HELD TO GRAND JURY

Medford Man Bound Over by Justice Dux

Tom Witt, of Medford charged with a statutory crime against Phibia Withersell, was bound over to the grand jury Thursday morning by Justice Dux in this city. Attorney Kelly will investigate the age of the girl, which is in doubt, and probe allegations regarding relation of others with the girl.

A spectator at the hearing told Prosecutor Kelly he had known Mrs. Arthur Walsh, the girl's mother, for years and that Phibia was born in 1894 or 1895 at Yreka, which would make her age nearer 20 years than 15, which she claims, and would bar her admission to the state industrial school.

Notice to Parents

Children will be received in the "Beginners" Class in the first year's work of the Jacksonville School until Monday, Jan. 19th. No child will be admitted after that date.

The minimum age admission is six years. If you have any children ready for school work have them start with the organization of this class.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE FARMERS' WEEK

December 8 to 13, 1913

This will be a notable event in the educational history of Oregon.

Farmers' Co-operation will be the leading topic of a stimulating series of lectures. The week will be crowded with discussions, and demonstrations in everything that makes for the welfare of the farmer and home-maker.

WINTER SHORT COURSE

January 5 to 30, 1914

The College has spared no effort to make this the most complete short course in its history. A very wide range of courses will be offered in General Agriculture, Horticulture, Animal Husbandry, Dairying, Poultry Keeping, Mechanical Arts, Domestic Science and Art, Commerce, Forestry and Music. Numerous lectures and discussions on FARMERS' CO-OPERATION, at home and abroad, will be a leading feature. Make this a pleasant and profitable winter outing. No tuition. Accommodations reasonable. Reduced rates on all railroads. For further information address

H. M. TENNANT, Registrar, Corvallis, Oregon.

Farmers' Business Courses by Correspondence without tuition.

Henri Rochefort and Beranger.

One finds an interesting link with the past in the fact that Henri Rochefort began his literary career as a poet and in that character presented a poem, together with a letter of introduction, to no less a literary master than Beranger, whose reply, carefully preserved by the distinguished journalist, is interesting.

"Can it be true," Beranger wrote, "that you are only sixteen? If I had written verses so well turned at that age I should indeed have believed that a great destiny was in store for me. But then you college gentlemen are brought up, as it were, in forcing houses, whereas when I was sixteen I hardly knew how to spell. Remember, then, all the devices employed for the development of your faculties and do not be too uplifted by vanity at the praises of an old rimer, dazzled by your compliments."

And the letter concludes with a commendation to the young aspirant to return to his studies and not to challenge serious criticism by premature publication.—Westminster Gazette.

To See Through Paper.

A very remarkable experiment which any one can repeat with very little trouble has been uncerthored by a German. Take a piece of paper of such thickness that when it is laid upon a piece of printed matter the characters just show through, but cannot be read. Place it over a printed sheet, impart to it a circular motion to and fro, and to your surprise you will find that now you can read the print below the paper. It is rather difficult to explain this peculiar effect. The explanation offered is that the paper has thin places in it, and by rapidly moving it over the print every part of the printed matter is exposed in turn underneath one or the other of the thin places in the paper, and thus the entire print can be read. However that may be, the experiment is interesting and very simple, requiring for its performance only the simplest means imaginable.—New York Press.

Helping Her Mamma.

The Youngs had dropped in unexpectedly upon the Baileys just as dinner was about to be served. Mother, who was somewhat disturbed, called Helen aside and explained that there would not be oysters enough to go round and added: "Now, you and I will just have some of the broth. And please do not make any fuss about it at table."

Little Helen promised to be good and say nothing. But when the oysters were served Helen discovered a small one that had been accidentally landed up with her broth. She could not remember any instructions that covered this contingency, so after studying the situation awhile, she held the oyster up as high as she could on her spoon and piped out:

"Mamma, mamma, shouldn't Mrs. Young have this oyster too?"—New York Globe.

Sunstroke.

Sunstroke is caused by invisible violet rays from the sun and not by heat. The temperature to which stokers on Atlantic liners are exposed is far higher than the heat from the sun in the most tropical countries, yet the men are not affected in the same manner.

Woman's Two Ages.

Jonx—Shakespeare told us all about the seven ages of man, but he didn't say anything about the two ages of woman. How?—And what are the two ages of woman?—Jonx—The age she says she is and the age she really is.—Philadelphia Record.

Husband and Wife.

Hubband means home bound, wife, weaving one; son is the cleaner; daughter is the milk; spinster is the unmarried sister of husband or wife, who is the spinner.

Vicious.

Mr. Henry Peck (the bridegroom)—Come this way, Miss Pickles. I want to show you my new talking machine. Miss Pickles—I believe I have met Mrs. Peck before.—Boston Post.

Never Again.

"Why don't you give your wife an allowance?"
"I did once, and she spent it before I could borrow it back."—Washington Herald.

Life is measured by experience and not by years.—Latin Proverb.

What Hises Sound Like to an Actor. In the American Magazine David Warfield, giving his stage experiences, tells how terrible it is from the actor's point of view to be hissed:

"I next appeared at the Wigwam, telling stories and giving imitations. I came a terrible cropper, something fearful! I was second in the bill, which is the worst place but one. I shall never forget the anxiety I felt on that occasion as I stood in the wings waiting for my turn to go on. At last I appeared before the footlights. The audience was drifting in, shuffling in in a desultory way. I could not get its attention. It was awful, awful. The few friends I had there applauded me, but the others hissed. It sounded as if 10,000 steam pipes had burst. A hiss to a sensitive man—and all actors are sensitive since all are vain—is like the strike of a rattlesnake. It is so venomous, so cruel, so unnecessary! It is as if you had done the people out in front an injury with malice prepense instead of having sincerely tried to please them. You don't even dare to face your own mother; you're so dreadfully guilty."

Got on Dangerous Ground.

Telling of his experience in Jolo, in the Philippines, a writer in the New York Times says: "When I was first picking up some of their language there ran toward me one day a handsomely dressed little boy, his mother following at a distance. I picked the boy up and asked his mother how much he was worth. I thought it an utterly harmless way of attempting a civility. But the scream the mother let out, followed by a quick rushing of men with knives from all the huts roundabout, soon convinced me I had offended seriously. A priest of their faith, who had been giving me language lessons, was luckily among the first to arrive. I explained to him I had meant nothing wrong. He in turn explained to me that bartering in children was very much of a reality among them and, more than that, that it was not the custom for any man ever to address a remark to their women at all. I had doubly offended, as the child was a datto's son, and only the children of the low and enslaved were for sale."

Wedded Eyebrows.

In Turkey meeting eyebrows are greatly admired, and the women use artificial means to bring the brows to this condition, and if art cannot induce thin eyebrows to grow they make up by drawing a black line with paste. It would appear that the Greeks admired brows which almost met, and the fashionable inhabitants of Rome not only approved of them, but resorted to pluckings to make up the lack which sometimes existed.

Some proverbists state that the person whose eyebrows meet will always have good luck, while others state exactly the reverse. The Chinese say that "people whose eyebrows meet can never hope to attain to the dignity of a minister of state," and in Greece of today the man whose brows meet is said to be a vampire, while in Denmark and Germany it is said he is a werewolf.—London Spectator.

Don't Scratch a Mole.

Dr. Jean Dartier, speaking before the French Association For the Study of Cancer, referred to the tragic possibilities of the innocent looking mole. "Scratch a mole," he said, "and you may catch a cancer."

Some moles were harmless and some were potentially poisonous, he continued. The only wise course was to leave well enough alone and resist the temptation to scratch the mole. Warts and wens should be borne patiently unless worse befall their possessors. Dr. Dartier told of a man who by cauterizing a harmless wart on his hand transformed it into a cancer.

Met Its Match.

A cyclone visited the negro quarters in an Alabama mining camp several years ago. It tumbled down the cabins and not one joist or sill was left standing. Uncle Joe was the only one who came through the visitation unscathed.

"Yas, sah," he said, "I hea'd dat wif' comin' through de bresh, an' I see it, an' I felt it, an' I knew it was er slykone—an' I's de onliest pussion in dat settlement wot could say, 'Heh she comes, an' 'Dar she goes!'"—New York Post.

National Conversations.

If you see three men standing together on the sidewalk in any given country, you can guess the subject of their conversation. In Germany it is the army; in Russia, the bureaucracy; in France, women; in the United States, business; in England, sport, and in Turkey nothing at all.—Brussels Journal.

His Manifold Aspect.

Small Boy—Mamma, is it really true that the devil has horns and a club foot? The Mother—Ah, my dear, sometimes the devil appears in the shape of a very handsome and charming young man! Small Boy (pityingly)—Oh, mamma, you're thinking of Cupid!—London Punch.

Only One Mood.

Inquisitive Friend—Don't you find that your wife is very subject to moods? Ennuec—No; she has only one mood, the imperative, and I'm the one that's subject to that!—Judge.

Heart and Hard.

The surname Heart is really a corruption of Hard, which was a name given to show that the owner was a man of firm character and resolute bearing.

Sacred Deer.

From time immemorial deer have been held in reverent regard by the Japanese. Herds are kept in compounds, and the highest respect is paid to the animals. In olden times the shogun gave the people such a strict order to protect the sacred animals that if any one happened to hurt or kill them he was put to death on the spot. It was a period of terror. Even at the present day the deer are so tame and abundant in the shrine grounds that they in fine weather stroll to the streets by twos and threes and surround passersby, asking for food and even taking the persons' sleeves in their mouths affectionately. Once a year some of the deer are caught by means of a net with a handle by several timers (in service of the Kasuga shrine office) and taken to an enclosure, where their splendid horns are cut off with a saw, while a crowd of spectators watch the work with breathless interest (admission 10 sen, equal to about 5 cents). This done, some of the sacred horns are, as a custom, awarded to the spectators by means of lottery.

Diullusion.

The unmarried woman who shall be the subject of this note was fixing herself up to go out in the evening. A certain man was going to call for her, and though the occasion was somewhat spoiled by the fact that they would have to take her little niece along she nevertheless took the usual care of her complexion, hair and eyes, for the man was trembling on the verge of a proposal. The trio—niece, auntie's bean and auntie's niece—walked along the street until they came to one of those all night photograph galleries. You know how awful a person looks standing in the ghastly glare of the mercury tube lights that they put in the windows of such places? Well, they paused in that awful greeny-yellow light. And the little niece said to auntie's bean:

"Ooo-oo, look! Auntie looks just like she does when she first gets up in the morning!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sitting Cross Legged.

Fully 80 per cent of the men and women who travel in the trains and street cars sit cross legged, and this habit is responsible for many ills, according to a prominent London physician. The prime objection against this habit, he says, is that the return flow of blood from the leg is stopped at the knee, the result being that the veins in the leg swell up. All the weight is thrown on one side of the body, and the under leg goes to sleep owing to the pressure put on the sciatic nerve. The body should be equally balanced. Then there is another danger. Too much crossing of the legs is sure to bring lopsidedness. Let the legs rest limply. In that way the muscles become equal, while the flow into and the return of blood from the legs is naturally done and the body is equally balanced.
