

Main Entrance to Palace of Machinery at Panama-Pacific International Exposition, 1915

THE photographer was stationed at the most northern of the three arched portals constituting the main western entrance to the palace and turned his camera to the north. The huge columns adorning this entrance are of imitation Sienna and are in warm contrast with the creamish gray of the "Travertine" plaster of which the walls are composed. The friezes at the base of the columns and the spandrels above the archways of the vestibule are the work of the sculptor Haig Paton. In architectural style the Palace of Machinery is early Roman. The architect is Clarence R. Ward of San Francisco.

Portal In South Wall of Palace of Education, Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, 1915

THE doorway shown is one of the lesser portals of this palace and overlooks the South Gardens and the southern end of the Fine Arts Lagoon. In influence the portal is early Italian renaissance. The twisted fluted Roman columns have been given an eastern flavor by the application of contrasting colors in alternation, applied under the direction of Jules Guerin, director of color of the Exposition. The portal is over thirty feet in height. The outer wall of the palace is sixty-five feet high.

MARRIED

GOELLER-RIPPEY—A very pretty morning wedding occurred at 9:30 Wednesday August 12, at the residence of County Superintendent J. Percy Wells of this city, in the marriage of Harry E. Goeller and Mand Rippey, both of Klamath Falls. Rev. W. T. Van Scoy of Ashland performing the ceremony, which included the best of the ring by the groom. The relatives and a few intimate friends were the only guests. They started on Wednesday afternoon by auto for Crater Lake. After spending a fortnight of an outing they will return to Klamath Falls, where they will go to housekeeping at once, and the groom will continue with his father in business. Many good wishes follow them.

Pickpockets.
 Pickpockets ordinarily travel in mobs and are of two distinct types—one small or medium stature, the other tall and muscular. As a general rule, the age runs from eighteen to thirty-five. Their hands are soft, show no signs of work and the fingers of all except the "stall," and particularly the fingers of the "wire" are long and slender. Their eyes are shifting and furtive. Their complexion is generally sallow and without distinct color, this being due either to prison pallor in types of the use of cocaine or other drugs. The cocaine users show drawn features, prominent cheekbones and usually have distinct rings around the eyes. The temperament of pickpockets is high strung, because of the dangers of the profession or from the use of drugs. At the same time they are polite almost to the point of obsequiousness. They seldom carry weapons and almost never resort to force. On duty they dress to suit the occasion, generally well, but not conspicuously. They avoid wearing anything that might lead to identification.—Chicago News.

Early Autograph Hunters.
 A certain Atossa in early Roman days seems to have been the mother of autograph collectors. Cicero had a collection, which must have been a fine one, for he speaks of it with particular pride. The fever, even in those far back days, was contagious. Pliny speaks of Pomponius Secundus, at whose house he had seen autographs of Cicerro, Augustus, Vergil and the Græci, and his own collection was valued at $15,000 of our money. Then came the influx of barbarians, and we do not again meet with the collector until the beginning of the sixteenth century when he reappears in the person of a Bohemian squire, who kept a book to record his exploits in the chase and enriched it with the signatures of his great hunter friends.
Worsted.
 It is stated that worsted was first spun at Worstead, Norfolk, England, in the year 1340. Stockings made of this material were at first very cheap and used by the poorer people. Shakespeare uses the word contemptuously in the phrase, "Worsted stocking knave."—London Telegraph.

Strength in the Arms.
 Equality of strength in both arms occurs almost twice as frequently with women as with men, more men than women being stronger in the right arm than in the left.

 When you have trouble with your stomach or chronic constipation, don't imagine that your case is beyond help just because your doctor fails to give you relief. Mrs. J. Stangle, Plainfield, N. J., writes, "For a month past I have been troubled with stomach trouble. Everything I ate upset it. Finally I got Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. After reading a few lines from people who had been cured by Chamberlain's Tablets, I decided to try it. I have taken nearly three-fourths of a box and am now feeling fine. I can now eat almost anything I want." For sale by all druggists.
