BUSINESS IS NOT 'FINE' IN 'DRY' TOWNS

SALEM SUFFERS BUSINESS LOSSES FROM DRY RULE

a Month in City

BANK DEPOSITS OFF $300,000

Fourteen Business Houses Quit in Less Than Year. School Attendance Less

Many Oregon papers have been loaded down within the past three weeks with repeated assurances that "Business is Fine in Dry Towns."

The three most important Oregon cities to become "dry" nine months ago were Salem, Oregon City and Springfield.

If business is fine in those cities the taxpayers and most of the business men would like to have the "drys" explain just what they mean by "fine." If they had said "business is thin," then they might have been more easily understood.

Let them answer first about conditions in Salem. Ex-Councilman John D. Turner, of Salem, an attorney, is sponsor for the following facts about that city: Salem went "dry" December 1 last, closing 15 saloons, three restaurants and two wholesale houses and withdrew liquor permits from eight drug stores and cut off an annual license revenue of $15,400. Ninety men and a monthly payroll of $5,700 were put out of commission. Most of the men have left the city. All buildings vacated by these concerns are still empty, except six, which have been occupied by ten ants who have vacated other buildings, several of the best buildings being boarded over and used as billboards More than five hundred modern dwellings are "for rent." Store property rentals on State street have dropped from $185 to $110 a month, but "business is fine.' Fourteen other business places have closed since December 1 last, aside from the saloons and restaurants. Included are three shoe stores-two by sheriff and one voluntarily; one of the C. Hawley largest drygoods stores has been sued for the first time in twenty years. Scores of clerks have left the city, causing the loss of more payrolls to the city, but "business is fine."

A leading prohibitionist promised to build 16 new dwellings if the city went Nine houses were begun, two "dry." have the windows and doors in, but have never been finished; no work has been done on the others, besides their bare frames.

Building permits from January to August, the last nine wet months of 1913, were $388,925; from November, 1913, to September, 1914, the next eleven "dry" months, they were $120,-000 less, or $268,160.

The grammar school opening day en rollment in 1913 was 1510; on the same day 1914, 1469, but "business is fine." Bank deposits show a decrease of $309.942 since the town went "dry," even after allowing for the $485,000 deposited this year from sale of bonds out of business, but that's "fine busiin Boston. The decrease, therefore, really should be $794,942, but "busi-

The attendance at the "Cherry Fair' this year was about one-half what it was the last "wet" year. The Ministerial Association before the election which made Salem "dry," told the Cherry Fair promoters that they would make up for the donations usually made by the saloons, bet utterly failed to do so this year and the promoters refused to hold that carnival. The "Cherrians," consisting of 100 real boosters, but of no prohibitionists, then pledged their personal membership for the necessary funds, requiring the payment on their part of $500. To rub it in, the Methodists then turned their church into a restaurant, put the kitchen in the pulpit and competed with the legitimate restnurants for the little business that their proprietors had hungrily looked for as a possible annual godsend. Business must be "fine" in any city when building permits, payrolls, bank deposits, bankruptcies, closed stores, depopulated dwellings, depressed realty values, school enrollments and carnival statistics all tell so dreary a story of mean that the "agitating business" is at once.

SPRINGFIELD IS MERE GHOST OF OLD BUSY CITY

Store Property Rentals Drop $75 | Prohibition Makes Formerly "Dry" Regime Followed by Query Thriving Center Barren

BANK DEPOSITS $57,000 LESS CITY WARRANTS UNSALEABLE

Main Street in Place of Busy Stores

The city of Springfield, cally everyone who wanted work was employed. Everyone seemed happy and con-deserted village, business is paralyzed, and more than eight or ten people on its main street at any one time would actually be the cause of excitement. Yet the Committee of One Hundred "Business is fine in dry towns."

Springfield went "dry" at the election last fall, the saloon;

closing January 1. Let the "drys" tell all about these "fine" business conditions in Springfield after nine months' operation of their "business the-

Although a much smaller city than Salem, the bank deposits in Springfield have fallen off in the last year over $57,000. When Main street finally is read-justed in the next month or two, practically two blocks of store buildings on each side of the street west of the Southern Pacific tracks will be deserted, but "business is fine."

A real estate sale is unheard of and would be impossible on any part of Main street, but "business is fine." The Springfield Toggery, the best gent's furnishing store, is now being closed out by a receiver, but "business is fine." The La France Confectionery Store, one of the best in "wet" days, has closed out, but "business is fine." O. W. Johnson's Hardware Store, the best of its line during "wet" days, already has been sold out by a re-ceiver, but "business is fine." A. J. Henderson, the leading drygoods merchant, occupied a double store a year ago. Today he occupies but one store and will tell you his business is "about half" what it was a year ago, but "business is fine." The city has run into a $5,200 deficit from an excess of expenditures over income, although the "drys" promised that less police and court expenses would make a surplus, if the people would vote the $12,000 saloon licenses

The prohibitionists a year ago promised to reduce the tax levy, but have increased the levy this year by five mills, but "business is fine." Not a foot of permanent street improvement work has been done, except the construction of a small bridge over a creek, and that was paid for by a bond issue. Streets and sidewalks are in a deplorable condition, and the prohibitionists are now petitioning the ouncil to "double" the expense levy. If the local taxpayers, but a few of whom are "drys," vote down this petition, the city confronts the same possibility as Oregon City, viz., the appointment of a receiver, but "business s fine in dry towns."

Prohi Epeaker Fined.

SEASIDE .- J. A. Adams, a prohibition speaker and worker, served out a five dollar fine in the Senside jail for failing to obey the local ordinances regulating street speaking. Adams, who boasts of having been arrested 44 times and of having served 14 jail sentences, declares that he prefers jail sentences to poying fines, as they give him more notoricty and enable him to draw larger audiences. Upon compleliteral fact. Maybe the prohibitionists tion of his jail term here he left town Hundred matter about "business is Every merchant seriously discussed by cerwas making money, practilitain of its creditors, and Judge Campbell of that city has declared his willingness to declare such a receivertented, except the prohibi- ship, if formal application were made to him, as he Today Springfield looks like a would for "any bankrupt corporation." A special election has been called by the city for November 9 "to relieve the financial condition of the city," the purpose being to vote $250,000 5 per cent bonds and to increase the tax levy eight mills in order to take care of the new indebtedness. On the part of Clackamas County the County Treasurer is confronted with an empty treasury for the first time in six years. The Morning Enterprise, a radical prohibitionist daily of Oregon City, in explaining this sitnation, says "the condition is considered the result of the amount of delinquent taxes on the county's tax rolls. County Treasurer Tufts refused the first warrants on the general fund Monday (October 12, 1914).

Business must be "fine" and a county when the treasuries of both are empty because of lack of money coming into their strong boxes, with a special election called by the city to increase its tax levy, with a receivership threatened and with "danger" signs strung along the length of the business portion of Main street by "order of the City Council," which

Danger - Main Street Declared Dangerous-All persons traveling on Main street between North side of Moss street and South side of Third street do so at their own risk." Banks are refusing to eash Oregon

City municipal warrants. Since January first the city has issued $39,991,05 in these warrants, according to the report of City Recorder John W. Loder, and these warrants are still unpaid. The city tax levy in 1913 in Oregon City was eight mills. Two weeks after the city went dry the council incrensed this levy to 10 mills for 1914, and on November 9 there is to be a special eletion held at which the voters will be asked to sanction an additional levy of eight mills to meet the municipal indebtedness. Yet "business is fine in dry towns," and Oregon City is doing well. Vacant buildings now stand on Main street, the chief business thoroughfare of Oregon City, as monuments to the memory of one garage, one clothing store, one restaurant and one livery barn now closed up, but formerly did good business. Fourteen vacant stores line both sides of Main street, and three vacant lots mark the places where three other stores formerly stood, but which have burned down. So little has been the demand for business property that the burned structures were never rebuilt. But "business is fine in Oregon City." The Enterprise printing office, hich formerly employed a large force f printer and bookbinders, and often worker at and day to fill orders, is now operating its job department crew but five days a week, yet The Morning Enterprise is one of the papers that has printed the Committee of One fine in dry towns."
