Origin of Onyx

When waters charged with carbonate of calcium derived from limestone are allowed to evaporate they deposit their load in the form of sinter, or tufa. This process can be observed at many thermal and "petrifying" springs and also in the formation of stalactites and stalagmites in limestone caverns. In this way large masses of compact carbonate are formed, some of them of great beauty. The so-called "onyx marbles," of which the Mexican "onyx" is a familiar example, are formed in this way. Some rock of this class is stalagmitic, in caverns, and some of it is formed by springs. Its variations in color and texture, to which its ornamental character is largely due, are commonly produced by impurities or inclusions, such as oxide of iron, or even mud and clay.

Do You Suffer From Tired Eyes?

If you suffer from tired eyes—and who does not at times?—you may be glad to try a French author's accidentally discovered remedy. It is a simple method of restoring the vision to freshness. One night when engaged in writing an article his eyes gave out before he could finish and he was compelled to stop. So, turning from his unfinished manuscript, his eyes fell upon some scraps of colored silk that his wife had been using for patchwork. These gay colors had a peculiar attraction for wearied optics. On resuming his work after gazing at them for several minutes he found them quite fresh. After several experiments he surrounded his inkstand with brilliantly colored striped silk material that his eyes must rest on every time he dips his pen into the ink. This brings instant relief.

How Perfectly French!

There is a prefect in the south of France who has a mania for his wife's hands, which are particularly beautiful. So that he may always have the object of his adoration under his eyes a model in bronze of one of the hands has been made and the prefect keeps it on his desk at his office.
An official in this prefect's district, anxious to secure his influence for political preferment, has devised a delightful way of paying him a delicate compliment. Every time he enters the great man's office he walks silently to his desk, takes up the bronze hand and kisses it respectfully.
The prefect is so much impressed by this act of gallantry that the tactful young man has already secured lucrative promotion.—London Mirror.

A Perilous Experience.

While hunting in the Big Horn mountains two men found a narrow path, little more than a deer trail, leading up to the summit. They dismounted and led their horses, moving very cautiously, for on one side the mountain rose up like a wall, and on the other sloped down a thousand feet to the canyon below. Suddenly both horses pricked up their ears as if scenting a wild beast. Then there came a shot from the hunter in advance, and the hunter in the rear found himself hanging over the cliff. He had been leading the horse by the reins, and when the horse shied and upset him he held on with a death grip. It was nearly five minutes that he thus hung on to the slender strap, while the horse held back with all his strength. But he could not climb up, and his companion had to haul him up to a place of safety, and then he naturally fainted.—St Paul Pioneer Press.

The Vacuous Life.

People without any form of religion, without superstition, devoid of any thought of the future state, have been found in the interior forests of Sumatra, according to Dr. Wilhelm Volz, the geologist of the University of Breslau, who made extensive journeys through the island. There he found the Kubus, as he named them, who are scarcely to be distinguished from the small manlike ape of the Indo-Malayan countries. They are wanderers through the forest seeking food. They have no property. They are not hunters, but simply collectors. They seek merely sufficient nuts, fruits and other edible growths to keep them alive. The Kubus wage very little warfare upon the small amount of animal life in their silent and somber land. The only notion he could get from them of a difference between a live and a dead person was that the dead do not breathe. He infers that they are immeasurably inferior to the paleolithic man of Europe who fashioned tools and hunted big game with his flint tipped arrow and knife. Intellectual atrophy is the result of the Kubus' environment. The words they know are almost as few as the ideas they try to express.—Chicago News.

Solar Freak.

"Leap year is so called because the earth goes round the sun for three years, but in the fourth year it leaps over it" wrote a very youthful student in an examination paper.

Teddy Wondered.

Teddy—Dad, what are ancestors? Father—Well, I'm one of yours. Your granddad is another. Teddy—Oh, but why is it that folk brag about them?

Luck and Pluck.

Griggs—I should say that the two keys to success are luck and pluck. Briggs—Certainly—luck in finding some one to pluck!

Diplomatic Letter.

The envious young man, broken in health was sent to the southwest to recuperate. He was in jail for stealing a hind quarter of beef. He wrote home: "Dear Father I've plucked up some flesh since I came here, but am still confined to my room. Please send me $100."—Exchange.

Scientific Problems.

"Much energy is not utilized. There ought to be some way of conserving the rays of the sun."
"Yes, and look at all the energy that goes to waste in chewing gum. If we could only harness the gum chewers why?"—Pittsburgh Post.

Natural Error.

"She is rather thin."
"Who?"
"That girl in the purple gown over yonder."
"Gosh, I thought that was a design in the wall paper."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Mexico's Flag.

The Mexican flag is a tricolor, exact ly like the Italian flag, consisting of three broad bars, pale green, white and red, running vertically.

Clea. Infance.

"Jim told me a rip-roaring joke that was played on some member of your club last evening. Were you there?"
"Yes, I was there! It was an abominable, far-fetched!"
"O-oh! Jim did not tell me that you were the man it was on."—Houston Post.

Strangeness of the Sex.

A woman can become highly excited over the fact that a bride is starting out in married life with machine-hommed napkins.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Weight of Snow.

A cubic foot of newly fallen snow weighs five and one-half pounds and has twelve times the bulk of an equal weight of water.

I wasted time, and now time doth waste me.—Shakespeare.

An Apt Retort.

"Fools sometimes ask questions that wise men cannot answer," remarked the professor in the course of his lecture.
"Then that explains why so many of us get plucked in our examinations," said the flippant student.—Home Notes

Spring Cleaning.

Jimson—I do spring cleaning at all seasons of the year. Jackson—How's that? Jimson—I'm a watchmaker.—London Tit-Bits.

A Comparison.

"Nothing, it seems to me, looks as important as a bridegroom at a wedding."
"Have you ever noticed a governor when he is surrounded by the usual members of his staff?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Breaking In.

Mother—Dear me, the baby has swelled a piece of worsted. Father—Nothing to the yarns she'll have to do to live to grow up.
