INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

Manufacturing Enterprises and Improvements Providing Payroll and Promoting Development of Oregon

(Prepared by the State Bureau of Industries and Statistics.)

Labor Commissioner Hoff has renewed his fight to force all public institutions upon an eight hour day and the State Board of Control refuses to comply, saying the legislature did not intend to put the state employees under the eight-hour public works law.

The Farmer's Union of Crook county has decided to build a cooperative store at Marshfield.

M. D. Phipps is shipping 200 calves to Silverton to help out the dairy industry.

Bandon churches are building a revival tabernacle

The J. K. Armsby Co. has up the proposition of building a cannery at Roseburg.

Portland merchants are asking modification of the minimum wage and eight hour law to give more girls a chance to work.

During the first two weeks of April Coos Bay shipments of lumber to San Francisco aggregated 6,000,000.

The Nyssa cheese factory on the Snake river in March made 12,233 lbs. of cheese.

An $8000 meat packing plant is being erected at Burns.

The California-Oregon Power Co. is seeking franchises in Douglas county.

Portland auditorium plans have been rejected by the commissioners and local architects have been employed and a building all made in Oregon may be the result.

Washington population 1,250,000, Oregon 700,000. What's the matter?

Labor Commissioner Hoff declares that under the decision of the Supreme Court certain laborers at state institutions must come under the eight hour law, if the state has to borrow money to pay them.

D. L. Harden of Eugene has invented a drinking fountain for homes and schools that will be manufactured there.

A large ice manufacturing plant has been completed and is ready for business at Bend.

Astoria continues its campaign for the use of wood block paving.

Andy Matson, a Portland Longshoreman, is contesting the labor vote with O. P. Hoff for Factory Inspector.

Elmer Diver of the Oregon Power Co. says with cheap power the 3 Pacific Coast states will have seven million population by 1920.

Fewer game laws, fewer boards and commissions, and less interference with industries, and more capital invested in manufacturing enterprises, is the line of development now advocated by the people of Oregon.

May 15, Marion and Clackamas counties vote on good roads bond is one that will cause about a million and a half to be expended for labor on permanent highways if the elections carry.

A new Christian church has been dedicated at North Bend.

The Vancouver bridge across the Columbia is to be built of Oregon fabricated steel.

Labor union and closed shop policies on the Portland water front are driving shipping men and more to Puget Sound on account of high cost of loading and unloading vessels.

The Springfield cement block factory is working a larger force.

The Eugene streetcar system is to be equipped $10,000 pay-as-you-enter cars.

The Smith-Powers logging road is to be completed south to Myrtle Point.

The grange in many parts of the state is refusing to support the eight hour laws and other propositions emanating from Labor unions. For the past ten years the two bodies have worked together.

Merchants and farmers plead the right of their sons to learn trades from which they are shut out by the apprenticeship ruling of the minimum wage commission.

Building docks and a seawall will enable Astoria to fill many streets.

The Golden Star and other mines in the Bohemia group are putting in machinery and doing development work.

Flavel will celebrate driving the first piling in the great Hill docks system.

Home industry won out at Eugene by an order of the city giving all orders for sewer pipe to the Eugene Concrete works.

The Undistracted Critic.

Last autumn, in a village inn parlor in central New England, I picked up a work of fiction and found, carefully noted in a copper plate lithography on one of the blank fly leaves of the book, a list of the things which had, presumably, most impressed its owner in reading the story. The list ran as follows:

"Page 114, line 3, split infinitive.

"Page 263, line 17, should be whom

"Page 301, line 12. Is this construction allowable?"

"Great heavens!" I thought as I laid the volume reverently back on the center table (the slipshod critic in me recognizing the master spirit in the unknown commentator). "What poise, what self-possession, what splendidly insulated steadfastness of purpose! Just think of standing unmoved and undistracted amid a spectacle of fondering faiths and sundering systems, with a tremorless, micrometric and acoustatory finger upon a split infinitive!"

Mustard in Ancient Times.

Mustard is one of the most ancient of medicines. Pythagoras, who flourished between 500 and 600 years before Christ, mentions it. Hippocrates, who was born in 460 B. C., employed it. Pliny the elder, writing in 77 A. D., describes three different kinds of mustard and says the seeds were imported to Italy from Egypt originally.

The Romans used it as a stimulant after a cold bath. They mixed mustard oil and olive oil in equal parts and used this as a liniment for stiffness of the muscles. They knew the virtues of mustard poultices and of mustard as an emetic. As a remedy for the stings of scorpions and serpents they pounded it, mixed it with vinegar and applied it to the wound.

They also made a drink out of it, fermenting the seed in a fiery spirit. The liquor thus produced they called mustum ardens, which means burning wine. The word mustard is probably derived from this.—New York World.

Flying Fish.

Interesting are the habits of the flying fish, that queer denizen of the sea found principally in the region of the trade winds. "Does it rise from the sea like a bird?" you ask. No. It shoots out of the waves like an arrow and with outspreading wings sails on the wind in graceful curves, rising sometimes, one might say, to the height of fifteen feet, but not often so high, and then, lowering, it again touches the crest of a wave and renews its flight. This operation may be repeated till it covers a distance, say, of 500 yards in the case of the stoutest on the wing, though very often not half that distance is covered. A ship sailing through the trade winds will often be visited on dark nights by flying fish, which hit the sails or rigging and fall on deck, where, of course, they soon give up life.—St. Nicholas.

The Inconceivable Widower.

"There is only one inconceivable widower and that is the ostrich," said the zoo keeper. "The ostrich, if his mate dies, never remarries.

"He is also the most faithful of husbands, a sequence not always inevitable. He waits on his wife like a cheater. He digs the nest for her. Of the forty days' setting he does the hardest share; he does the night work, covering the eggs from sunset till late the next morning.

"Sometimes, naturally, domestic complications occur, and the ostrich kicks. He kicks, in fact, his wife to death.

"But what a consolation it must be to her as she passes away to think that he will remain true and constant to her memory and never, never seek another mate."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Easiest Way.

Two little fellows were exchanging confidences one afternoon on the front steps.

"Gee," said one, "I hate to have bed time come. My mother wants me to take a bath every night."

"So does mine," remarked the other little boy, "but I don't mind it. My father is a doctor, and ma always gets him to chloroform me, so I never know a thing about it until it's all over."—Detroit Free Press.

Deep Knowledge.

At an interval during a recent session of the supreme court of an eastern state Judge —, turning to an associate on the bench, said:

"By the way, you know almost everything, tell me so and so."

The judge addressed replied: "Why do you say almost?"

Whereupon the judge said: "I haven't told you everything I know yet."—National Monthly.

Right in a Sense.

"That's walter's an idiot!"

"What's the matter now?"

"I asked him to bring me a water cracker."

"Well?"

"And here he brings an ice pick!"—Cleveland Leader.

Sunshine and Rain.

There is much shower and much sunshine between the sowing of the seed and the reaping of the harvest, but the harvest is generally reaped after all.—John Bright.

Rye Grass.

Rye grass is believed to be the oldest grass specially raised for forage, having been thus cultivated in England more than two centuries ago.

Even Fiction Fails.

"Truth is stranger than fiction."

"That is why I give my wife fiction. She'll barely believe that."—Kansas City Journal.

Locating a Quarrel.

"And when you were abroad on your honeymoon trip did you visit the palace of peace at The Hague?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply. "We had our first quarrel there."—Yankee Statesman.
