MAKE PEACE PACTS

Britain, Spain, France and China Agree—Washington Won't be Embroiled.

Washington, Sept. 10.—In the midst of the European war, Great Britain, Spain, France and China have agreed to sign peace commission treaties with the United States. One effect of the new conventions would be to prevent the United States from being drawn suddenly into the conflict.

Germany, Russia and Japan have signified their acceptance of the principle of these treaties though negotiations have not advanced to the point of drafting conventions. Similar agreements with Turkey and Greece are almost ready for signature.

The first four treaties are ready for signature and are regarded by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan as of far-reaching importance. While negotiations were begun before the European war broke out, their consummation practically will safeguard the United States from being drawn in over any question of neutrality or other controversy.

The treaties with Great Britain, France, Spain and China provide "that all disputes of every nature whatsoever," to the settlement of which previous arbitration treaties or agreement do not apply in their terms, or are not applied in fact, shall, when diplomatic methods of adjustment have failed, be referred for investigation and report to a permanent international commission, and they agree not to declare war or begin hostilities during such investigation and before the report is submitted.

Summons.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON, FOR THE COUNTY OF JACKSON.

Charles A. Warren, Plaintiff,

vs. Lottie V. Warren, Defendant. Suit for Divorce.

To Lottie V. Warren: the above named defendant:

In the Name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby commanded to appear and answer the plaintiff's complaint against you now on file in the above entitled Court and cause on or before the last day prescribed in the publication of summons herein, to-wit on or before the 24th day of October, 1914, said date being the expiration of six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, for want thereof plaintiff will apply to the above entitled Court for the relief prayed for in said complaint, viz, that it be decreed that the marriage vows now existing between plaintiff and defendant be dissolved and held for naught, and that the plaintiff have the care and custody of the minor child, Howard C. Warren.

This summons is published in the Jacksonville Post, by order of Honorable F. L. Towle, Judge of the County Court for Jackson County, Oregon, which said order was made and entered of record on the 11th day of September, 1914, and which said order requires you to appear and answer the said complaint on or before the last day prescribed in said order for publication of summons. Date of first publication is the 12th day of September, 1914, and date of last publication is the 24th day of October, 1914.

H. L. DE ARMOND, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Describing Love. In "The Desert and Mrs. Ajax," by Edward S. Moffat, one of the characters, an American girl, thus describes love:

"Oh, Amy (she says), isn't it splendid when you love some one? You just want to sacrifice—and give up—and work—and, he devoured by fire and drowned in ice water if it will do any good. Sometimes it makes you feel, oh, so strong! And then, almost right away, your knees get wobbly, and you just turn into a cobblestone inside. And one minute he's looking at you in the most wonderful way, and you feel as if you were floating on a lovely pink cloud, cutting ice cream smothered in violets, and the next thing you know something terrible happens, and everything goes to pieces, and you see that he doesn't love you after all—and, oh-h-h!"

The Furies.

Greek mythology created some female deities who were supposed to inhabit the lower regions and visit the earth to avenge supposed wrongs and punish their enemies. Black sheep were sacrificed to them at night by the light of torches, and they were represented as horrid looking creatures, wearing long, black robes, with snaky locks, bloodshot eyes and clawlike nails. Sometimes they had snakes or torches in their hair and carried scourges or sickles in their hands. The Greeks called these imaginary creatures Erinyes, and the Romans, adopting the same idea, called them furies. Vergil represents them as willing agents employed by the higher gods to stir up mischief, strife and hatred on the earth.—Philadelphia Press.

Pickpockets.

Pickpockets ordinarily travel in mobs and are of two distinct types—one small or medium stature, the other tall and muscular. As a general rule, the age runs from eighteen to thirty-five. Their hands are soft, show no signs of work and the fingers of all except the "snail," and particularly the fingers of the "wire" are long and slender. Their eyes are shifting and furtive. Their complexion is generally sallow and without distinct color, this being due either to prison pallor in types or to the use of cocaine or other drugs. The cocaine users show drawn features, prominent cheekbones and usually have distinct rings around the eyes. The temperament of pickpockets is high strung, because of the dangers of the profession or from the use of drugs. At the same time they are polite almost to the point of obsequiousness. They seldom carry weapons and almost never resort to force. On duty they dress to suit the occasion, generally well, but not conspicuously. They avoid wearing anything that might lead to identification.—Chicago News.

Defining an Epigram.

"Father," said the small boy, "what is an epigram?" "An epigram," replied Mr. Growcher, "is usually a brief but commonplace remark made by somebody who has been well advertised."—Washington Star.

Memoirs of Napoleon

In Three Volumes

This man caused the last general European war.

His personal memoirs, written by his secretary, Baron De Meneval, are full of the most absorbing incidents, especially in view of the present great European struggle.

Just a hundred years ago, his ambitions bathed the Continent in a sea of blood. France alone, under his leadership, fought Germany, Russia, Austria, Italy, and Great Britain—and won.

Get these Memoirs Free

By special arrangement with the publishers of COLLIER'S, The National Weekly, we are enabled to offer a limited number of these three-volume sets of the Memoirs of Napoleon free with a year's subscription to Collier's and this paper. The offer is strictly limited—to get advantage of it you must act promptly.

Sherlock Holmes Stories Exclusively in Collier's

All the Sherlock Holmes stories published in 1915 will be printed exclusively in Collier's.

The "Last-minute" pictures of the European War will appear every week in the photographic section of Collier's.

The finest fiction written will appear each week in short story and serial form.

Mark Sullivan's timely Editorials and widely quoted Comments on Congress will continue to be an exclusive feature.

Special Offer to our Readers

Your own home paper and COLLIER'S, The National Weekly, together with the three volumes of Napoleon's Memoirs—all of these you get for the price of Collier's alone, plus 50c to cover the cost of packing and shipping the Memoirs.

Send your order to this office now. If you are already a subscriber, your subscription will be extended for one year from its present date of expiration.

COLLIER'S $2.50 per year, including the three-volume set of Napoleon's Memoirs, postage paid.
