THE PRIMARY ELECTION

Race for Treasurer, Commissioner and Coroner is Close. Singler for Sheriff Ahead.

As we go to press, reports show that the race for the offices of Treasurer, Commissioner and Coroner is pretty close: Colvig for treasurer is ahead of Cronmiller; Smith and Madden are neck and neck for commissioner and Kellogg is only a few votes ahead of Ussher for coroner. As many precincts have not reported it is impossible to predict the final result. For sheriff, Singler has almost as many votes as both his opponents, Walker and Earhart: of these two Walker is ahead. There seems no doubt that Singler will be the nominee, as his lead is now too large to be overcome by later returns. For governor, Crawford rep. and Smith dem. are in the lead. Mealey and Wagner will likely be chosen for the legislature.

INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

A new company has been formed at Newport to put a modern halibut fishing schooner on the banks north of that place. Hominis is said to be the only important food product not manufactured in Oregon. The Lebanon Sand and Gravel Co. has installed a lot of new machinery for a modern plant at that city. W. W. Cotton is heading a movement for a farmers co-operative cannery at Gresham and the Brownsville plant may be moved there. San Francisco advertises the lowest tax rates of any city from Stockton to New York and is getting many factories. The grading crew on the Willamette valley and Siletz railroad is working as far west as Hoskins. Work has commenced on a new brick building for the Courier at Oregon City. Bids have been taken for the construction of the new public docks at Astoria. The Great Northern railroad has placed orders for ten million feet of lumber and 1000 refrigerator cars. Twoby Bros. were the lowest bidder on the Columbia highway through Clatsop county. Oil lands are being taken up very rapidly in Malheur county and many wells are being developed. It is proposed to hold a Umatilla county manufacturers' exposition at Pendleton some time this summer. Don't be surprised if you observe an attack of rheumatism this spring. The rub that affected parts freely with Chamberlain's Liniment and it will soon disappear. Sold by all dealers.

DEWEY SAW THE POINT.

He Paid Up After His Dog Had Been Kicked Around. Admiral Dewey and an English bulldog of which he was very proud. He marked was his affection for the dog that an atmosphere of "love me, love my dog" had sprung up around the admiral and the canine. It is further reported that the animal came near causing trouble between the head of the navy and the late "Fighting Bob" Evans. Admiral Dewey while on a tour of inspection when he was in command of the Pacific squadron took the dog along with him. He lost sight of his pet on Evans' ship, but in a few minutes saw him hurled skyward from the companionway, as if shot from a catapult. With blood in his eye Admiral Dewey rushed over to see the reason for the sudden ascent, surmising correctly that some one had kicked the dog. He saw "Fighting Bob" at the foot of the steps. "Sir," roared the admiral, "what do you mean by kicking my dog?" "Sir," roared Evans in return, "I'd have kicked that dog if he had been the property of the president of the United States! He chewed the legs of two pairs of fifteen dollar trousers and destroyed an edition de luxe of the navy regulations." Dewey saw the point and paid for new uniform trousers.—New York World.

Time For Tact.

"I won $200 in that game last night," confided a friend. "Good for you!" we cried. "I want to tell some folks about that—they—" "Now, look here! You keep still about it. I wouldn't let my wife know about that game for anything." "But you told me that your wife was a good fellow and let you play poker all you wanted to." "She does. She never kicks about my sitting in a game, and even if I lose she cheers me up and—" "Well, I thought so. Why shouldn't I tell her about this game?" "Why, you chump! I won $200—that's why. And I need the money. If my wife asks where I was, tell her I was out losing $50 on a prizefight."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Beneficial Exercise.

Exercise to be beneficial must do these things: First.—It must slightly increase the strength and force of the heart beat, so as to improve the circulation and do away with any tendency to sluggishness. Second.—It must slightly quicken and deepen the breathing rate so that more pure air is drawn into the lungs and less impure air is left behind. Third.—It must stimulate into normal activity the myriads of glands in the skin whose duty it is to rid the body of a part of the poisonous substances constantly being formed with in us. Practically any exercise, if carried out with the correct degree of moderation, will accomplish these results and so deserves the term "beneficial exercise." The trouble is that indulged in past moderation almost every form of exercise can do more harm than good.—New York World.

Identifying Himself.

It is said that at certain seasons in Scotland when the fishing is not very brisk the fishermen act as caddies and are easily recognized by their costume: a woolen jersey and trousers braided up to the armpits. One of these was asked his name by the gentleman for whom he was carrying and the reply was, "Weel, hereabouts they mistak'ly call me 'Brecks,' but my 'maiden' name is 'Broom.'"

Monarchs in Mourning.

Periods of court mourning are apt to be regarded with something akin to alarm by people in the official social world, for court mourning means to them submission to published rules and regulations, from which there is no appeal. In most eastern capitals white garments are the usual sign of mourning, and purple is frequently in Europe given preference to black. Mourning, of course, is strictly enforced in the court of St. James; also in that at Madrid and in the Austrian court. At the latter, by the way, etiquette is exaggerated to an extreme. At the court of Berlin, where ceremony is regarded as the language of power, the blackest of mourning is worn during the day, but not in the evening. The empress objects to black evening frocks and insists on her ladies wearing white dresses trimmed with black. In Denmark also black is not allowed, but the wives of high officials and of noblemen are permitted to wear high peaked headress when in mourning.—Pearson's Weekly.

Husband and Wife.

Husband means house bound, wife wearing one; son is the cleaner; daughter is the milkier; spinster is the unmarried sister of husband or wife who is the spinner.

An Ostrich Trick.

Naturalists state that an ostrich never goes straight to its nest, but always approaches it with many windings in order, if possible, to conceal the locality from observation.

Melancholy.

Melancholy may be defined as a state of mind in which a man is so out of touch with his environment that life has lost its sweetness. St. William Oeler.

How many people live in the reputation of the reputation they might have made!—Holmes.

No Scientists in Burglary. "Scientific burglary absolutely does not exist," says M. Xavier-Gulchard, one of the foremost detective authorities of Paris. And away at one sweep of official truth vanishes the walking wonder of housebreaking and safe cracking against whose miraculous equipment it were vain to set up or clary bolts and bars. Along with the scientific burglar, too, we may place in the gallery of the nonexistent the social highwayman, the gentleman burglar, the Arsene Lupins and all their class of gallant, indomitable offenders. "What people do not realize," M. Gulchard continues, "is that burglars belong to an inferior grade of humanity and are very seldom intelligent." Plain facts of record have shown over and over that a career of crime does not pay. Nor does it appeal to the intellect. A man with brains enough to be a scientific burglar would make an easier and better living with out risks in some honest line. As for the romance of crime, it exists only in books, and the man who writes about it knows better than to seek it through experience.—New York World.

A Way to Woo Sleep.

The following method is described as one which is almost certain to woc slumber with success: On going to bed you assume a comfortable attitude in which every muscle is relaxed, but not the attitude in which you are accustomed to go to sleep, though something resembling it. Every movement, coughing, yawning, is strictly repressed, especially the desire to turn over. The same attitude is maintained without change, constantly resisting the longing to move or turn over. As a rule, by the end of fifteen or twenty minutes of this persistent maintenance of the same attitude you will find yourself growing very drowsy, and then, just as the desire to turn over becomes absolutely uncontrollable, you turn with the least possible effort and assume the position in which, you habitually go to sleep, and natural sleep follows at once. This method, it is claimed, seldom fails and should be given a thorough trial, at least before resorting to a drug to bring sleep.

A Hard Job.

"I see from your letterheads, Bilkins, that you are the assistant treasurer of that company of yours," said Withler bee. "Have you got so much money it takes two of you to look after it?" "No," said Bilkins. "We have so little it takes two of us to find it."—Harper's.

Truth Eternal.

All errors have only a time. After a hundred million of objections, subtleties, sophisms, the smallest truth remains precisely what it was before.—Ancient Maxim.

Coal Bin Measurements.

A solid cubic foot of anthracite coal weighs ninety-three pounds. When broken for use it weighs about fifty-four pounds. Bituminous coal when broken up for use weighs about fifty pounds. The consequent rule for the approximate measurement of coal in a bin or box is to multiply the length in feet by the height in feet and again by the breadth in feet and this result by fifty-four for anthracite coal or by fifty for bituminous coal. The result will equal the number of pounds, and to find the number of tons divide by 2,000.—Popular Mechanics.

The Obliging Friend.

"You know that Griggs and I both love you. Can't you make a choice today?" "A choice, indeed! When I do make a choice you can rest assured that it will not interest you!" "Thanks! I'll tell Griggs."—Exchange.

Good Little Boy.

Mrs. Sent—Will you have another slice of cake, Robbie? Robbie—No, thank you; mother said I must refuse a second piece, 'cause you mightn't have it to spare.—Judge.
