

A DEPUTY SHERIFF

By M. QUAD

The stranger adult that first caught sight of the Widow Henderson of the town of Grand Ledge laughed outright or was dumb with amazement.

The Widow Henderson was exactly six feet four inches in height and weighed 200 pounds. Whether it was six feet four in her stockings or with her shoes on is none of the reader's business. She was homely as a burdock and as rugged as an oak. She had a voice like a bass drum and the strength of an ox.

You may have noticed that big men always marry little women, and vice versa. Her deceased husband was only five feet tall and his weight was just an even hundred. When she moved to Grand Ledge from a distant town she soon ran across Peter Hipps and marked him down for husband No. 2. Peter was five feet tall and weighed ninety-eight pounds. His face was smooth, and his voice was girlish.

The young man was by no means dull witted, but he was made the victim of much chaffing and joking. The climax came when the sheriff of the county appointed him a deputy. Grand Ledge was a pretty hard town, and there were a score of farmers around who came in at least once a week and made it worse. Peter Hipps was a cipher to them. Whenever he tried to exert his authority he was carried out and dumped into a mudhole or dropped off the bridge over the creek. Sometimes he was chased out of town and didn't dare return for two or three days.

The Widow Henderson heard and saw and knew, and one day when she met the lightweight deputy on the street she said:

"Baby, you sure need a protector. Shall we get married?"

"You bet."

And married they were next day, and on the next the bride walked seven miles to the county seat town and into the sheriff's office to say to that official:

"I want to be deputy sheriff at Grand Ledge."

"I'm looking for some one."

"Well, you needn't look any further. If I can't straighten the kinks out within a month I'll resign."

"Mobile you know I appointed Pete Hipps as a joke?" queried the officer.

"Yes, I do, and you can appoint me the same way if you want to, but there won't be much joking after I get started. I'll make it a very solemn business for most of 'em."

"Well, I expect there'll be lots of talk about it, but you shall be a deputy."

The town considered that marriage as the greatest joke for twenty years. Every time it was mentioned a dozen men hoisted and took another drink. They paraded in front of the bride's house and sang and swore and cat called and scolded poor Peter until he crept under the bed and wailed:

"I thought you was going to do something!"

"No hurry, baby," was the reply "I'm giving the calf all the rope it wants. It ain't aghn the law to boot around when a couple gets married."

Next forenoon half a dozen burly handed sons of toil came in to sell their butter and eggs and have some fun. The fun was to consist of taking three or four drinks apiece and then chucking the newlyweds off the bridge together. Word was sent them that if they did not appear voluntarily the mob would pay the house a visit.

"Well, baby, the time has come," grinsly announced the bride to the groom.

"Lord, but I'm scairt to death!" replied Peter as his teeth began to chatter.

"Fatsy, lemme tell you something. There's going to be a row, and we shall both be in it. You pin on your badge, get your handkerchiefs and club, and we are going out to crack heads. If you don't fight like a man nine feet high I'll take you over my knee and spank you before the whole town. Come on now."

Pete was all a shiver, but he obeyed her. There were fifty men waiting in front of the residence, and of the number at least twenty were hilarious and ripe for mischief.

"To the creek! To the creek!" was shouted as the bride and groom halted and faced them.

"Now, baby," said the wife in a quiet voice, "the fun is due to begin! Pick out the hard cases and strike like the kick of a mule! It's a public spanking if you show the white feather!"

With a couple of warwhoops that would have done credit to Custer's chiefs, bride and groom strove in the toughs were taken unprepared. The clubs were wielded without mercy, and the rabble broke and fled with hardly a defense. They were followed and given more club, and then to the number of twelve were arrested, locked up for a couple of hours, and then taken before the justice of the peace and fined $7 each. The next day six men who couldn't see the point were hauled in and on the next three, in a month Grand Ledge looked good to everybody, and Mr. and Mrs. Hipps were on the top rung of the ladder of fame.

"Is the woman to be deputy right along?" was asked of the sheriff.

"You bet your boots," was the reply, "and when my term is out I'm going to get her nominated for my place, and Peter can be her bottle holder. Sakes alive, but how she would have stunned John L. around in his palmy days!"

When Juries Meet.
Up in Alaska there used to be a district attorney who was long on native oratory, but short on education. Once, while prosecuting a big case, he came to the finish of his argument, and, according to Wilson Mizner, who was up there at the time, he leaned across the rail and made this plea: "All I asks of you gentlemen of the jury, is that you now retire and mete out justice as she deserves to be met!" - Saturday Evening Post.

A Park of Glaciers.
Glacier National park is situated in northern Montana, 200 miles northwest of Yellowstone park in an air line and 447 miles by railroad. It is under the control and supervision of the secretary of the interior, who is represented in the actual administration of the park by a superintendent, assisted by a number of park rangers who patrol the reservation. The park is bounded on the north by the Canadian line, on the east by the Blackfoot reservation and on the west and south by the Flathead river. It has an area of about 915,000 acres and derives its name from many glaciers which are scattered throughout its area. There are eighty glaciers between five square miles and a few acres in area. The park is a rugged mountainous region and contains over 250 lakes, which are surrounded by steep and beautifully wooded mountains.

Alpine Egg Dance.
A curious eastern custom has been observed for many centuries in the western Alps. One hundred eggs are distributed over a level space covered with sand and the young men and women perform a dance around them. If a couple are fortunate enough to finish the dance without breaking an egg it is taken as a token of the compatibility of their temperaments and they are betrothed.

Little minds are vexed with trifles.
