of the allied force which defeated Napoleon at Waterloo. We have never fought a great land campaign against a European power in the whole of our history. We have never faced a European enemy with more than 40,000 men. The balance has been made up by foreigners. And on the strength of that we talk of having beaten the world!—Lord Percy in the National Review, London.

Salt in Butter.

The notion that salt "brings out" the flavor of butter is ridiculous. It spoils it. In the gastronomic countries of Europe the consumer would no more allow salt to be put into the butter he eats than into the cream he puts in his coffee or the ice cream he takes for his dessert. There is absolutely no excuse for continuing the barbarous practice of denaturing American butter by the addition of salt. It does not even help to make it keep.—Henry T. Pink's "Food and Flavor."

The Worm Turns.

Mrs. Gnaggs—You miserable worm! Out of my way! You're always kicking because I want to get out some where!

Mr. Gnaggs—Now, look here—

Mrs. Gnaggs—Not a word from you, now! Come here and hook up my dress!

Mr. Gnaggs—Now, look here, Jennie, if you mean to imply I'm a hookworm I'm darned if I stand it!—St. Louis Republic.

Unpardonable Offense.

Visitor—Who is the long haired officer? Police Chief—He was formerly a unsoldier, but changed his calling to benefit his health. Visitor—Is he a good polieman? Police Chief—Generally. But the first day he was on the force he arrested a man for trying to play Schubert's "Serenade" on a bagpipe.—Youngstown Telegram.

All His Own.

"Does your lad find his snms hard?"

"Oh, no. The snms are easy enough, but his results are too original to suit the teacher."—Flegende Blatter.

I began life with a sixpence and believe that a man's best capital is his industry.—Stephen Girard.
