SCIENCE NOTES

From Recent Number of the Scientific American.

Col. W. C. Gorgas, U. S. A., famous for his sanitary achievements in Cuba and Panama, has been invited to advise on sanitary conditions at Johannesburg, South Africa.

It is reported in the London Times that the government of Tunis is about to establish a reserve to give refuge to the, at present, rapidly disappearing fauna of that country. It will include about 4,000 acres of wild mountainous country and an adjoining marsh of 5,000 acres.

Ammonia bombs are being used on some of the national forests in this country to extinguish forest fires, especially in connection with brush fires, where the fire-fighters cannot get near enough to the burning area to beat out the flames. It is said that each well-explored bomb will extinguish fire in a circle of about five yards diameter.

Sir Aurel Stein, of the Archaeological Survey of India, is about to undertake archaeological and geographical investigations in central Asia and western China, in continuation of the remarkable work he did in those regions between 1905 and 1908. His journey to the border of Chinese Turkestan by way of the Pamirs will take him through the Darel and Tanjur territories, which have not heretofore been visited by a European.

The calosoma beetle, an imported natural enemy of the gypsy moth, is to be multiplying very fast in the moth infested territory of Massachusetts and seems likely to do much toward keeping this pest in check. This is only one of a dozen or more species of insects that are being used in the moth campaign, so that, as American Forestry points out, the outlook is decidedly encouraging.

The London Times reports that King George has requested the Meteorological Office to supply him regularly with its daily weather map. Sir Frederick Ponsonby, in transmitting this request explained that "his Majesty has always taken a great interest in the chart and details concerning the barometer since he was on board H. M. S. "Thrush." The King is patron of the Royal Meteorological Society.

A census of Greenland taken October 1st, 1911, shows a population of 13,459, as compared with 11,833 in 1901. The increase in the intervening ten years was the largest on record. There is practically no immigration, and the European population numbers only 384, of whom 70 were born in Greenland, 287 in Denmark, 4 in the Faroe Islands and 24 in other lands. The largest settlement is Sisroden, with a population of 766; the smallest, Skansen in North Greenland, with a population of 43.

Careful John.
A rural storekeeper was greatly bothered by rats which infested his building, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Also he possessed a valuable watch dog which guarded the premises at night. One night, just before he locked up, he scattered poison around the place and left a note on the counter for the clerk who opened the store in the morning.

The clerk found the note as was intended. But he nearly dropped through the floor when he read:
"Jerry—You take the poison in the morning so the dog won't get it. There is some in the cellar too. John."

The Signal.
"How do you endure listening to Bilgins' funny stories? He spoils them by laughing at them himself."
"That's what I like about him. You don't have to listen in order to laugh at the right time. All you have to do is to wait till he gives the signal."
—Washington Star.

Amended.
An English official once said to Father Healy, the famous Irish wit:
"Healy, I've got a crow to pick with you."
"Make it a turkey," said Father Healy, as quick as a wink, "and I'll join you at 4 sharp."

Semiprecious Metals.
It appears from recent geological survey publications that the "semiprecious" metals are copper, lead and zinc. Where quicksilver and tin get off on this classification we are not informed. Aluminum also sometimes sells higher than the three first mentioned and antimony for more than lead and zinc. These are probably the quasi-precious metals. When we younger the metals were classed as precious and common, we believe. Now probably iron is alone in the "common" category. What is the use anyway—if there are no privates in an army what is the joy in being a corporal, and why "semiprecious" if there is going to be only iron besides?—Engineering and Mining Journal.

Wofully Mistaken.
"I suppose," said the new saleswoman, "that you want a suit that will make you look attractive to your husband?"
"Attractive to my husband?" echoed the shopper. "I should say not. He wouldn't know if I wore a suit ten years old. What I want is something that will make my next door neighbor turn a pale pink green with envy."
—Buffalo Express.

Quiser Taxes Abroad.
There are some queer taxes imposed in some of the countries of the old world.
In Serbia vanity is taxed, a 40 per cent tax on wigs, on rouge and on pads and bustles.
Bachelors are heavily taxed in several countries, but spinsters everywhere escape this impost.
Matrimony is taxed in China, and the older the bridegroom is than the bride the greater the tax levied on him. It is the wise Chinese theory that when an old man gets a young wife he is necessarily a rich old man and one well able to stand a heavy tax.

In Italy salt is taxed. Matches are taxed in France. These things yield an enormous revenue, and the tax is very little felt.
Germany taxes music. If you play the piano you must pay a tax, and if you sing you are taxed again.

The Geologist's Clock.
Each fossiliferous rock bed contains characteristic forms or groups of forms that determine the period to which it was laid or sand. Former Director Powell of the United States geological survey once tersely explained to a congressional committee the value of paleontology by saying that it is "the geologist's clock," by which he tells the time when rock beds were formed. The economic importance of paleontology has been repeatedly shown in this country. In the earliest exploitation of anthracite coal thousands of dollars were fruitlessly expended in New York in search of coal beds until the New York geologists showed that the beds in that state could contain no coal. The fossils in the rocks exploited are Devonian, whereas the fossils of the Pennsylvania anthracite coal beds belong to the carboniferous, a much later period. This discovery at once stopped a useless expenditure of money.—Arizonian.

A Fatal Sleep.
Hugh Miller, the Scottish geologist and writer, was one of the most illustrious of sleepwalkers. Miller, who had been addicted to somnambulism in his youth, found his restless return while he was engaged upon his "Testimony of the Rocks." He used to wake in the morning feeling, as he said, as if he had been abroad in the night wind, dragged by some invisible power and ridden by witches. On the night of his death he slept alone. In the morning they found him stretched dead on the floor with a bullet through his breast. He had written a note to his wife: "My brain burns. I must have walked, and a fearful dream rises upon me. I cannot bear the horrible thought. My brain burns as the recollection grows." So intense had been the poor fellow's anguish that to make certain his end he had torn back shirt and vest and placed the muzzle of the pistol to his naked flesh.—St. James Gazette.

Too Ready With Assistance.
Smith-Goldmore is a very generous old fellow. Do you know, go's always helping somebody out. Jones sadly: "Yes, I know. I was down to see my daughter the other night, and he helped me out too.—Stray Stories.

When You Crack Your Hat.
If you ever crack your hat enough to smash a new derby hat, so that it cracks and in spite of vigorous rubbing and by using remedies to resume its pristine smoothness of surface, try the simple expedient of holding a diamond match inside the hat close to the broken spot. By the time the match has burned out you will find that the hat has become soft. If you will then brush it vigorously with a stiff brush for a moment it will regain its former smoothness and look as if nothing had ever marred its surface.—New York Sun.

Pronouncing London Names.
It is by his pronunciation of the place names of London that a stranger may be detected. If he says Holborn instead of "Hoborn." Mary-le-bone with the full pronunciation of each syllable or South-wark instead of "Suthark." We know at once that he is not of the town. And there is a pronunciation that is peculiar to cabmen and bus conductors, such as West-min-ster for Westminster. High park for Hyde park and, most peculiar of all, which the taxi driver has inherited from the old hansom cabman, the custom of calling the well known plazas in Covent Garden the "peas'ches." And this reminds us that the garden, as salesmen and actors call it, is invariably styled by the market porters "Common Garden."—London Standard.

Odd Case.
"The man they ejected from the hall was burning with rage."
"Yes, and, strange to say, he was full of fire after they put him out."—Baltimore American.
