Ward of the Applegate country was in town Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. John Norris were in town Monday evening. Sheriff Singler made several business trips to Medford this week. Bert McKee of Buncom was in town with a load of hogs recently. William Ray of Ruch was transacting business in this city Friday. B. H. Rhodes of Centralia, Wash. was a recent visitor in the valley. W. J. Buttery of the Norling mine was in town Wednesday afternoon. William Dorn of Watkins was transacting business in this city Monday. Russel Evans of Medford was a business visitor in this place Friday. F. G. McWilliams and family of Ashland were visitors in this city Sunday. W. H. Venable, a prominent farmer of Ruch, was a visitor in this city Friday. Mr. and Mrs. James Eaton visited friends in the Applegate valley Sunday. Miss Jewel Bailey and brother enjoyed an outing at Rogue river, Wednesday. Fred W. Mears of Medford was transacting business in this city Tuesday forenoon. Mrs. Katie Grieve has been at Portland this week as a witness in the U. S. court. Deputy Sheriff Wilson was a witness in the U. S. Court at Portland, several days this week. Mrs. J. Morcom and daughters left Monday for Ashland where they will reside for the present. Judge L. R. Webster of Portland, a former circuit judge of this district spent Sunday in this city. Dr. R. E. Golden has returned from a two-weeks outing at Portland and points in Washington state. Too much green grass caused the death of a valuable cow belonging to S. Walsh, on day this week. Fletcher Stout who is employed in a drug store at Gold Hill, spent Sunday with his parents in this city. Mr. and Mrs. John Reter who had been camping on Rogue river for a week, returned Friday evening. In a letter to the Post Wednesday, Mrs. Joseph Morcom states that they like their new home at Ashland, fine. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Coleman of Medford, attended the funeral of the late William Deneff, Wednesday afternoon. The weather this week has been simply ideal, the thermometer never above 90 and occasional breezes of cool air. Misses Ekron Gali and Adarel Elmer have been spending a few days on Rogue river in the vicinity of Bybee's bridge. Medford has had four burglaries within the past week, the last one being at the Waters' home on Eleventh street, some time Thursday morning. Manager Vance of the Home Telephone Co. of Medford was in town Friday on business regarding the proposed removal of the exchange to that city. The Oak-lale grocery at Medford and a small apartment house in the rear, were destroyed by fire early Friday morning. Loss about $3500, which was covered by insurance. Albert Anderson of Grants Pass was awarded the contract by the county court this week, for the construction of concrete bridge over Evans creek near where it empties into Rogue river. The bid was $7469, and calls for a span of 110 feet. An alarm of fire was turned in yesterday afternoon from the south end of town where a grass fire was blazing merrily. A stream from the fire hose soon quenched the flames, but not until some fence on the Applegate place had been destroyed. The Johnson saloon at Gold Hill was entered by burglars at an early hour Thursday morning and robbed of $15.00 and several cases of liquor. The burglars obtained the money by blowing open a small safe. They over-looked $100. and a gold watch in the same room. Although Water Commissioner Ulrich published a notice two weeks ago, requesting water users to see that all hydrants were closed at night, it seems that some parties have recently been running the water all night. It is stated that the water is now taken direct from the dam, the leakage not being sufficient to keep the small reservoir full, and while the supply in the dam will be ample for all proper needs, it will not be sufficient if used for irrigation during the hours allotted for such use and all night also.

Curly Wilson returned from Portland Friday. Watson Caudill was at Butte Falls Sunday. Frank Silva of Buncom was a visitor in this city Thursday afternoon. F. C. Goan, of the Applegate valley was a recent visitor in this city. George Launspach was in town from his ranch a short time Friday evening. John A. Perl of Medford made a professional visit to this city Wednesday. The forest fires recently reported are all well under control and no further trouble. Mr. and Mrs. E. Mahoney have moved into the Kubli house on California street. Pantorium Dye Works will accept parcels on "hurry" work—at Reter's barber shop. John B. Renault accompanied by his nephew John B., made a trip to Butte Falls Sunday. Mrs. Wiseman has returned to her home in California, after a short visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Applebaker of this city. Rev. P. S. Bandy who had been spending a couple of weeks in the northern part of the state returned Wednesday evening. Buildings improvements are picking up in this vicinity: Contractor Fick received a car load of dressed lumber recently and has disposed of almost all of it in the past few days. MEDFORD IOINT RAIDED Police Find $1,000 and Considerable Opium--Woman Among Gamblers In a raid last night at midnight of the Chinese laundry on Riverside avenue, conducted by S. B. Sailing of the state board of pharmacy, assisted by Sheriff Singler, W. K. Jefferies, Chief of Police Hittson, and Sergeant P. Mego, eleven Chinamen were found smoking opium and gambling. They were immediately marched up to the city hall where they were searched. They made a big effort to hide their money some putting it in their shoes and socks. Something over $1000 was taken from them. Among the victims was one woman who apparently a winner in the night's game had a surplus amount of small change. Considerable opium was found. Authorities have been watching the place for a number of months but not until last night did they gather sufficient evidence to arrest the Chinamen. A state charge will be filed.—Medford Sun. Notice of Sheriff's Sale in Foreclosure. Sarah S. Van Dyke, Plaintiff, vs. John Arnell and Annie M. Arnell, his wife, Defendants. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that under and by virtue of an execution and an order of sale duly issued out and under the seal of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Jackson, dated July 23rd, 1914, in a certain cause wherein Sarah S. Van Dyke as plaintiff recovered judgment against John Arnell and Annie M. Arnell, his wife, as defendants, for the sum of $131.14 with interest thereon from the 1st day of April, 1914, at the rate of 8 per cent per annum and $70 attorney's fee, and the further sum of $16.50 costs, which judgment was enforced and docketed in the Clerk's office of said Court in said County on the 9th day of May, 1914, and is of record in Volume 21 at pages 251-2-3. I am commanded by said execution and order of sale to make sale of the hereinafter described real property, and I will at the hour of 10:30 o'clock A.M. on TUESDAY, AUGUST 25th, 1914, at the front door of the Court House in Jacksonville, Jackson County, Oregon, sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, subject to redemption as is by law provided, all the right, title and interest of the defendants in and to the following described real property, to-wit: The west half of the following: Commencing at the Southwest corner of D.L.C. 63, in Township 37 South of Range One West of the Willamette Meridian; thence running South 5.585 chains; thence West 11.81 chains; thence North 19.38 chains; thence running in an Easterly direction 11.81 chains; thence running South 13.795 chains to the place of beginning. Excepting and reserving a right-of-way 60 feet wide reserved by the Trustees of the estate of Francis B. Clark, deceased, extending North and South along the entire eastern boundary line of the property herein described. All as shown in Certificate of Title No. 1321, issued October 22, 1912, by the Registrar of Titles for Jackson County, Oregon. All of said property or so much thereof as may be necessary will be sold at said time and place to satisfy the judgment in favor of the plaintiffs and against the defendants, together with the accruing costs of sale. Dated at Jacksonville, Jackson County, Oregon, this 23rd day of July, 1914. W. H. SINGLER, Sheriff of Jackson County, Oregon. By G. E. HARPER, Deputy.

Old Time Punishments. Among the weird and horrible punishments inflicted in Quebec under both its French and English regimes were the burning of women at the stake for petty treason, burning of the hand, branding on the forehead and breaking on the wheel. No record is found in Canada, however, of such punishments as the "drunkard's cloak," a barrel with apertures for the head and hands, and the bridle and ducking stool for common scolds. In old houses in Britain there are still to be seen hooks by the fireplace to which a scolding wife was fastened after being bridled, the jailer performing this service at the request of the exasperated husband. In France an instrument known as the carcan was used as a punishment for disregarding parental authority or homestead at church, and one was formerly attached to a post at the door of the Basilica at Quebec. The pillory was used in England for at least 700 years, and in 1769 a prisoner stood in the pillory at Montreal for three days. In 1765 two men and a woman were whipped through the streets of Montreal, thirty-nine lashes being given each.—Pearson's. A "Mite." The difficulties experienced by our forefathers in trying to reckon money in very small proportions appear in the various values given to a "mite" in the sixteenth and seventeenth century books of commercial arithmetic. The original "mite" seems to have been a third of a Flemish penny, but the use of the word for the widow's coin of the New Testament made its regular English meaning half a farthing, and some old people may remember applying the name to the short lived nineteenth century coins of that value. In those old arithmetic books "mite" stands for various values not represented by actual coins, but obviously used in reckoning. A work of 1706 makes it one-twelfth of a penny, two sixteenth century books one-sixth of a farthing, and in 1674 Jeake's arithmetic made it as little as one sixty-fourth of a penny.—London Chronicle. A New Species. Charles R. Knight, the artist, whose reproductions of dinosaurs and creatures of long ago are known the world over, prefers, however, to be known as a painter and sculptor of modern animals. He has worked from the living model as much as possible, and this has taken him to the zoos in many cities. He was telling his experiences at the zoo in Washington. "One afternoon an important looking negro came along with his best girl," he said. "They stopped for a minute and looked at the sketch I was making of a deer. "Yer know what he am doin', don't yer?" asked the negro of his companion. "Mebbe," answered the woman. "Does yer?" "Shoh! He's making a landscape ob one er dem habitats. Dere's mob habits in dis zoo than anywhere else in der United States."—New York Tribune. The "Macaroni." The "macaroni" were exquisites or fops who in England and France led the fashions from 1780 to 1785 and were distinguished by an immense knot of artificial hair worn on the top of their heads. A small cocked hat which perched ridiculously on their topknot, satin or brocade coats and small clothes fitting tightly to the body and silk stockings with ribbon garters composed the costume of these fashionable gentlemen, who invariably carried a long walking stick with tassels attached and frequently a bouquet tied to the handle and encouraged a mincing and affected gait and manner. There was during the war for independence a body of Maryland soldiers who on account of their showy uniforms were called "macaroni." Gibraltar's Searchlight Battery. For ships to pass around Gibraltar, England's and the world's greatest fortress, without being observed even at night is a practical impossibility, owing to the great battery of searchlights arranged along the bottom of the rock. A ship running either in or out runs into one of the fixed beams of light and is revealed. A moving beam of light then follows her until the lookout officers are satisfied as to her intentions. Located. The Chaperon—Young man, you have your arm around that young lady's waist. The Young Man—Thanks, I've been trying to find the spot all evening, but with these new zowns a fellow hardly knows where he's at.—New York Globe. A Troublesome Mirror. "Mamma," said Flossie, "this old looking glass isn't any good." "Why, what's the matter with it, dear?" asked her mother. "Every time I try to look in it," explained Flossie, "my face gets in the way." Grass Baskets. To restore the fragrance of baskets made from sweet scented grass, after they have apparently lost it, plunge them into boiling water, removing them almost instantly. Disobedience. "He kissed me and I told him not to tell of it." "And what did he do?" "Why, it wasn't two minutes before he repented it." Wherever we meet misery we owe pity.—Dryden.

Describing Love. In "The Desert and Mrs. Ajax," by Edward S. Moffat, one of the characters, an American girl, thus describes love: "Oh, Amy (she says), isn't it splendid when you love some one? You just want to, sacrifice—and give up—and work—and be devoured by fire or drowned in ice water if it will do any good. Sometimes it makes you feel, oh, so strong! And then, almost right away, your knees get wobbly, and you just turn into a cobblestone inside. And one minute he's looking at you in the most wonderful way, and you feel as if you were floating on a lovely pink cloud, eating ice cream smothered in violets, and the next thing you know something terrible happens, and every thing goes to pieces, and you see that he doesn't love you after all—and oh-h-h!" The Furies. Greek mythology created some female deities who were supposed to inhabit the lower regions and visit the earth to avenge supposed wrongs and punish their enemies. Black sheep were sacrificed to them at night by the light of torches, and they were represented as horrid looking creatures, wearing long, black robes, with snaky locks, bloodshot eyes and clawlike nails. Sometimes they had snakes or torches in their hair and carried scourges or sickles in their hands. The Greeks called these imaginary creatures Erinyes, and the Romans, adopting the same idea, called them furies. Vergil represents them as willing agents employed by the higher gods to stir up mischief, strife and hatred on the earth.—Philadelphia Press. Pickpockets. Pickpockets ordinarily travel in mobs and are of two distinct types—one small or medium stature, the other tall and muscular. As a general rule, the age runs from eighteen to thirty-five. Their hands are soft, show no signs of work and the fingers of all except the "stall," and particularly the fingers of the "wire" are long and slender. Their eyes are shifting and furtive. Their complexion is generally sallow and without distinct color, this being due either to prison pallor in types or to the use of cocaine or other drugs. The cocaine users show drawn features, prominent cheekbones and usually have distinct rings around the eyes. The temperament of pickpockets is high strung, because of the dangers of the profession or from the use of drugs. At the same time they are polite almost to the point of obsequiousness. They seldom carry weapons, and almost never resort to force. On duty they dress to suit the occasion, generally well, but not conspicuously. They avoid wearing anything that might lead to identification.—Chicago News. Curtain Calls. "I know a man who had a hundred curtain calls in a week." "I suppose he was a matinee idol." "No; he was a house furnisher."—Baltimore American. The Mean Thing. "Why are you mad at her?" "I met her on the car today, and she said, 'Oh, let me pay your fare,' and I said, 'Oh, you mustn't,' and she didn't."—Houston Post. It Depends! "How do you pronounce s-t-i-n-g-y?" The teacher asked the young gentleman nearest the foot of the class. And the smart boy stood up and said it depended a great deal whether the word applied to a man or a bee.—London News. Not a Vacation Prospect. "My boy," said the professor, "if you keep on as you have started and study hard you may be president of the United States some day." "Yes," replied the young man gloomily; "and then I'll have to start in and study a whole lot harder."—Washington Star. Highly Esteemed. "Do you think that most people nowadays worship money?" "No, I won't go as far as that," answered the home grown philosopher, "but I will say that the love of money is seldom platonic."—Washington Her-ald. Free Now. Mrs. Crawford—I thought you said you weren't going to the sewing circle? Mrs. Crabslaw—But, my dear, I didn't know then about the things you have told me.—Judge. Cruel. "I wish you many happy returns," wrote an editor to a poet who had sent him a poem entitled "My Birth Day." A Comparison. "Nothing I seems to me, looks as unimportant as a bridegroom at a wedding." A Long Life and a Broad One. An English doctor recently said that ambition to live to a great old age isn't a good one and doubted whether constant efforts to lengthen the average life are for the good of the race. He apparently favors a short life and a merry one. Perhaps it isn't long life that makes the world happy, but broad life. Thirty full, energetic years may be better than sixty years of common plod drudgery. But why not sixty full, energetic years? Who knows what the world loses when a man dies at thirty? So much has been accomplished by men who have reached sixty and even seventy and eighty that it seems good policy to keep all persons on earth as long as possible. The man who honestly disapproves efforts to prolong life is a rarity and it is lucky for the world that he is.—Savannah News. North British Manners. I traveled upon the top of a car the other evening, says a correspondent in the Glasgow News, with a man who seemed to have strong views upon the subject of good manners and polite address. He was accompanied by his daughter, a pretty little girl of about five years of age, who was thirsting for information. The proud parent was explaining at some length that car conductors do not retain the whole contents of their bags for their own personal use, when the little girl interrupted him with an in terrogative "Eh?" "What learned you tae say 'eh'?" asked the father in reproving tones. "When you don't hear whit onybody says you should not say 'eh'; it's ne polite; you should say—'whit.'" Montenegro's Stones. Montenegro has, after all, some reason to be grateful for its stones. "It is in these stones," writes William Miller, "that the Black mountain has found its best fortifications—for artificial forts it has none—and it was not till the time of the present prince (no King Nicholas) that the Napoleonic idea of making a road across the country was carried out. Even now it is not by any means certain that this improved means of communication will not be a source of danger in the future." Napoleon in the early years of the nineteenth century offered to construct a roadway across the principality at his own expense, but his overtures were summarily rejected. He then threatened to lay waste the country with fire and sword till his name became Monte Rosso ("the red mountain") instead of Montenegro. The threat, however, was never carried out.—London Chronicle.
